RUFF SAYS MATTER IS CLOSED

Finds No Evidence to Support an Allegation That Contributions From Unions Were Misused

By NICHOLAS M. HORROCK

Special to The Sew York Times WASHINGTON, Oct. 14-Charles F. Ruff, the Watergate special prosecutor, said today that he had found no evidence to support an allegation that President Ford had misused political contributions from maritime unions or a "reason to believe that any other violations of law had occurred."

In a prepared statement issued by an aide, Mr. Ruff said that, in addition to examining records of the unions and those of political committees in Kent County, Mich., he had reviewed records of Mr. Ford's personal finances and the report of an Internal Revenue Service audit of Mr. Ford's tax returns from 1967

Based upon this investigation, Mr. Ruff said he had concluded that no violation of the law had occurred and, "accordingly, the matter has now been closed, and the counsel for the President so advised." Campaign Issue Involved

In a news conference at the White House tonight, Mr. Ford said in a prepared statement that he was "very pleased" that "this morning the special prosecutor has finally put this matter to rest once and for all."

Mr. Ford noted that since his selection as Vice President in 1973, his life had been placed under "microscopic" scrutiny, and that Mr. Ruff's conclusion confirmed the findings of earlier investigations of his integrity in political activities.

The alleged misuse of funds supposedly took piace from 1964, when Mr. Ford was a United States Representative from the funds to his personal use.

CANADIANS STRIKE OVER WAGE CURBS

Thousands Boycott Work to Mark Anniversary of Trudeau Controls

By ROBERT TRUMBULL.

OTTAWA Oct. 14-Tens of thousands of workers throughout Canada stayed off the job and took part in demonstrations today against the wage-control provisions of the Government's program to combat: inflation.

The Canadian Labor Congress, representing 2.2 million union members, had scheduled the protest to coincide with the first anniversary of the wage and price restraints introduced by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

While some major industries were affected by the walkouts, and some areas mail deliveries and other services were interrupted, in most of the country there was little to distinguish the day except an unusual number of picket lines, parades and other type of public gatherings of unionists.

Early and incomplete reports from around the country by Canadian Press, the national news agency, listed walkouts that indicated that 150,000 persons staying away from work for the day. Yesterday, the Ontario Labor Relations Board and a court in Nova Scotia de-clared protest-walkouts illegal in their provinces, deterring some who might have demonstrated.

A thousand to 2,000 unionists marched on the broad esplanade in front of the Parliament buildings here today, carrying placards attacking the Government. Inside, the opposition tore into Mr. Truside, the opposition tore into Mr. deau's policies in the House of Commons.

Meanwhile, Labor Minister John Munro announced that the Government planned to establish an economic advisory council to be made up of members of business, labor and consumer groups. The plan was apparently a response to a demand by the Labor Congress earlier this year for a national planning body, with adminis-trative powers, that would represent the Government, business and labor.

The Government issued a statement today, in booklet form, outlining plans for broad consultations on future economic policy. The booklet repeated earlier declarations by Prime Minister Trudeau and others that the wage and price controls, scheduled to end on Dec. 31, 1978, would be lifted sooner if conditions im-

There are strong indications that a meeting of the Central Committee is taking place in Peking. It was evidently called to ratify the Politburo's selection of Mr. Hua as party chairman, but it could also debate the problem of what to do with the arrested leaders and select others to take their places.

Long Association with Shanghai

The four senior leftists were all mem-bers of the Politburo. In addition to Miss Chiang and Mr. Chang, they were Wang Hung-wen, a former textile mill worker whom Mao himself made the second ranking member of the party, and Yao Wen-yuan, a propagandist who is said to control the central media. All four were closely associated in Shanghai during the Cultural Revolution.

Among the additional group of leftists whose arrest is less certain are Mao Yuan-hsin, Mao's nephew, who was long a party secretary in Manchuria's Liaoning Province: Yu Hui-yung, the Minister of Culture and a composer whose music was favored by Miss Chiang, and Chih Chun, the head of Tsinghua University in Pek-

There were these other developments: There were hints from some Chinese sources in Peking that the charge against the leftists might be expanded to include treason, since simply distorting Mao's words might not be convincing enough to merit serious punishment. The new charge being rumored was that they were "soft on the Soviet Union."

Analysts looking for further clues to what had happened noted that the last article by a radical writer appeared in the Rhodesia conference in Geneva.

Some analysts thought an issue in the conflict might be the new volume of Mao's selected works, which the Politburo said on Saturday would be published "at the soonest possible date." The four volumes a ready published carry Mao's writings up to the Communists' assumption of power in 1949. During the Cultural Revolution, Chinese Nationalist sources printed what they said was a table of contents for the fifth volume, suggesting that there had been problems over what it should contain.

South Africa Black Seized in Protests Is a Suicide in Jail

Special to The New York Times JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 14-South Afri can officials announced today that a 22year-old student hanged himself in the Johannesburg Fort last week. The student, Jacob Mashabane, who comes from the black township of Soweto, was the 26th detainee to die in prison since 1963, when the Government began making regular use of special detention powers Relatives of Mr. Mashabane said they had been unaware he was in detention until they were officially informed of his death. The South African Press Association quoted them as having said that he disappeared after leaving home on Oct. I. The police are not obliged to inform detainees' relatives of their arrest.

The death was the fourth of a degainee this year, and the third to be officially attributed to suicide by hanging since protests against apartheid broke cout in black townships acress the country four months ago. Altogether, more than 300 blacks have been detained without trial ince the protests began.

Opponents of apartheid have long made an issue of deaths among detaineds. According to official announcements, 3 of the 26 who have died in captivity in the last 13 years committed suicide, usually by hanging. espite Rhodesian Acrimony, U.S. Officials Expect Accord by Year-End

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN

Special to The New York Times WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—Administration efficials said today they expected agreement by year's end on an interim Rhodesian government to replace the regime of Ian D. Smith despite the sharp public differences between black and white Rhodesian leaders.

Because of the open acrimony between the two sides, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is said to believe that the Geneva conference on Rhodesia may become deadlocked in controversy soon after its scheduled opening under Reitish after its scheduled opening under British auspices on Oct. 25.

But even this possibility has not shaken the American optimism. Mr. Kissinger and his top aides believe that a recess will follow a deadlock and that during a recess the British and Americans should be able to produce a face-saving compromise acceptable to blacks and whites.

In advance of the Geneva conference, black and white Rhodesian leaders are putting ferward what African officials re-gard as "maximum" negotiating posi-

Lake a good look at our new accessory collection. This could change your point of view, too. The idea here, according to the great Parisian mover and shaker, is that menswear should be (and if St. Laurent says so, it will be) more classic.

Your wardrobe is going gray flannel: cleaner cut, smoother and suaver. Lapels are slimming down, shoulders are sloping more naturally, and the little things that pull the look together are more sophisticated.

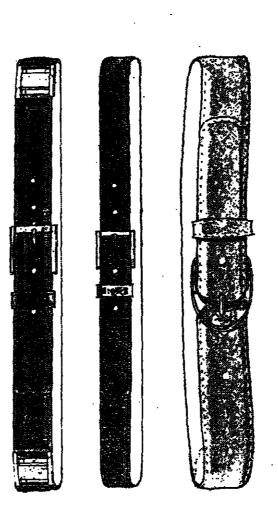

To wit (a) Shirts have new collars: higher and wider spread so you get a natty "haberdasher" look. And the tapered European fit, with classic button cuffs. They're (glory be) pure, soft, natural cotton. In solid shades of cream, gray, blue or rose, 17.50. And in an assortment of new, scaled down prints like the one we've sketched. The colors? Calmed down tones like gray and rust, gray and black, tan and brown, 18.50.

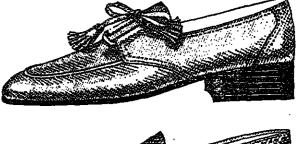

To wit (b) Ties in pure silk, very neat, very confident new prints. Not too wide, not too narrow. In shades that don't shout at you, 13.50.

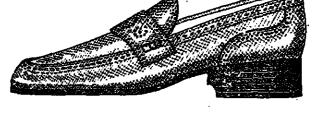

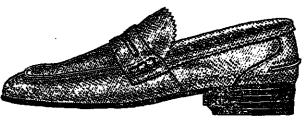

To wit, (c) Belts in fine grained "gentleman's leather." Black or brown. Each with a subtle YSL signature, 13.50 and 15.00.

To wit (d) Shoes have the new, slender European silhouette and new, tapered toes. All, of course, in rich, soft leathers or suedes. Black, chocolate and amber tones in the collection, 52.00 and 58.00.

Myth #1. It's too expensive.

A comparison of price lists will surprise you. Some other makes are actually higher priced. Still, first cost is no true measure of the real cost of a Steinway or any other plane. Remember depreciation, and that a Steinway suffers less of it than other pianos. Think about maintenance, and the fact that your Steinway will perform better, longer, between service calls than a lesser instrument. And, of course, the Steinway's sensitive rouch and sheer musicality can be purchased nowhere else, regardless of price. In fact, a Steinway surns out to be the least expensive plano you Can buy because it is the best investment.

Myth #2. You're paying for the name. Actually, you're paying for the instrument behind it. An instrument which is the product of over a century's innovation and development. An instrument with features found in no other plano. An instrument built with fantastic precision, as no other piano is built today. An instrument which if there were no name at all on the fall board would still be the citimate clane.

Myth =3. They're asking a lot for a piece of furniture.

Steinway cabinetwork and finish are breathtaking. But what you're buying is hardly a prace of furniture (see Myth #2).

Myth #4. Today it's big business The personal touch is gone.

Today every Steinway piano is still an individually hand built instrument. The craft has hardly changed in the past hundred years, so that in 1977 Steinway will complete virtually the same number of instruments as in 1877. And today Steinway pianes are still built under the personal supervision of the Steinway family as they have been for 123

Myth ≠5. A piano is a piano.

All modern pianos now share design principles which were pioneered by Steinway. But from soundboard to action rail to the fine details of fit and finish, the Steinway still contains much that is unique. It is these details and features which make the difference between a Steinway and everything else list was without foundation" and apologizing "to those who are and should be above any suspicion."

The affair is not Watergate, and Spain is not the United States," commented the magazine, almost wistfully. A small scandal is brewing within the scandal. As Spain moves out of the Franco past and toward an uncertain, presumably democraric future, educated Spaniards are wondering what the military is doing censoring a magazine and trying its publisher. Moreover, the Air Ministry's heavyhanded action has refocused attention on the Lockheed question, which Spanish authorities have snown little eagerness in bringing to public light.

An investigation, built around documents supplied by the United States Department of Justice, has in principle been under way since the beginning of the year.

Last month, Antonio José Garcia Rodriguez Acosta, the chief Government prosecutor, said he noped soon to unveil his findings but compared the elu-sive matter to the Loch Ness monster, suggesting that perhaps it did not exist.

Trying to keep the issue alive, opposition sectors of the Spanish press have heen insistently asking, "Where is the list?" But aside from Sabado Grafico's timid foray, there has been no investigative reporting on the case. The festering matter was given a fil-lip this month when Marcelino Oreja, the relatively liberal Foreign Minister, returned from a trip to the United States and declared that he had brought with him "all the documentation regarding the Lockheed matter that the Justice Department has given

Almost immediately, the Government news agency, Cirra, located "competent sources" who denied that Mr. Oreja had brought with him a "list" of Span-iards bribed by Lockheed.

The liberal daily El Pals erupted at this back-handed contradiction of Mr. Oreja. Noting that the Foreign Minister's file from the Justice Department ran to 1,200 pages, the newspaper observed that "it is not reasonable to think that this documentation is limited to descriptions of airplanes, optimal climatology in the Mediterranean biosphere and other disquisitions distant from those sought by Spanish and American justice."

Alien Denies Aiding Nazis as He Fights Deportation

By BEN A. FRANKLIN

BALTIMORE, Oct. 14-Just around the corner from the modest house where Karlis Detlavs lives, a motion picture called 'A Matter of Time" is playing at the Senator Theater on York Road.

The time that matters now for Mr. Detlavs, a 65-year-oid former Latvian displaced person, began in the summer of 1941, in Riga, Latvia.

The United States Government accuses Mr. Detlavs of having shot Jews in Latvia and of having selected Jews from the ghetto for transport to death camps dur-ing the Nazi occupation of that country early in World War II. He is one of three aliens identified yesterday by the Immi-gration and Naturalization Service as being subject to deportation on charges of having falsified, upon entering this country, statements about participating

He could be expelled from the United States on Nov. 15, the date of his deporta-tion hearing here.

More than that, he said: "America has been good to me. I buy a house, I send my daughter to college. I don't want to

Two other suspects facing deportation were unavailable for interviews. In Hartford, Bronius Kaminskas, 73, dropped out of sight after denying that he had com-mitted any World War II atrocities. Jewish Group Occupies Church Council Building To Urge Prelate's Ouster

By GEORGE DUGAN

Twenty-five members of Concerned lewish Youth took over the headquarters of the National Council of Churches yes-terday in a nonviolent protest against the refusal of the council's governing board to oust one of its members who has been accused of World War II crimes. The board member, Archbishop Vale-rian Trifa of the Rumanian Orthodox episcopate, a member in good standing of the Orthodox Church in America, is accused of being responsible for the "murder of thousands of Jews and Christians" in Rumania in 1941.

The youths, under the leadership of Rabbi Avraham Weiss of the Hebrew Institute of Riverdale, took over the coun cil's eighth-floor offices at the Interchurch Center, 475 Riverside Drive, at 12:30 P.M. The council represents. 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations in this country.

They left the offices at 6 P.M. with he promise that their complaint would be put on the agenda of the council's senior staff meeting next Wednesday.
Rabbi Weiss said that up to eight representatives of Concerned Jewish Youth would be permitted to attend the meeting and that a substantive response had been promised.

The takeover, carried out quietly and with dispatch, coincided with a statement by William P. Thompson, president of the council, that Archbishop Trifa must be presumed innocent until proved guilty and that, in any case, members of the goerning board were named by the council's member denominations and the board did not have constitutional authority to seat or unseat them. .

Mr. Thompson added that "w eare not court" and said that the charges against twice by the United States immigration authorities and twice by the Orthodox Church in America and had "not been

Economist in the Public Cause

Milton Friedman

By STEVEN RATTNER

When reporters and photographers thronged around him as he walked into a Detroit news conference yesterday, Milton Friedman was at first pleased that his efforts on behalf of Michigan's tax-limitation proposal had drawn 50 much attenion. Then the noted University of Chicago economist discovered the real reason for the interest - he had just been awarded the 1976 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science.

It was perhaps an appropriate set-ting, for although Dr. Friedman was recognized by the Nobel committee for his pioneering work in monetary economics and in the theory of consump-tion, his activism on behalf of publicpolicy causes has been at least as influential. He is given much of the credit for the nation's all-volunteer anny, he was an early supporter of floating exchange rates, instituted in 1971, and he has been a major force in the current recognition of the impor-tance of a stable Federal Reserve policy.

And it was characteristic that even in victory, Dr. Friedman's reaction was brutally candid. "It is not the pinnacle of my career." he told a reporter. "I would not want a professional judgment of my scientific work to be those people who selected me for the

Declines Government Posts

Throughout the long years of advocating laissez-faire principles and monetary economics, even his critics agreed that he never sacrificed his intellectual integrity. He turned down a number of government posts partly because he did not believe that he would be able to maintain his principles. And on that day in August 1971 when President Richard M. Nixon announced that he was instituting a wage and price freeze, Dr. Friedman—a long-time Nixon adviser—broke with the President and called the freeze "pure window dressing which will do harm rather than good."

His strong views have alienated many. Even yesterday's announcement provoked at attack from several Nobel Prize winners who contended that Dr. Friedman's involvement with the Chilean junta should have disqualified him. (Dr. Friedman says that he has spent only six days in Chile and has had only six days in Chile and has had no further contact.) And a number of economists—albeit his supporters—be-lieve that his strong political views (he advised Barry Goldwater during the 1964 election) obscured his groundbreaking work in economic theory and methodology and perhaps delayed the

But despite his fiercely held views, he is considered by almost all to be a man of the highest character. "You can't help but like the guy in spite of his politics," said one of his detractors. "You don't go away believing him, but you have to be impressed by the gymnastics of his mind.

His "gymnastics" include a number of controversial positions: Abolish social security, end tax deductions and graduated tax rates and institute a voucher system that would allow parents to choose their children's schools.

Such vigorous advocacy is perhaps an odd role for the slight (5 foot 3 inches), balding, bespectacled professor, whose dress leans to frayed Ivy League tweeds and skinny 1950's ties. And campaigning, as he did in half a dozen Michigan cities yesterday, is a rigorous day for a 64-year-old man, who, although he is in perfect health now, underwent open-heart surgery in December 1972.

Milton Friedman (he has no middle name) was born on July 31, 1912 in Brooklyn, although his immigrant parents soon moved to Rahway, N. J., where he grew up in working-class surroundings.

He worked his way through Rutgers University, graduating in 1932, and while there, studied under Arthur F. Burns, now the chairman of the Federal Chicago.

There his monetary economics and market analysis brought national prominence to a center known nationally as the Chicago School, which has graduated dozens of prominent alumni -including Herbert Stein, formerly a Presidential economic adviser, and George P. Shultz, former Treasury Secretary-and a number of satellite Friedman centers.

Although Dr. Friedman is the author or co-author of more than a dozen books and writes a column for Newsweek, his students know him as a rigor-ous but always available instructor—"a perfectionist always driving his students with the hard questions," one said yesterday. His Tuesday afternoon workshop on money is legendary for its intellectual force.

Dr. Friedman's long-time associate. George Stigler, a professor of economics at Chicago and a prominent economist, said: "It is a great and wholly deserved honor. He's so good a speaker that people often forget that he's a true scholar. I'm going to let him beat me in tennis tomorrow."

He is married to the former Rose

Director, an economist who, within the family, takes responsibility for finances. They have a daughter, Janet Stansby, 33, a San Francisco lawyer, and a son, David, 31, an assistant professor of economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. David embraces the family laissez-faire tradition and has written a book advocating an end to government except for national de-fense. His father likesthe book.

waiting in line for a few extra years—but for scientific contributions; whose validi-ty is generally deemed to be independent of his political biases or aims. Dr. Friedman's contributions in economics to be singled out by Sweden's Royal Academy of Science was his work on consumption analysis. This is an area that he himself considers a contribution in pure or "posi-

What Dr. Friedman snowed was that John Maynard Keynes's theory of the con-sumption function (that is, the relation of consumption to income) was wrong. Hence there were serious deficienties in Keynesian and other earlier models for explaining economic behavior and for developing policies to increase economic growth and stability.

The Keynesian theory of the consumption function postulated that the more money consumers have, the larger the proportion they will save, and the smaller the proportion they will spend. Dr. Friedman's mathematical analysis led to the conclusion that the total amount spent on consumption is, on the average, a constant traction of consumers' "permanent ncome"—regardless of the size of that permanent income.

By permanent income Dr. Friedman money-supply growth targets—or rather teant that share of their total income a hand, within which the Fed tries to to which consumers adapt their behavior over long periods of time—not the windfall gains they receive from time to time.

Caring About Aggregate Growth The permanent-income theory shook to its foundations the ancient justification recent work in regulatory theory—and for inequality of income distribution in the push in Washington for deregulation-poor countries—that only the rich could is a result of his work. poor countries—that only the rich could save, and therefore that if a country wanted to develop economically, it had to preserve a big gap in income between rich and poor, at least until the society no longer cared about aggregate growth.

What Dr. Friedman found conducive to stable international economy. high savings ratio was not inequality Not all economists believe that he has per se but uncertainty. Even poor people who were very anxious about their future, would have high savings ratios— poor families in India, for example, where women accumulate a large store of silver and gold bangles. The East, said Dr. 'sink" for precious metals-and thus substantial savings.

His theory was neutral, however, pointing out that, if inequality did not make for a higher savings rate, neither did a reduction in inequality.

Dr. Friedman's theory of the consumption function also helped to demonstrate. he should stay away from advising politicians the Swedish Academy said in its citacians in such countries as Chile or South tion, "the complexity of stabilization poli-

Certainly not for his right-wing increase, or to spend more by a one-shot political views—these probably kept him tax cut, people might frustrate the Government's effort to curb or spur the economy by focusing on what they considered their permanent income and not changing their consumption.

Simple Monetary Rule

Dr. Friedman also sought to damper the enthusiasm of Keynesian economists by his work in monetary theory building tive" economics, devoid of specific politi- on his monumental "History of Money in the United States, 1867-1960," riedman contended that efforts to stabilize the economy by sharp increases or decreases in the money supply might ac-tually destabilize it.

He favored a simple monetary rule—in-crease the money supply by a constant rate from month to month, even from day to day, if it could be done. The rate of increase he favored would be roughly in line with the anticipated noninflationary growth of the overall economy-beween 3 percent and 5 percent per year. The Friedman rule for "fixed-throttle" monetary growth was long resisted by the Federal Reserve System and, particularly by Dr. Friedman's former teacher, Arthur F. Burns, currently chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

But in the last year and a half, however, the Federal Reserve has accepted the basically Friedmanesque concept of ribesmen of the Southwest Pacific. Dr. Baruch S. Blumberg, in the early 1960's, was studying blood serum samples from some 100,000 individuals while seeking to learn why people with differing ethnic and familial backgrounds vary widely in their responses to disease. His ders such as multiple sclerosis, Parking samples were from Baffin Island Eskimos, natives of Surinam, and many other groups. It was in the blood serum of an Australian aborigine that he found the clue—the so-called Australia antigen—that has led to production of an experimental vaccine against the most severe form of hepatitis.

He hopes it will also combat a form of liver cancer that is a major cause of death in parts of Africa, South China, Taiwan, the Philippines and Malaysia.

Disease Linked to Cannibalism The other winner, Dr. D. Carleton Gajlusek, sought to track down the cause of kuru, an ailment that was almost always fatal within the Fore tribe of New Guinea, and seemed unique to that tribe. After spending considerable time with the tribe he concluded that the disease was caused by a virus transmitted by canni-

The Australia antigen was discovered. in 1963 when Dr. Blumberg and his col-leagues found that something in the serum of a hemophiliac patient reacted with a substance in the serum of an Australian aborigine.

Chemicals that if thus stimulate the production of antibodies are known as antigens.

Further research by Dr. Blumberg and others revealed that the Australia antigen, was part of the virus that causes the most severe form of hepatitis, known as hepatitis B.

Originally it was thought that there are two kinds of hepatitis. One, "infectious" hepatitis could be passed, it was thought, particularly in poor sanitary conditions. The other, "serum" hepatitis: was helieved transmitted only by injections. tion, as with contaminated hypodermic needles or by blood transfusion. It is now widely believed that both forms can be ransmitted in both ways.

Dr. Saul Krugman of New York University Medical Center began working to develop a vaccine against hepatitis B. It. is now being produced by Merck & Co. for experimental use.

Dr. Blumberg, in a telephone interview yesterday, said, that following extensive animal tests, it was being tested on a few a human subjects to confirm its safety. He predicted that it would be several years before it was released by Federal authorities for general use.

"I think it's good for Philadelphia," he said of his remark about the award compensating for the baseball team's loss, "but actually I'm not all that interested in spectator sports. I prefer outdoor, individual recreation myself." Dr. Blumberg said that he enjoyed canoeing and hiking in the mountains.

To study various populations, Dr. Blumberg has taken his blood-drawing equipment to Nigeria, Singapore, India, the Arctic, the Marshall Islands and American Indian reservations.

In all, the Government has received applications for insurance on 5,200 units of housing, and they are still com-ing. The largest is for Battery Park City in lower Manhattan.

The Battery Park City Authority is seeking Federal insurance on 1,640 apartments. Charles Urstadt, the former state housing commissioner who heads the authority, has had direct discussions on the application with Carla Hills, Secretary of H.U.D. The basic question is whether the market in that location will support the projected rents of $135 a room.

The Battery Park City Authority is seeking Federal insurance on 1,640 apartments. "It's not every day that we're asked to insure a $65 million mortgage," said an H.U.D. official who is familiar with the discussions that Charles Urstadt chairman of the automatical chairman of the au Charles Urstadt, chairman of the authority, has had with Mrs. Hills.
The authority has presented studies to bear out its contention that Battery Park City housing renting at a projected $136 a room per month is marketable in the area. But the Government questions whether the actual costs of construction, debt service and operation will support a $65 million mort-gage at rents of $136 a room. And if higher rents are needed, will the apart-ments still be marketable? Moreover. a decision on whether a full new environmental impact study is necessary has yet to be made, and there are various technical legal questions. In all, there is no indication of an early Federal decision.

What has spurred the Covernment's readiness to process these 221d-4 applications was the Administration's decision to release $5 billion of a $10 billion Congressional authorization of funds to spur the lagging multifamily housing sector across the country. This action has the effect of making available 7½ percent mortgage money-a couple of points below the market rate -for conventionally financed apartments for middle-income people. . . .

So far slow processing has kept the pipeline moving slowly. "If we're properly staffed and we get a perfect submission, we could get the applications out in one to four months," said one official.

Actually, processing has been taking up to a year in the New York office. The situation is said to have improved with the addition of appraisers, a new budget for 1977 and internal reorgan-

Another factor that has stimulated applications is that H.U.D. has raised limits on construction cost of apartments it will insure. The biggest jump for the city came in zero-bedroom apartments - to $31,443 from $24,000 in elevator buildings. Previously, lower limits made it harder for projects to

In the early 1960's, when insured housing took a tremendous spurt in during a shift to a more restrictive zoning ordinance, the F.A.H. cleared about 100,000 housing units in the area. Nothing like that is in prospect now, "But there will be a spurt compared with the last five or six years," the official said.

The Question of Homosexuality: Are Families the Reason

By RICHARD FLASTE

What is the influence of parents on the development of homosexuality in their children?

The question may sound simple. But the answers it elicits frequently aren't. The viewpoints of authorities in the field range from certainty about the origins of homosexuality to complex, unremitting doubt. These days the expressions of uncertainty appear to be growing. And since much of the research has been done with boys, there is even less known about girls, although many assume that the situation is similar for both sexes.

One psychiatrist who does sound cer-tain of the causes of homosexuality, in boys at least, and what to do about it is Dr. Irving Bieber. His unequivocal assertion that "the family is the architect of homosexuality" is widely heard and often disputed.

Family Relationships a Harbinger

In an interview the other day, Dr. Bieber said that he could look at family relationships and determine that some children would become heterosexuals while others would be "at risk" as potential homosexuals.

He said that in every case where a child might be heading toward homosexuality the father was either coldly detached or openly rejected his son. (He maintained that this was true even when, once grown, the children insisted on describing their relationships with their fathers as affectionate.) And for the most part the mothers were overly intimate with their boys, over-protective and usually preferred the ions to the fathers. Dr. Bieber said that such a pattern led to a child's doubts about himself and isolation from friends of the same sex. Timidity resulted in teasing from other boys and a fear of competing for the sexual affection of girls. The frightened adolescent then retreats to the "safety" of homosexuality.

Homosexuality, in Dr. Bieber's view, is heterosexuality "derailed." Once a school-age child's natural sexual growth appears thwarted, as evidenced by the pattern Dr. Bieber outlined, he urges psychiatric consultation to seek a possible remedy through work with the child and the parents. If the child "at risk" does happen to find heterosexual friends they may prove therapeutic, too, helping to counteract the influence of the family, Dr. Bieber said.

More complex views of homosexuality were offered by Dr. Judd Maracr, a psychiatrist at the University of Southern California, and by Dr. Richard Green, a psychiatrist at the State University of New York at Stony

Father Role Is Important

Dr. Marmor, who has been instrunental in swaying professional opinion away from the conviction that homoexuality is, in and of itself, a mental illness, said that nevertheless if par-ents wanted to raise a heterosexual hild, the kind of family Dr. Bieber prefers is "very important."

"It's very important for the father to provide a boy with a good, loving, nasculine identification figure," Dr. darmor said. "And the mother should provide an affectionate and loving relaionship but not a binding or seductive one." For girls, he said, a caring father ight be just as important as for boys.

However that kind of family won't guarantee that a child will grow up as a heterosexual, Dr. Marmor said.

I believe there are many factors that we can't always control or predict," he said. A boy, for instance, might be born with a temperament or physical limitations, such as poor coordination, that seem to make it difficult for him to associate with friends of the same

He might seem a recluse who preferred lonely pursuits. If that were the case, Dr. Marmor said, "I would try to strengthen his deficiencies without in any way depreciating his strengths." He would gently help him find friends of his own sex. "One isn't born wanting to be alone," he said. Of course, on the other hand, even some gregarious athletes have been described as homosexual. As for other factors in sexual orientation, Dr. Marmor pointed to recent physiological research. "There may be a small number of homosexuals who have been sensitized to such behavior during their prenatal development," he said. "We can only say that it's possibie that some individuals feel different from the earliest childhood."

Buttressing Dr. Marmor's observa-tions; Dr. Green illustrates how difficult it can be to isolate the cause of homosexuality in the family.

For example, he said, a distant father might be said to be the cause of homo-sexuality in his child—but at the same time a boy inclined toward homosex-uality might find his father growing increasingly distant.

And Dr. Green sees his own research with homosexual parents who raise heterosexual children as further support for questioning the role of the family in causing homosexuality.

But Dr. Green does feel that it is possible to identify children who are more likely than others to become homosexual, He said that many, although far from all, male homosexuals describe their grade school years as having been a time when they preferred the clothing toys, activities and companionship of girls and in some cases they say they felt that they would have liked to have been girls.

In light of that "prejudice," a number of psychiatrists and psychologists interviewed found it ironic that parents. often seemed to be telling children that the parents feared heterosexuality even

Tycoon's 80th Birthday, Guess Who Pops Out of the Ca

BY ENID NEMY

If you can believe a 1,000-pound cake, 6 feet in diameter and 12 feet high, fitted inside with a little air-vented room, furnished with an easy chair and two lights, then you can believe Bob Hope popping out of it. Which is exactly what happened last night in the middle of the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Mr. Hope was billed as "La Surprise de l'Anniversaire" of Nathan Cummings's 80th birthday party to himself, a maxi-intimate event arranged by the gregarious and peppery industrialist for 700 people nearest, dearest and most important to him, socially and commercially.

The entertainer's presence in the cake was almost as big a surprise to him as it was to the guests. He had entertained at Mr. Cummings's 75thbirthday party in the very same ball-room but, he said, he'd never made an entrance in a cake.

Hope Springs Internal

"Never before," he said firmly, and then paused to amend the statement. least not since I performed under the name of Sally Rand."

Mr. Hope had been scheduled to spend the early part of last evening as a guest at the table of honor. At the last minute it was decided that he would eat in his hotel room and make his first appearance out of the frosting,

So after dinner, and midway through the evening, the eight-tiered cake, loaded with Grand Marnier and topped with buttercream, was wheeled out from behind the Waldorf's moiré curtains, and a section of it swung away-well, such things never happened to your Sara Lee cake!

But then, you aren't the man who built the Consolidated Foods Corporation, and Sara Lee isn't one of the more than 100 companies of which you are honorary chairman.

As Mr. Cummings would be the first to tell you, he did not achieve his success by thinking small or, for that matter, by hiding his companies' lights under bushels of anything. So no one was too astonished, when they walked into the ballroom antegration for contains the party shaped. rooms for cocktails, to see ribboned and ballooned baskets laden with commercial products representing the companies that provided the wherewithal that provided the party.

There was a big Idaho potato (Idaho Frozen Foods), sugar packets (Union Sugar), a plastic Popsicle, a soft drink can (Shasta Beverages), a pair of gloves (Aris), a small gold-colored model of a vacuum cleaner (Electrolux), toy trains and cars (Iyco Industries), canned sausages (Bryan Packing), brushes (Fuller Brush) and dummy packets of wieners and bologna (E. Kahn). There were other things as well but you've got the idea.

The hotel provided the pate-stuffed mushrooms, the little spinach pies, the cheese puffs and the crudités for cocktails, but the fresh shrimp and salmon came from Booth Fisheries and if you've guessed that it's part of the conglomerate, right.

Enough of products and on to people, many of whom flew in especially for

"I wouldn't have missed it," said Sir Charles Clore, the British industrialist. "We were at the 75th party; it was lovely." said Magda Braggiotti of Milan, who flew over with her husband, Enrico, the general manager of Banca

Commerciale Italiana, Baron Edmond de Rothschild and his wife, Nadine, came in from Paris, and Washington guests included Jacques Rosciusko-Morizet, the French Ambassador to the United States, and his wife, Marianne, and Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli Ambassador, and his wife,

Other Notables

Also on hand were Mr. Cummings's former wife, Joanne, who wore red, one of the evening's more popular colors: his three brothers and a sister from Montreal; his children, Beatrice Mayer and Herbert K. Cummings of Chicago and Alan H. Cummings of Palm Beach, Fla.; assorted grandchildren; Senator and Mrs. Jacob K. Javits and Mayor and Mrs. Beame.

Executives and industrialists included Dan Mahoney of Norton Simon; Leonard Goldenson of American Broadcasting Companies; Philip Barach of United States Shoe; John H. Bryan Jr. of Consolidated Foods; Charles G. Bluhdorn of Guif & Western Industries; Oscar Wyatt of Houston's Coastal States Gas; Douglas Dillon of Dillon Reed & Company; Edgar Bronfman of Seagrams and Henry Heinz.

The theme of the party was silver and gold, on the theory that 80 de-serves them both. Each of the tables in the tinsel-draped ballroom was covered in either gold or silver lame and centered with a mirrored disk and basket holding votive candles, two dozen red roses and not so little gold or silver palm trees.

The roses were scheduled to be sent to Mount Sinai Hospital after the party (Mr. Cummings donated a basic sciences building to the hospital and, earlier this week, dedicated a plaza, with two sculptures, in the heart of the Medical Center complex.)

The tablecloths, which were rolled into the hotel on special racks to al-leviate the need for pressing, will be given to a charitable organization for use at benefits. But during the evening they were a perfect foil for the glittering lames, fluttering chiffons and explosions of color on such as Malou rels, Jean Deems, Dru Heinz, Mil-cred Hilson, Lee Copley Thaw, Robin Duke, Cecile Zilkha, Livia Weintraub, Frances Loeb, Kay Meehan and Marina

It's That Time of the Year Again For Well-Heeled Santas

By LAWRENCE VAN GELDER

Anyone who woke up this morning suffused with radiant lassitude at the thought that all of 74 days remain 'til Christmas might think again.

Think again, that is, if this year's Christmas shopping plans were built around the outré annual His and Her Gift that is the cynosure of the Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalogue.

For those who may have returned recently from a half-century of trolling for smelts off Tierra del Fuego, perhaps it should be explained first that the Neiman-Marcus Christmas Book, to give it its proper title, is to the Sears Roebuck catalogue what the Book of Kells is to McGuffey's Reader.

Pure Bloodlines

Calculated to whet the covetousness of the million consumers to whom, it is addressed by the Dallasbased department store, this year's 111-page work is, as usual, of no little interest to shoppers. But zoologists might also want to spare it a

This year's His and Hers Gift is a pair of 6-month-old buffalo calves, complete with a certificate attesting to the purity of their bloodline, which will be delivered "anywhere in the coterminus United States." There are, of course, a couple of

Those who want to give good homes to these animals (Bison Bison to the scientific trade), which will weigh in at a ton or more each when fully grown, have less than 71 days to do their shopping.

Confronted with such a public-service announcement, there are those post-Dickensian grouches who will say, "If I want to give a buffalo, I'll slip someone an old nickel."

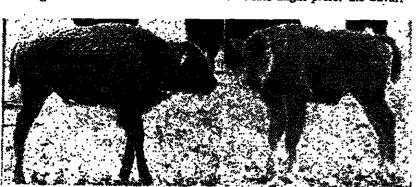

Neiman-Marcus has thought of that, too. A roll of 40 buffalo nickels, dated 1938, said to be the last year the herd roamed the United States mint, is also available to catalogue shoppers. No, the 40 nickels are not available for their face value of $2. Because they are brilliant, uncirculated coins, they are priced at $450.

For the Children

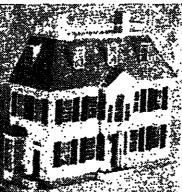

A compromise of sorts is to be found among the children's gifts on pages 104 and 105. It is a "nearly life-size" plush reproduction of the American buffalo (the aforementioned. Bison Bison. Imported from France, where the Old West still apparently rides the crest of the nouvelle vague, this toy is priced at

Speaking of housing stock, Sakowitz, the rival of Neiman-Marcus from Houston, is not to be outdone, offering a reproduction of an American Georgian house for $6,000. It's scaled one-inch to the foot.

Practice Sessions

For a thousand dollars less, according to the Sakowitz catalogue. one can spend five games with the Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, participating in prac-tice sessions, pregame activities, strategy sessions, announcing and broadcasting. The money also fetches a uniform, and Sakowitz, taking to fine print, disclaims responsibility if one of the Aeros should decide to play "The Saber Dance" on the lucky recipient's nose with a hockey

In terms of sheer money, two of the Sakowitz gifts are standouts. If you've got one acre of land and million, a Disneyland designer will fix you up with an amusement park,

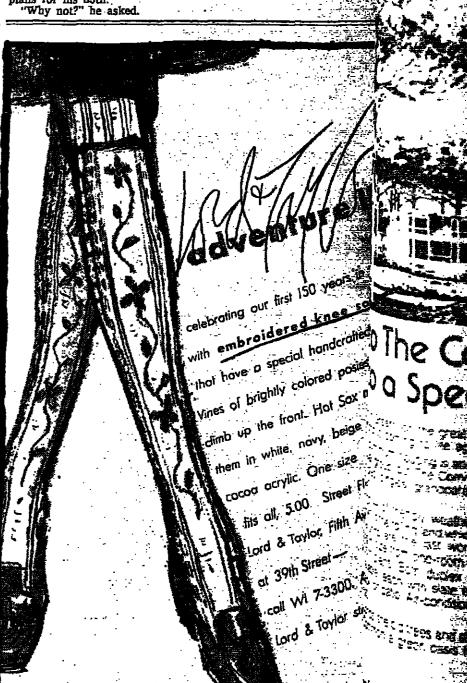

Or how would you like a cubic foot of United States currency? Depending on denomination, that could be as much as $10 million.

Sakowitz is charging only $50.

Oh, one little thing. The greenback have been macerated by the mint. Scrooge may have been right.

Both managers left themselves open to second-guessing with their pitching choices, Billy Martin because Figueroa had faltered in recent starts, including the second game of these playoffs, and Whitey Herzog because Leonard had lasted less than three innings in that same game.

"You got's so with the guys who got you here," explained Martin, who was looking for his first pennant as a manager in three playoff tries. "If I sidn't, it would be like taking out my shortstop or second baseman or third baseman or catcher and putting somebudy else in there; you can't do it."

in selecting Leonard, a 17-game win-ner, Herzog passed over Paul Split-torff, who pitched 5%; shutout innings in relief of Leonard last Sunday night: Marty Pattin, who pitched to one batter in the third game, and Al Fitzmarris, who hadn't pitched to anyone.

Split had to warm up yesterday [during the Royals' 7-4 victory]." Her-zog explained. "And even if I started him tonight. I might not get five in-nings out of but. If I need him, though, he'll be the first one up." Herzog needed Splittorff - and

Rivers Opens With Triple

The Royals took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when George Brett dou-bled for his 19th hit in 28 career times at bat against Figueroa and John May-berry followed with a fly ball that de-scended just behind the right-field fence for his first home run in two months. Oscar Gemble, the right fielder, leaped high, but came down with only a shrug

That marked the fourth straight game in which the Royals, who had staggered to the Western Division title with nine losses and 18 runs in their last 11 games, had taken a lead in the first or second inning. This one, though, didn't last long.

Mickey Rivers, a 312 hitter during the season who had collected just four hits in 13 previous rimes at bat in the series, led off the first inning with a fly ball over Tem Poquette's head in left field that became a triple.

Roy White promptly sent the speedy Rivers home with a grounder deep in the hole at short that he beat out for a single. White then stole second and stopped at third as Taurman Munson sharply lined a single to left. At that point, Leonard stopped pitching—at Herzog's request.

After throwing only nine pitches in the most important start of his 25year-old life, the Brooklyn native got pats on his behind from Herzog and Buck Martinez, the catcher, and ran to the dugout.

Splittorf was the new pitcher, and as he warmed up, members of the ground crew hurriedly tried to clear the outfield of all the debris the zealous fans had sent cascading from the stands.

Once Splittorf and the workers were finished. Chris Chambliss lofted a fly to left field that brough White home with the tying run.

Rivers, who with Munson and Chambliss started the Yankees on their way to the Eastern Division championship with their early-season batting efforts, started the third with a single to center. Splittorff then became so en-grossed in holding the base-stealing inreat close to first that he wasted his good pitches on throws to first and threw four balls to White.

Chambliss's second run batted in of the game gave him seven for the series and tied Henry Aaron's cham-pionship series record. Munson and Chambliss later were to break Pete Rose's playoff record of nine hits.

Figueroa wasn't setting any records, but he was setting down Royals. He retired three in a row in the third and again in the fourth, and after Martinez singled with one out in the Fifth, he induced Al Cowens to ground into a double play.

When the game ends, the two managers and the players Questions from the assembled press are repeated into a microphone by Bob Fishel of the American League office and are piped with the replies into the press box for the henefit of those still working up there. A fan attending the session would marvel at the searching, incisive, trenchant quality of the questions, and at the wit that illumines the answers like a lambent flame.

Sports The Times

The truth, these are not impromptu. Questions and answers are composed in advance with blank spaces for the names, which are filled in as the game progresses. Before the final playoff between the Yankees and Kansas City Royals last night. The New York Times obtained a copy of the script prepared for the postgame interview, which follows: FISHEL: Gentlemen (Whitey Herzog-Billy Martin.)

LOSING MANAGER: First of all I want to congratulate (Billy-Whitey.) He knows I'll be rooting for him in the World Series. Second of all, I wanta say I'm proud of my club. They're a great bunch of guys and they come to play or they wouldn't of brought us this far. They got nothing to be ashamed of. That ball of (Name) in the sixth, if it had of dropped in we got their pitcher out of there and it's a whole new ball game, but those are the breaks. It's part of

Q. Did you consider pinch-hitting for (Name) in the eighth?

A. No, because he's the guy that's been doing the job for me all year. Maybe he hasn't hit for too big of an average but he's a guy that comes to play. He knows how to protect that plate and I wasn't going away from him after he brought us this far.

Q. How do you feel about playing the Big Mean Machine, and what strategy are you planning against Cincinnati?

A. First of all, we look forward to playing 'em because who performed key roles are herded into a room below that's the name of the game. They're the champions, and by the flower of American letters. If you want to be the best you got to beat the champions. Second of all, as far as strategy, we're gonna Series the way we've played in our own league all yearone game at a time.

Q. Who's your opening pitcher?

A Haven't decided yet. I'll talk to (Name), and we'll decide who we think can do the best job for us. The pitchers understand that we've brought 'em this far and we'll be deciding what we think is best for the whole club.

Q. How close were you to changing pitchers in the sixth tonight? Was (Name) getting tired? A.He said he felt all right. I only went out there to remind him he had that fast man on first base and not to let him take too big of a lead. I wasn't thinking about taking him out because he's the guy that's been doing the job for me all year and I'm not going away from him now. If he was a little tired, well, if he don't get out of that inning, he's gonna have all winter to rest, because there's no tomorrow.

Q. Do you feel you have momentum going for you now, coming off this game into the World Series?

A. Hopefully, yes. You got to respect the Cincinnati club, they're the champions, but they had a five-day layoff last week and now they've just been sitting around since Tuesday. Hot hitters can cool off in that time, and you saw for yourself tonight what we can do when we put it all

Q. Tell us a little about what you were looking for when you were up there. Were you trying to hit to right?

A. I was just up there swinging. I haven't been swinging the bat all that good lately and I must've changed my stance five or six times before I got to feeling comfortable up there tonight. I'm just sorry it took me so long.

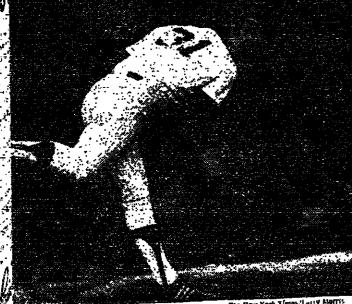

Q. How did their pitcher compare with the last time you hit against him? Was he as sharp tonight?

A. He had good stuff but he was getting his breaking stuff up tonight. I hit a fastball across the letters.

Q. How do you feel about playing the Big Mean Machine?

A. It's kind of like a dream. I've been reading about those guys for years, Bench and Morgan and those guys. They're great ballplayers but they still put their pants on one leg at a time.

Figueroa Alters His Routine By GERALD ESKENAZI

But who is John (Dino) Dennis any way, and what makes him think that he has any chance against George Foreman in their 10-round heavyweight fight tomorrow night that will be nationally televised?

"I ain't no tuneup for anybody," the 24-year-old Dennis said emphatically 24-year-old Dennis said emphasically today, after concluding training for the biggest bout of his career. "I proved that in my other fights, and I told that to George. He knows it, too."

The Foreman-Dennis fight will follow

a 15-round world lightweight title bout between Roberto Duran of Panama, the champion, who was still two pounds overweight today, and Alvaro Rojas of Costa Rica. To accommodate television, which will air the debate between Vice-Presidential candidates Walter Mondale and Robert Dole tomorrow at 9:30 P.M., the fight telecast at the new Sportatorium will begin at 7:30 (Channel 2, New York).

Foreman was relaxed, confident and also overweight at 231½ pounds today, perhaps thinking of bigger paydays against Ken Norton. The 6-foot-3-inch Dennis skipped today's weigh-in but expects to come in at 215 tomorrow, "the heaviest I've ever been, and the strongest.

"I was 206 for my last fight, and I was too weak," added Dennis, who has 28 victories and one draw on a record that includes 14 knockouts. "I'm really looking forward to this fight. This is the hardest I've ever trained and I've made a lot of sacrifices.

One of the sacrifices was being away. Foreman two years ago from his wife and 10 month-old daughter, Amy, for almost a month. Dennislives in Attleboro, a short ride from Providence, R.L. but trained in the Pocenos and Miami Beach.

1. You pay less each month. So you have more each month. If you're like most people, you may think a 36-month loan is the most sensible way to finance a car. Not so. On any amount over $3,500, you can get a Citibank 48-Month Car Loan and pay less each month about $30 less on a $3,500 loan.

And because you pay less, you have more to sock away or invest or spend on other things. 2. You pay a lower annual percentage rate

PARIS, Oct. 14 (UPI)-Arnold Palmer tried to set a record of sorts today by driving a golf ball off the second level of the Eiffel Tower and bent his driver in the process. The American golf pro, in Paris to compete in the Lancome Trophy tournament later in the day, braved vertigo, a cold rain and crosswinds of 50 miles

Well, the weather wasn't too good for it," said Palmer, on being told his fourth and final ball-the only one to be recovered-had traveled 277 yards. Tony Jacklin of Britain hit a ball 389 yards off the top of the Harbor Center office tower into Vancouver Harbor last April.

He said afterward he was not afraid of the height, 377 feet, but confessed he was cramped on his exposed little platform on the Tower's south side.

"We should have left more room said Palmer, who gave the Tower's rail-ing a hefty whack on the follow-through of his fourth and last attempt, bending the shaft of his driver.

ST. NOM - LA - BRETECHE, France, Oct. 14 (UPI)—Severiano Ballesteros of Spain and Gary Player of South Africa carded one-over-par 73's today and shared the first-round lead in the $40,000 Lancome Trophy invitation golf tourney.

Ballesteros, paired with Arnold Palmer in the eight-man tournament, bogeyed the first three holes on a wet, windy day at the 7,020-yard St. Nom links west of Paris.

U.S. Trials in World Tourney

PENINA, Portugal, Oct. 14 (UPI)— Britain-Ireland and South Africa re-mained tied for the lead today at the end of the second round of the men's world anateur team golf championship with 443's. The United States foursome fell 10 shots behind.

Although there are 38 teams of four men each competing at the par-73, 6,940-yard layout, only the best three scores each day count toward the team total. After two rounds, the leaders were four shots up on third place Japan and seven ahead of the Republic of China (Taiman) and the Republic of China (Taiwan) and Australia, tied for

Rhodesia was sixth at 451, Sweden seventh at 452 and the United States in a three-way tie for eighth with Canada and Switzerland at 453.

The low scorer for the second round was Chen Tze-Ming of Taiwan who carded a four-under-par 69.

The Honey Bee. Datsun's lowest priced car. $2844.00

What kind of car can Datsun offer for such a low price? Surprisingly, quite a lot. For example, you get Datsun's durable 5-main-bearing engine, flow-through ventilation, electric rear window defogger, inside hood release, bucket seats up front, and all-vinyl upholstery. You get an EPA mileage estimate of 29 MPG City and 41 Highway. Your actual mileage may differ depending on how and where you drive, the condition of your car and its optional equipment. A brand-new 1976 Datsun for around three grand. Best act quickly, supplies are limited.

Datsun's F-10. America's lowest price front wheel drive wagon for $3399.00

If you've shopped wagons, you know what a bargain F-10 is. Reclining bucket seats, a flat-loading floor, tinted glass, electric rear window defogger, power assisted front disc brakes. In short, a lot of the nice little things that make a car "liveable." Some people ask you to pay extra for them. Don't you do it. Because they're all standard at no extra cost on the F-10.

710. Datsun's family-sized sizzler.

If you're looking for spacious accommodations at family rates, the 710 has it all. Its brawny 2000cc overhead cam engine helps make it an outstanding road performer. Loaded with no-cost extras. Comfortable, dependable, economical, in your choice of hardtop, 2- and 4-door sedans, 5-door wagon.

America's #1 Selling Small Pickup.

The one that started the small truck trend. With all the comfort, economy and durability that's made it America's best-selling small pickup for the past 14 years. Your choice of Standard, 7-foot Stretch bed, and exclusive luxurious King Cab models. One of these three is just right for you!

We'll say it again: Why buy a new car at higher '77 prices when you can buy a brand-new value-packed '76 Datsun at the lower '76 price? See your nearby Datsun Dealer. Right now!

Jets Size Up Backfield and Give Giammona a

By AL HARVIN Special to The New York Times

HEMPSTEAD, L.I., Oct. 14-At 5 feet 834 inches and 183 pounds, Lou Giammona has trouble convincing people that he's a football player. However, the rockie from Utah State has made an impression on the man whose decision on that question matters the most. So it was that Coach Lou Holtz of the New York Jets announced today that Giammona would replace Steve Davis as his starting running back alongside Ed Marinaro when the team plays at New England Monday night.

"Lou Giammona is not starting be-cause Steve Davis fumbled twice in the game on Sunday," said Holtz, immediately countering everyone's first as-sumption that Davis, a five-year pro, was being "benched" because of five fumbles in the last three games. "Davis will see a lot of action," said

Holtz. "He is a great back, He's done everything we've asked except for those fumbles. I don't believe there is anything such as a fumbler in football, unless it's a guy who is more concerned about protecting his body, and Davis is certainly not that way. I don't even like to talk about fumbles because I sometimes talking about it can make things worse."

"I don't mind talking about it as long as I can alleviate the problem," said Davis, last year's third leading rusher for the lets, who was upset over having lost his starting job, but apparently was not bitter over it. "The coach came over to my locker after the game and said, 'You can't keep the ball on the ground and win,' but he told me he still believed in me.

"I know it looks worse because I'm a veteran, but I've never fumbled as much in my career. "I know I use my arms a for for leverage when I'm running. I feel that if I just go out in practice and work on it, it will come.

Ali Testifies on Illegal Blows

Muhammad Ali answered questions, analyzed a videotape of his fight with Chuck Wepner and demonstrated illegal punches while testifying for four hours yesterday in the Manhattan trial of a $20 million defamation suit filed

The referee, Tony Perez, testified earlier that Ali had defamed him by asserting in a television interview that Perez had permited Wepner to hit Ali with illegal rabbit punches and kidney punches throughout the fight last Returning for a second day of testimony. Ali said that Perez had permit-ted Wepner to hit him with 154 illegal punches during the fight and that he continued to feel pain as a result of the illegal punches to the back of the neck and the kidneys.

The heavyweight champion stood up, took off his suit jacket and thumped his right hand against his right side to show the jury of two men and four

Spectators crowded into the 15th floor courtroom to watch Ali perform as a witness in the civil trial, which is being conducted by Judge Milton Pol-impressed with some of the other things he saw Giammona do in the films of Holtz's first victory as a Jets' coach.

"We were worried about Giammona largely because of his size," said Holtz. When the Jets had (Matt) Snell and (Emerson) Boozer, who would stuff those linebackers, they didn't get blitzed as much. Well, Lou did one of the best jobs of picking up the linebacker I've seen. We were worried about the blitz and I'm sure New England will blitz us too."

Although known chiefly for his ball-carrying ability in college, where he ran the ball about 40 times a game and smashed nearly all Utah State's records as he led the nation in rushing with 1,984 yards in 1974, the Jets' staff also was Interested in Giammodula hiller to look paths they denoted na's ability to block when they drafted him eighth. "In college I only weighed around 172 pounds, but I've put on some weight since then and that helps me out up here," said Giammona, who has learned to live with the credibility gap between his size and profession.

"Sometimes I'll go into a bar or res-taurant with my "Jets" sweatshirt on, and someone will say, "Where did you buy that?" said Giammona, "In a pizza place one time I told a little kid I played for the Jets and he said, 'Sure, and so do I.' It even happened to me in college. I remember my last game away against San Diego State. I was getting off the bus and I heard someone say, 'Who's that little equipment boy.'"

ARGAIN: STILL AT 76 PRICES.

While '77 trucks are being introduced with their '77 prices, Toyota still has brand new '76 trucks at '76 prices. Not just any old trucks, but winners. More and more people are buying Toyota trucks than ever before. In fact, our sales are growing faster than any truck in our class. And when you see what others are giving you at '77 prices a '76 Toyota truck is even a better bargain.

The better bargain is quality. Toyota trucks are built tough. The Toyota truck power plant is a sophisticated 2.2 liter, hemi-head design with transistorized ignition. It develops the highest torque rating of any truck in its

The better bargain is economy. Just as important as Toyota's low purchase price is its total economy. Other trucks may offer so called deals with huge savings. But those same trucks may eventually eat up dollars with high operating costs or low resale value. The total economy of a Toyota can help keep your new truck bargain a bargain. Check resale values at your Toyota dealer. You'll like what you see.

The better bargain is choice. Toyota makes four tough pick-ups, two Regular Beds and two Long Beds. The Long Beds have a cargo area over 7 feet long. The SR-5 versions offer the utility of a truck and sporty features like 5-speed overdrive transmission, Hi-back bucket seats, and radial-ply tires. See your Toyota dealer today. He's stocked up to offer you a choice of trucks. After all, you should be able to pick your bargains.

Giants Mapping a Defensive Shift; Two Free Agents Added to Squad

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y., Oct. 14-Yesterday it was the quarterback. Today it was the defense.

The Giants are making changes, which is normal for a team with an 0-5 won-lost record. Some of the changes Coach Bill Arnsparger made today were the result of injuries-Henry Stuckey and Bob Schmit were placed on the injured reserve list and Rick Volk and John Tate, free agents, were signed.

But the big change for Sunday's game with the Vikings in Minnesota may not be Norm Snead for Craig Morton at quarterback. Arnsparger, the inventor of the "53 Defense" when he was an assistant coach with the Miami Dolphins, is again toying with a three-linemen, four-linebacker defense.

Most National Football League teams use the traditional 4-3 defense, with four linemen. But the 3-4 helped turn around the Houston Oilers, New England Patriots and New York Jets, and Thomas Alva Edison couldn't have loved the light bulb more than Arn-sparger likes the 3-4.

When he first took over the Giants in 1974, he installed the 53 defense and before the season was over had to abandon it. The Giants did not have a Bob Matheson, whose Jersey number with the Dolphins gave the defense its name, and the linemen, who found themselves double-teamed, objected strongly.

Carson Considered as Starter

The Giants do have a No. 53, Harry Carson and Arnsparger said today the rookie from South Carolina State might start Sunday. Carson, a fourth-round draft choice, played mostly at middle linebacker in defensive drills today. with Brian Kelley moving over to the weakside, replacing Pat Hughes. But Amsparger said, "We're going to use all four of them." The Giants did use all four-and on occasion even Troy Archer, the No. 1 draft choice, who normally is a defen-sive end—in practice today and against the Dallas Cowboys last Sunday. After the Cowboys had taken a 17-0 half-time lead, the Giants used mostly a 3-4 defense in the second half and contained the Dallas attack very well.

But it's not a 53 defense, which was based on Matheson's ability either to rush the passer or drop back for pass coverage. In the Giants' new 3-4, any of the linebackers can rush or drop back, "It's that element of surprise that makes it a great defense," said Marty Schottenheimer, the linebacker coach. "It's also flexible."

"Right now, it's at the imbecile stage," Arnsparger said jokingly. "I don't know which way it's going to go. We'll have to wait and see. And we'll still use the 4-3 a lot, too."

This last comment will make at least a couple of linemen happy: Dave Galla-gher, the left tackle who is the man replaced by the fourth linebacker, and John Mendenhall, the right tackle who has to move over to the tough nose-guard position on the 3-4.

Mendenhall was one of the most vocal; critics of the 3-4 in 1974 and he still doesn't like it. "When I'm playing the 4-3, I've got an alley to defend," he said, "and nobody ever runs up that Part of the reason the Giants are 0-5 has been injuries. Stuckley, the regular right cornerback whose right knee has allowed him to play only six games in the last two seasons, joins Bobby Brook, the regular left cornerback, and two other defensive backs, Charlie Ford and Robert Giblin, on the injured reserve list.

Happy to Get Volk

Arnsparger said he was lucky to get Volk, a 31-year-old safety who three and whose first defensive coach at Baltimore was a man named Arnsparger.

Volk, who had been sent on waivers. to the Denver Broncos after last season and then cut in the preseason, was almost signed by the Dolphins this year when Bryant Salter threatened not to report to Miami. "I should still be in Baltimore," Volk said, "but I guess Joe Thomas [the Colts' general manager] didn't think that."

Tate, a middle-round draft choice of the Giants last year who spent the season on the injured reserve list, was cut by the team in preseason. He re-places Schmidt, who, like Stuckey, may have to undergo a knee operation.

Dartmouth-Harvard Contest A Must-Win Game for Each

By DEANE McGOWEN

The Dartmouth freshman class is hot under its collective collar. And perhaps Dartmouth's varsity football team will be just as riled when it meets Harvard's defending Ivy League champions to-morrow in Hanover, N. H. Tonight is

Dartmouth Night, and the Class of 1980 had built its usual tower of railroad ties 80 high in prepara-tion. But some one torched the tower Thursday eve-ning. The Class of '80 went to work again, and hoped to complete the new tower before the expected crowd of ered on the Green for the pep rally. Ever since 1968, the winner of the Dartmouth-Harvard game has gone on to win or share the league championship. Now both teams go into the game in must-win situations. Yale defeated Dartmouth last week while Cornell stunned Harvard, leaving Brown and Princeton at the top with 2-1 who-lost league marks. Dartmouth, Cornell, Harvard and Yale shared second place with I-l records. Columbia and Penn bring up the rear with 1-2 marks.

As Coach Jake Crouthamel put it,

"Instead of being alone at the top, we're in the middle of a six-way scram-ble."

Oberg Is Injured

Dartmouth's offense may be severely hampered. Curt Oberg, the fullback and leading ground-gainer and scorer, has a strained shoulder. He has not prac-ticed all week, and even if he does play, it will be at less than peak effi-Coach Joe Restic of Harvard said

"We're going to be ready, no question of that. Dartmouth has really been scoring, so our defense will have to come up with an outstanding effort. We simply can't let them get the jump to contain. It could be a difficult task. Kubacki is second on Harvard's career list in passing (1,826 yards) and total offense (2,493 yards).

Jim Kubacki, the Crimson quarter-back, is the man Dartmouth will have to contain. It could be a difficult task.

The weather played a major role in the defeats of both teams last week. That prompted Crouthamel to say, "Considering we scored 14 points [against Yale] and Harvard got only 3 [against Cornell], we may turn on the underground sprinkler system at Memorial Field during the game."

In other games, Cornell faces Brown in Ithaca, N.Y., and Columbia meets Yale in the Bowl. Princeton and undedium while Penn faces Lafayette at feated Colgate meet in Palmer Sta-Of Brown's loss to Penn, Coach George Seifert commented, "They're going to be upset. They will feel their backs are to the wall. We'll be facing a determined team."

But Seifert's team may still be sky high after beating Harvard and winning its second contest in the last 14 games. The Big Red has a solid defense, anchored by Terry Lee, the junior linebacker who made 20 unassisted tackles and three assists to blunt Harvard's

John Anderson of Brown feels sure his team will rebound from the Penn defeat. he said, "The Penn loss was the greatest disappointment I've ever had as a coach. Now we have to win every game. And everyone else in the lvy race must have a victory tomorrow to stay in the race."

Hickey Quits Team

Columbia will face Yale without its leading rusher, Jay Hickey. Hickey quit the team yesterday, leaving Bill Campbell to explain: "He has lost his interest in football. He doesn't get the enjoy-ment and satisfaction out of playing anymore." Hickey's teammates were mystified at his action because he was second in the league in rushing and scoring.

Yale will be just that much more difficult for the Lions now, and the Yale defense was awesome against Dartmouth. It is manned by four sophomores, Bill Crowley of Short Hills, N.J., a linebacker; Kurt Nondorf and Steve Skrovan, backs; Bob Skoronski, tackle; two juniors, Dave Humphreville and Keith Bassi, who share the middleguard duties, and Pete Bonacum of Amityville, L.I., a senior who blunted Dartmouth with 13 unassisted tackles, a quarterback sack and a blocked punt.

Columbia has not defeated Yale in the Bowl since 1961 and has not beaten Yale since its 15-14 victory at Baker Field in 1971. Cal Moffie, a sophomore, will start at quarterback for the Lions, but he will be operating behind a make-shift offensive line because of injuries. In fact, Columbia has 14 players on the first and second offensive and defensive units that are either out for the season or a sub-par physically. The crucial spots are at tight end, middle guard and the linebacking posts.

See if the lease we'll write is more right for you.

Before you sign anybody else's car lease, challenge Avis to do better.

There's a good chance we can. Because Avis writes many different kinds of leases, not just a few. So we can write one that's just right

We've got a reputation for trying harder. Make us live up to it.

You'll like riding on our reputation.

4 Dissidents Abroad Named By Winner to Share Award

der prison sentence in their own countries, were designated by Robert L. Bernstein, head of Random House, to share the $1,000 from his 1976 Florina Lasker Civil Liberties Award for 1976. The publishing executive was honored at a Pierre Hotel dinner Wednesday by the New York Civil Liberties Union, which cited his personal and professional decidation "to the rights of men and women everywhere to speak and publish feeting." lish freely."

Noting the "running battle" of the American Civil Liberties Union at home, Mr. Bernstein said that "most of this vigilance stops at our borders." American belief in individual freedom of expression "is not an integral part of our foreign policy," which, Mr. Bernstein said, supports "certain governments that are committing far worse wrongs than the A.C.L.U. protects us against at home."

Defense funds to share in the $1,000 are those of Kim Chi Ha, the South Korean poet; Mihajlo Mihajlov of Yugoslavia, sentenced for articles published by foreign periodicals, including The New York Times; Nelson Mandela, South African opponent of apartheid, and Vladimir Bukovsky, who reported Soviet confinement of political prisoners in mental institutions. Dinner guests included Senator George Mc-Govern, Democrat of South Dakota, and three dissident Soviet writers: Valery Chalidze, Pavel Litvinov and Zhores Medvedev.

In Augusia, Me., Courtland D. Perry, blinded in an explosion at age 17, was confirmed as a District Court judge. Judge Perry, aged 40, is believed to be the first blind member of the state's bench. Judge Perry, who has degrees from the University of Virginia, became a Maine assistant attorney general in 1961 and earned a master's degree from George Washington University on a 1967 educational leave.

When John Hersey Jr., a SoHo painter and loft resident, and Diane Costello, a photographer, were married Tuesday, the civil ceremony and subsequent re-ception at the Plaza were documented on videotape. The "wedding photogra-pher" was Anton Perich, the avantgarde film maker who earned an early reputation as the "bad boy" of late-night cable television. Mr. Hersey, a Yale graduate, had as best man his brother, Baird, a jazz composer-conductor from Boston. News of the wedding was phoned from the Plaza party to his parents, John Hersey, the writer, in New Haven, and Frances Ann Cannon Hersey Dougherty, in the Hamptons. The bridal couple will honeymoon off the New England coast in his sloop, the Hirondelle.

Elizabeth Ray might consider learning to type, the Chicago critics suggested vesterday after viewing her stage debut in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" The role was a stepping-stone to stardom for the late. Jayne Mansfield but Miss Ray was said to be handicapped by "a little Betty. Boop voice" — also described as "a: high, monotone squeak" - as well as by first-night jitters that made her answer doorbells and telephones before they rang Miss Ray brought down Representative Wayne L. Hays, Democrat of Ohio, as a Congressional power as a result of her story of being on his payroll as his mistress. In Chicago, she did not bring down the

A world's auction record for an emerald was set yesterday, according to Sotheby Parke Bernet. A 29.90-carat stone, belonging to Bernice Chrysler Garbisch, was sold by the gallery to an unnamed New York dealer for $450,000. The previous record for an emerald was $385,000 in 1972, when Enid Amenberg Baupt sold the 34.30 Kennedy emerald (no connection with the Presidential family). Mrs. Garbisch, daugh-ter of the late Walter P. Chrysler, the automobile industrialist, and her husband, Edgar, live in New York and on Maryland's Eastern Shore. The previous day her 38.I-caret diamond was sold to a European dealer (by telephone) for $850,000. This, however, was no record -only the third-highest auction price for a diamond, a Sotheby Parke Bernet spokesman said.

Dame Edith Evans Is Dead at 88; A Legend of the English Theater

By JOSEPH COLLINS

LONDON, Oct. 14-Dame Edith Evans, a legend of the English theater in her own lifetime, died at her home in Cranbrook, Kent, today. She was 88 years old. brook, Kent, today, and was so year on.
She died after a brief illness.

away with all the acting awards as the lonely, unwanted Margaret Ross in Bryan Forhes's movie "The Whisperers." She died only a few months after Dame Sybil Thorndike, her great contemporary. They were widely considered the two greatest actresses of this century.

Wide Range of Parts

Dame Edith's talent shone in a wide range of parts, but perhaps never so-brightly as in comedy—Shaw, Wilde, and the Restoration comedies, which sprang into sophisticated, bawdy life after the monarchy was restored in England and Charles II escended the throne. A role with which her name will always be linked was the formidable Lady Bracknell in Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." When her prospective son-in-law confesses that he did not know his parents and had been found in a station baggage s in Other Areas room in a handbag, she exploded: "a rear, the North Central he-and-basag!" As in all her work, it was difficult to be sure where pure teclinique stopped and innate artistry alone took over. She was as at home with the soliloquies of Shakespeare, giving them her own lift, as she was with the mocking brittleness of Millament.

Viadimir Visson, who for 32 years was director of exhibitions for the Wildenstein Galleries in New York, died at his home, 315 East 68 Street, on Wednesday. He was 71 years old, and had been in poor health for several years. The exhibitions he organized at Wilden-stein's, especially those of the Impressionist and Post-Impressionist painter, rivaled those of the major museums, and many of the catalogues he produced for them have become permanent works of reference. He retired from Wildenstein's in 1974. Mr. Visson was a familiar and muchbeloved figure in the New York art world during his long tenure at Wildenstein's-an ebullient storyteller with an inexhaustible supply of anecdotes about collectors, critics and museum curators. His task of organizing the big loan shows of French masters that for many years have been a regular feature of the fall and spring art seasons in New York kept him in close touch with the country's leading private collectors and museum directors, and he had many amusing stories to tell

A Handout Is No Policy

In choosing Yonkers as the site for the signing of the law to extend Federal revenue-sharing, President Ford has unwittingly turned a political campaign gesture into a public reminder of a flawed Federal program. While posing as a Chief Executive rushing to an embattled city's rescue, Mr. Ford merely underscored the inadequacy of his Administration's approach to urban problems-in Yonkers and elsewhere.

Like New York City, Yonkers has been teetering on the brink of bankruptcy, and only severe austerity measures have prevented the city from going over the edge. Under such conditions of fiscal-strain, the President may be right in expecting some short-term political gratitude from the people of Yonkers in return for his $1.5 million gift—Yonkers' share in the $6 billion to be distributed among 39,000 state and local governments. But only the most naïve or desperate taxpayers of Yonkers and scores of other cities under siege are likely to be persuaded that these handouts are a suitable substitute for a Federal policy designed to avert the drift toward insolvency with its inevitable consequences of urban decay, human hardships and social injustice.

President Nixon introduced revenue-sharing as the cornerstone of his "New Federalism." A case could indeed be made that some of the existing categorical Federal grants had become too rigid, while others needed review and updating. Some form of revenuesharing might indeed have helped to improve the lot hard-pressed localities—provided that it was administered with sufficient safeguards to assure its equitable use for sound and social purposes.

But it soon became evident that the program was primarily intended as a device to scuttle those categorical programs which were aimed at tackling urban, educational and other needs by giving priority to upgrading the poor and eliminating the breeding grounds of poverty. The substitution of general aid or of block grants merely gave state and local political establishments more money with which to conduct business as usual. It was a return to the trickle-down theory of Federal aid, with added power given to those politicians who controlled the trickle.

Earlier this year, the National Revenue-Sharing Monitoring Project, a coalition of leading public interest groups, cited a wide variety of local case studies that showed how the funds had been used "to prop up antiquated state and local government structures and tax systems" and perpetuated racial discrimination in municipal and state employment practices. As a spokesman for the Yonkers chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People put it this week, "almost all of the revenue-sharing money is used . . . to pay the salaries of firemen and policemen, but there is only one black fireman in a force of 40 and only 16 black policemen out of another 400." When President Ford tried to make the signing ceremony in Yonkers a symbol of his urban awareness, he in reality advertised the long-term failure by the Nixon and Ford Administrations to comprehend the nature of the urban crisis. The cities need a Federal policy on welfare, education, health care, transportation and a host of other problems; what revenue-sharing gives them instead is an inadequate handout to the keepers of the

Enough Is Enough

More than four decades ago, the Scottsboro case came to stand as the basic metaphor for the injustices inflicted on black citizens by the American judicial system. It was classic. In the spring of 1931, nine young black men were accused of raping two white women on a freight train in the South. Though one of the women later recanted and became an active participant in the defense of the "Scottsboro Boys," the nine defendants were, nevertheless, pursued remorselessly by the processes of -Alabama "justice."

All that painful history is brought to mind because it now turns out that one of those defendants. Clarence Norris, has been living peacefully here in New York for the last twenty-three years, but still needs an Alabama partion to clear his record. Mr. Norris was convicted three times-the first two convictions were overturned by the Supreme Court-spent fifteen years in prison, five of them on death row, and was finally paroled on condition that he work for a certain lumber yard for 40 cents an hour. The employers turned out to be abusive as well as penurious so Mr. Nortis fled to Ohio, then to New York.

Now 64, Mr. Norris is applying for an Alabama pardon and is supported by, among others, Alabama Attorney General William Baxley. But Norman F. Ussery, head of the state's Board of Pardons and Parole, says that no pardon can be considered for "a man on the run," Well, maybe not, but considering what he ran from, it is easy to understand Mr. Norris' reluctance to return to Alabama to clear up the technicality that worries Mr. Ussery.

Attorney General Baxley understands that, considering the history of the case, a little common sense and compassion are required to redress an old and ugly balance. Mr. Ussery would do well to consider the Norris application in that spirit.

France's Nuclear Turn

International measures to discourage the spread of atomic weapons and, especially, of the civilian nuclear technology and equipment contributing to proliferation are apparently arousing new and belated interest on the part of the French Government, a principal foot-dragger on nuclear controls. The first policy statement of President Giscard d'Estaing's new cabinet-level committee on nuclear export policy raises some hope of progress in this direction.

Taken together, the somewhat delphic policy principles imply that France will no longer export plants and technology for reprocessing reactor wastes to obtain separated plutonium, which can be used to make bombs as well as power reactor fuel. The statement promises purchasers of French nuclear power plants that France will supply them with nuclear fuel, meet their "legitimate" needs for technology transfer and provide other nuclear fuel cycle "services" for them. Countries thus . guaranteed adequate supplies of enriched uranium or other nonexplosive fuel for their reactors should have no "legitimate" need for reprocessing technology.

If this new policy of restraint is confirmed, it will be a welcome advance. In guidelines agreed on by the 13 main nuclear supplier countries, France and West Germany accepted tighter safeguards but rejected American proposals for a moratorium on sales of reprocessing plants. The new French statement indicates willingness to discuss American proposals for multinational nuclear fuel and waste disposal centers, proposals designed to head off national reprocessing facilities.

Unfortunately, the sharpest divergence between French and American nuclear policy-France's sale of a plutonium reprocessing plant to Pakistan—is not resolved by the new French policy declaration. Mr. Giscard d'Estaing's difficult Gaullist allies unwisely have turned it into a nationalist issue and French officials have indicated that this prior sale will not be cancelled, as both of the American Presidential candidates have urged.

The Pakistan deal and the West German sale of a plutonium reprocessing plant to Brazil were clearly offered to break into a world nuclear power reactor market dominated by American companies, which are barred from such sales. Unless a fair share of that market is permitted other nuclear supplier countries, under some kind of international sharing agreement, such dangerous "sweeteners" undoubtedly will recur in the course of commercial competition.

Nobel Research...

Since the days of President Lyndon B. Johnson, rising impatience with basic medical research has been evident among those in both executive and legislative branches of Government who control the distribution of research funds in Washington. In effect, the demand has been that scientists work directly on such great tasks as, say, curing cancer and not "waste time" on peripheral matters whose "practical" importance is not apparent.

This year's two Nobel Prizes in medicine might almost have been designed to provide an answer and rebuke to those with more power than vision who fail to understand that basic research yields the richest dividends.

In the early 1960's, Dr. Baruch S. Blumberg was investigating the seemingly abstruse topic of genetic variation in the disease susceptibility of different people. In the process, he found a strange protein in the blood of an Australian aborigine, a protein he named Australia antigen. Today that same substance is usually called hepatitis B surface antigen. Blood for transfusion is now routinely tested for this protein to prevent hepatitis B infection. Thousands of cases of hepatitis are thus avoided each year by blood recipients. But when Dr. Blumberg originally carried on the research he did not have the faintest idea that he was making a fundamental discovery with regard to hepatitis.

Back in the 1950's, Dr. D. Carleton Gajdusek went to New Guinea and became interested in kuru, the laughing disease, that was destroying an obscure Stone Age people, the Fore. From that work has come the discovery of and fundamental understanding about a new type of slow-acting virus that can produce brain degeneration and that may be involved in multiple sclerosis and other major neurological diseases.

What the Nobel Prize committee seems to be telling the financiers and directors of research is that in the long run nothing is more practical than basic studies whose ultimate implications none can foresee.

... Prickly Laureate

On receiving the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics yesterday, Prof. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago displayed his characteristic gall by expressing disdain for the very jury of the Swedish Royal Academy of Science that had awarded him the honor. It was not that, like Groucho Marx, Friedman would refuse to join any club that would have him, but rather that he would not accept "the particular seven people who make these awards as the jury to which I would want to submit my scientific work."

Professor Friedman has long contended that there is such a thing as a "positive" scientific economics that exists quite apart from the realms of politics and morals. The Nobel jury clearly conquered any doubts it had on that score (though word of the heated debate within the committee over Friedman's rightist politics leaked out) in awarding Mr. Friedman the prize for his work on consumption analysis, monetary history and theory, and "for his demonstration of the complexity of stabilization policy." Professor Friedman richly deserves the Nobel Prize for those contributions-and, even more, for demonstrating the enduring validity of Adam Smith's insights into how free markets serve the public good.

The question that remains, however, for disciples of both Professors Smith and Friedman, is whether an exaggerated version of the efficacy of the market may not serve the public badly—by leading to the neglect of social actions needed to protect public health and welfare in a highly industrialized and mass-organiza-

To Professor Friedman's credit, he has sought to minimize rather than obliterate the role of government in the economy; and, when he has put his fertile mind to it-as in proposals for welfare reform, regulatory reform, and international monetary theory-he has greatly contributed to the public good.

Of Carter, Ford and America's Foreign Policy

During the Oct. 6 debate, Jimmy Carter stated that he would consider another Arab oil embargo on shipments to the United States an act "economic war" and would immediately halt all shipments of materials, excluding food, to the Arab countries. He did not elaborate on what he would then do about the ensuing unemployment, which would be colossal. As the United States "runs on oil," such action would halt industry in this country and would indeed cause chaos in United States exports. One wonders what would happen to this nation in such a

Another issue Mr. Carter stresses is that under his Administration able people on the welfare roles would be trained for jobs, and if upon completion of such training these people refused to take jobs he would remove them from the welfare roles. To the Editor: The nations of Eastern Europe are under the domination of Communist Russia. Every understanding and concerned person in this great nation understands that fact. Why doesn't Mr. Ford? At least twice during the Oct. 8 debate. Carter made derogatory comment regarding our conduct in and with respect to Chile: that the United States had been instrumental in overthrowing the Allende regime and that we are now assisting a military dictatorship with the rebuilding of that country. The remarks should not have gone unchallenged.

If we in any way facilitated the removal of the Allende Government, it is something of which we can be justly proud. We are told that he succeeded to power via the democratic process. This is partly true, but what remained of the process after he assumed office was fast being destroyed or was destroyed.

That we did not facilitate the success of a subversive Communist government in Chile-under Allendeby large grants in aids and by military assistance is indeed commendable. What democracy would have remained in Chile, and in neighboring countries, if the Chileno had not undertaken to recover his government from Allende? And what chance would there have been for the revival of democracy once democracy had been destroyed under Communism? The economic chaes into which Chile was thrown,

Friends of the Peoples' Republic of A Case for Double-Parking

The Sept. 24 editorial "Parking Unlimited" is not thought through carefully and is a disservice to New Yorkers who own cars but no garages. The alternate-side parking regulation is designed to permit cleaning of the street. "Winking" at those who doublepark to facilitate this street cleaning is not only understandable but desirable. There simply are no parking spaces for many of the cars displaced. by the street-cleaning regulation. The alternative, in many cases, to doubleparking is to have motorists driving about aimlessly for hours, polluting the air and wasting gasoline. A gentlemen's agreement should exist between the Parking Violations Bureau and car owners. If the doubleparked car is somewhere near its. owner's residence, and if it has a note under the windshield wiper indicating the address of the owner in case of emergency, it should not be ticketed. Cooperation of this kind would increase good will while allowing the street to be swept, which is the whole RICHARD ENGOUIST Brooklyn, Sept. 24, 1976

POTSDAM, N. Y. - Watching the news while we did the dishes, my 15year-old son and I speculated over the forbidden words that Earl Butz had spoken at the wrong moment in the presence of the wrong person. The careful circumlocutions in the evening newspaper, the awesome retribution of resignation from high office, the sanctimonious evasions by commentators - all glistened and whirled around another word, "decent." Former Secretary Butz called President Ford "decent." Mr. Ford spoke of Mr. Butz as "decent." Only the words, apparently, were indecent, and therefore indiscreet.

A verbal indiscretion had accomplished what the steady battering of political argument could not: removal from office of a controversial person. So David and I wondered what the words were that were too bad to be given public utterance. I once spent a morning with a citizen-of-the-year type of man in a small Connecticut town. I was there on assignment for the National Endowment for the Arts, looking into the effect of a small grant given with Endowment money by the America the Beautiful Fund. Among the dozen or so people I interviewed, the man I speak of was certainly the most unusual, the most memorable, for he seemed to typify the hero of certain 20th-century American dreams: Horatio Alger with a tinge of European accent, awarded by his immigrant parents. Born poor, but grown rich. Civic leader, small-tradesman, patriotic.

Together we walked down the narrow streets of what had been a more thriving place than it now was. Had been more beautiful than it now was. Had been more caring than it now was. Had been a better place to be young in than it now was. His hands had worked on many of the buildings, and his story filled me with gratitude for the making of small-town America by people like him.

Then we came to what had been at one time a synagogue, and other words passed his lips.

Because marriage gave me a Latin surname, people assume me to be both Italian and Roman Catholic. Priests used to call on me when we moved to a new town. Since being Jewish is, for me, a matter of primarily internal pleasure. I have never worn a vellow star. Therefore, my companion felt free to cordially embark upon a series of vigorously anti-Semitic stories. I greatly admired, and admire, this man. He is obviously a good man and a good American. He is, like Secretary Butz, a decent man.

I put my arm around his shoulder and explained that his stories made me uncomfortable, and he responded with a laugh and the usual wellintended disclaimer. "Oh, come on, now, you know I don't mean any of that seriously." Why, some of his best I want it to be done openly, with friends are Jews.

How to Play Politics

By Tom Wicker

Jimmy Carter asked for it the other day, and Geraid Ford promptly let him have it. On Tuesday, Mr. Carter called for an increase in price-support loans to grain farmers, saying such an increase was long overdue. On Wednesday. President Ford directed the Agriculture Department to announce such an increase-50 percent for wheat, 20 percent for corn, and proportional increases for the other principal feed

Never mind that on the same day Mr. Carter, who was seeking the farm vote, demanded price support increases, J. Dawson Ahalt, the Agriculture Department's staff economist, said that "at this time we see no economic justification" for raising the support levels. Mr. Ford, seeking the farm vote as assiduously as Mr. Carter, had plenty of political justificationwhich is all this President ever needs.

What difference did it make to him that Mr. Abalt's statement was based on the fact that the Agriculture Department is estimating the largest American corn crop, the second largest American wheat crop, and one of the best Soviet grain crops in history? All that matters to Gerald Ford is that The Des Moines Register poll shows him in a dead heat with Jimmy Carter in Iowa (before the Earl Butz fiasco). and that David Owen-director of Kansas Senator Bob Dole's Vice-Presidential campaign—says that of the principal farm states only Kansas is safe for Mr. Ford, with Minnesota safe for Mr. Carter and all the others extremely close (as reported by Karen Elliott House in The Wall Street Journal).

The fact of the matter is that Gerald Ford, for all his nice-guy mannerisms and his supposed decency, is the most political President since Richard Nixon -far more so than, say, Lyndon B.

Mr. Johnson, it should be remembered, refused to put up farm prices in the fall of 1968, although he had the same power to do so then that Mr. Ford exercised this week. Now you and I may think that Hubert Humphrey lost the election that year because of Vietnam; but Mr. Humphrey, for one good witness, believes that he really lost the election-one of the closest in history-because Mr. Johnson would not take the necessary political steps on farm prices.

Not so Gerald Ford. On Oct. 9, for more insurance, he imposed quotas on the importation of beef-just as cattlemen had been urging him to do. And' just before Earl Butz was forced to resign-not by Gerald Ford but by public opinion and by the outrage of other Republicans at his racist remarks-Mr. Butz raised the support price on milk by 13 cents a hundredweight, an action hardly calculated to cost Mr. Ford votes in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

This is, of course, the season for Presidents running for election to give their temerarious challengers a lesson in what the powers of the Presidency really mean. And far more graphic than the grain price lesson Mr. Ford administered to Mr. Carter was the President's abrupt order for a new shipment of sophisticated weapons to

Mr. Ford informed Israeli authorities last Saturday that he was authorizing shipment to them of advanced nightfighting equipment and fiery concussion bombs. At the time of Mr. Ford's order, staff work on such a major transfer of equipment had not been completed, most State and Defense Department officials were taken by surprise, and reports since have suggested that the items were not supposed to have been released to Israel at least until next year. In addition, Congress had not been informed of the decision before its adjournment Oct. 2, although the Administration had been asked if major arms decisions were pending.

The order did follow, however, the foreign-policy debate with Mr. Carter, in which he accused Mr. Ford of reducing military assistance to Israel and in which the President stumbled badiv in trying to claim more active opposition to the Arab boycott than he had in fact displayed up to that moment.

This decision may well come back to haunt Mr. Ford-or his successor in the White House-when the Arabs demand the same equipment; remember the President's defense of his policy of massive arms sales to Saudi Arabia and Iran?

But what else is to be expected of a President who ditched the word détente when Ronald Reagan criticized it, who torpedoed diplomatic discussions with Cuba to win the Florida primary, who undercut his Administration's negotiations with Panama to win the Texas primary (but still lost it) and who was willing to swallow a Reaganite platform plank that criticized his own and Henry Kissinger's policies?

Or maybe that's just poetic justice. Wasn't it Mr. Kissinger, after all, who said "peace is at hand" in Vietnam on Oct. 26, 1972?

Security, Not Silence

By A. Searle Field

MYSTIC, Conn.-National silence is not the same as national security. Unfortunately, that was not the message from the House of Representatives when it suppressed the House Intelligence Committee's final report and then investigated those who had uncovered the United States' misdeeds.

National security is not guns and secrets. It is the quality of our people, the strength of our national character, and the integrity of our leaders. We cannot be secure if we lack the courage to test actions undertaken in our name. By this standard, the House substituted an act of insecurity for national security by retreating to a silence that is a national shame.

Our report did not reveal secrets; it revealed policy. It did not name agents, because names were not under investigation. It revealed no secret techniques, because technical matters were not at issue. It was written to be published, by patriotic people.

Scare tactics that intimidate elected representatives and prevent them from reporting on the conduct of unelected executives cannot be tolerated, without a fearful silence next time.

Our committee tried to report that the United States undermined democratic elections in Italy in 1972 with bribes and dirty tricks. If this seems academic, consider that many of the same officials who rigged the Italian election planned the Watergate operation a few weeks later.

We uncovered a decision by Richard M. Nixon and Henry A. Kissinger to involve the Central Intelligence Agency in a war by the Kurds against Iraq four years ago without telling Congress or the Secretary of Defense (never mind the American people). Even so, the House ended up investigating those who asked questions, rather than those who made war in back rooms.

Congress often finds silence more comfortable. Oversight committees are notable for their hindsight and being out-of-sight. We revealed that in some recent years not a single congressman or senator showed up to hear the C.I.A.'s annual program review, that one C.I.A. oversight committee had no staff, and that crimes reported to it were never investigated. What happened? We were investigated!

Exposing sordid conduct by prominent officials brought threats of violence against me as well as my wife and son. But the inquisition by the

Daniel Schorr's publication of our committee's final report was far more threatening. They photographed my house, questioned friends about my wife and social occasions at my home, asked details about phone calls that they somehow knew about, interrogated colleagues I had not seen for years. Others were questioned about their sexual relationships. The Ethics Committee did not want facts; they wanted a scapegoat. I had no evidence of who gave Mr. Schort our report, so committee members argued with me, insulted my testimony, questioned my patriotism, compared me with Watergate conspirators, misled others about my testimony, and then forbade me to speak publicly. When I refused to falsely accuse their chosen scapegoat, a "committee source" leaked that there were "discrepancies" in testimony by top staff members and implied that all of us were suspects. That was untrue.

The Ethics Committee people did not leak that we had been denied an open hearing, that I had been denied seven requests to eat during 10 hours of testimony, or that they had demanded that I reveal conversations with my attorney. Yes, America's drinking habits are changing and a major business—the alcoholic beverage business—is changing along with them. So this month Fortune explores the

Miss Bashold in a police photo after she was arrested and charged with criminally negligent homicide.

By all accounts, it was the happiest day in the largely thappy life of Joanne Bashold; not in all her 24 years. id her family ever heard her so exuberant.

"I had a baby girl yesterday," Joanne announced on ept. 2 from a pay telephone somewhere in New York's ellevue Hospital. Her younger sister Barbara, receiving the call at the Bashold residence in Kirtland, Ohio, was itonished. The family hadn't known Joanne was pregnant id wasn't even sure where she was.

"How are you?" Barbara asked. But Joanne wanted ily to talk about her baby girl, Cara. She has tons I black hair. She's so little and so cute."

Four days after that conversation took place the baby vas dead. It was devoured and killed by a starving lerman shepherd, Joanne's own pet and sole companion in the East Harlem slum she called home.

Her story is the story of how a young woman-like o many thousands of other young women in this country -came to New York to find herself but was overwhelmed y a city where anonymity is worn like a badge.

It was money she had left there when she entered the hospital, money she needed to feed herself, her baby and her dog. But the property room was closed when she was discharged the night of Sept. 5 and was still closed when she returned early the next day, Labor Day.

And so she went home. But she had been away for an hour. The dog had not been fed in five days because Joanne did not—could not—ask anyone to help her during her hospital stay, including family and friends back in Kirtland, a town of 6,000 whose country lanes are shaded by oaks and maples, where there are a few people who care and talk about Joanne.

When they speak, it is clear that for many people Joanne is something of a phantom. There is an image of a girl, plain and lacking in grace even for a teen-ager, who never seemed to know what to say or when to say it and therefore remained silent; who was never seen at any of the parties or hangouts her classmates frequented; a half-forgotten memory from the Kirtland High School library stamping books by herself in a corner, coming out of herself only to admonish rowdy students to be quiet, students who never seemed to listen to her. To her parents, Jack and Peg Bashold, who adopted her when she was five months old when they mistakenly thought they would never have any children of their own (they eventually had four daughters of their own). Joanne was a child who, in her mother's words, "lived in a world all her own," a little girl who never seemed. to want to be touched or embraced by her elders.

Mrs. Bashold recalls one night she went to the children's bedroom to give them all a goodnight kiss. Joanne was about nine years old: "Why do you kiss all of its goodnight?" Joanne asked

"It is because I love all of you," Mrs. Bashold replied.
"Why, don't you want me to kiss you goodnight?" "No," Joanne said. And her mother did not kiss her goodnight. In the months and years that followed, there were fewer and fewer kisses and embraces, Joanne indicated she didn't-Three years later it was apparent to Joanne's parents that she did not want any physical show of affection from them, even to the point of wincing if an aim was put around her shoulder. The Basholds tried to reach Joanne with affection, but Mrs. Bashold concluded: "You couldn't get to her that way. We tried it, but it couldn't She was examined—only once—by a child psychologist in Philadelphia near the town where they then lived, who found "nothing structurally wrong with her personality."

But in the years that followed, some of her teachers in Kirtland noted her "emotional problems." Joanne was protective of and loving toward children in the neighborhood. To those children who knew her as a teen-age babysitter, Joanne was someone not unlike them, one who never ignored them, one whom they could trust with their secrets, and it would seem that Joanne confided in them, too.

'She Never Got Mad at Me'

"I really liked Joanne, said Katy Wilson, who is now 13 years old. "She'd sit on the front porch eating yogurt and she'd tell me things. Once she told me about a boy who called her 'pimple-face.' He was very mean to her. She called him a freak. He's a janitor now. It's kind of nice to talk to someone who understands. She never got mad at me. I wish she'd come back. I don't need a babysitter anymore-I need a friend."

Though she had a way with younger children, with her peers she was withdrawn, so she often made no impression on them. Yet she did have one quality that struck everyone—her deep love for animals and her faith that no animal would ever harm her.

Peg Bashold recalls that one day when Joanne was a child, "she walked into the house with a bumblebee in the palm of her hand and it did not sting her."

"She would bring home frogs, toads, a praying mantis," she said. "They would all sit in her hand and not run away." The Basholds still own the German shepherd that Joanne played with as a child.

Sandy Barber, one of the few people her age who go close to Joanne in Kirland, was, like Joanne, adopted. But unlike Joanne, her background turned her outward rather than inward. Sandy felt close to her mother, though apart from her father.

"I know how it is not being wanted," said Sandy, who is now Mrs. Richard Polch. "Joanne always needed somebody. I always felt kids made fun of her. They were always putting her down. Joanne was nice and sincere, but she didn't know what to say and what

No Point in Discussing It

Sandy sensed her own feeling of unbelonging in Joanne. But although Sandy talked out her frustrations as an adopted child with some frequency and Joanne took it all in, Joanne never once mentioned that she too was adopted. Jack and Peg Bashold told Joanne that she was adopted when she was very young, about 4 or 5 years old, before the first of her four sisters was born.

"We spoke about it more than once, but after Barbara was born we felt it was pointless to talk about it any further," said Mr. Bashold, a modestly paid administrator for a sales promotion company. "We didn't want her to feel any different from any of our other daughters."

Joanne never spoke about her adoption. But after her baby died and her parents spent some time with her in New York, Joanne suddenly turned to them and said, "I'll bet that I'm adopted." "Of course you are," her mother replied. "Don't you remember that we told you?"

Her parents can recall the times they tried to reach out to a daughter they felt was drifting away from them. "You feel you have control over a child until they are 18 or 19 years old," said Jack Bashold, "Then you reach a point where you know the child doesn't have to agree with you and she is free to go her own way. Then the realization comes upon you, you must accept what her desires are. If you love her, you accept her on her terms."

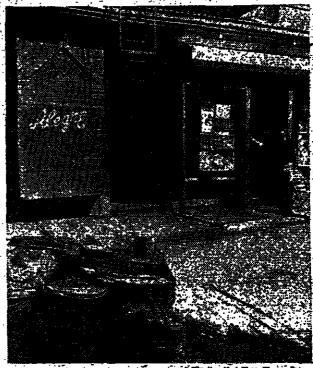

Janet Hillenbrand, a neighbor who used to employ Joanne as a babysitter, recalled her as a teen-ager who was always kind to children and animals: "I had a dog that kept running away and I could always depend on Joanne to find him. She has a good heart."

Jack Basheld was called "a compassionate man" by the Mayor of Kiriland. Wesley Phillips, who has known him for years. "The feeling in the community is that he is the victim of circumstances."

For Sandy Barber, Joanne's apparent attitudes after she left Kirtland were consistent with the way she was when she was still at home. "She was deathly afraid of boys," Sandy said. "I think that perhaps a boy had once hurt ber, but she never said." To friends in New York, Joanne has confided that back in Ohio, when she was around 18,

The mud holes filled with greenish brown water and the rats that cover a good part of the vacant lot at 101st Street and Shore Road in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn are not what the build-ers who purchased the lot a few years back had in mind when they talked about putting in a swimming pool.

The two-acre lot, which lies between the Narrows and a row of trimly kept four-family brick houses, was purchased in 1974 by RGR Associates, which ripped out an existing apartment house and a playing field with plans to construct a high-rise apartment building equipped with a sauna and a swimming pool.

Now, in the face of several years' litigation and community protest, the build-ers have abandoned their plan. Yesterday, a bulldozer paid for by the city crawled into the brackish looking, caved in site to bury all there ever was to show for the ill-fated Verrazano Towers: a few concrete piles and a hole.

The chairman of the watchdog agency for the state prison system dismissed his top staff aide yesterday, amid growing signs of unhappiness among prisoners rights group with the performance of the chairman.

"I feel my firing is a clear signal that the potential for this agency acting in an independent manner and as an effective regulatory agency is greatly reduced, if not at this point eliminated," said Daniel Pachoda, the executive assistant of the State Commission of Correction. "I hope the firing doesn't carry that message," said Stephen J. Chinhund, who was named chairman of the three-member commission in July. "I am a prisoners' rights advocate myself. Dan's a good man, but getting along with a really good guy whom you agree with isn't enough.

last month by Mr. Chinlund that he would last month if Mr. Pachoda would be dismissed, Mr. Chinlund said: "He is secure

Comment on Disagreement

"He's gotten rid of me because of the positions I have taken," said Mr. Pachoda, who is 34 years old and a graduate of Harvard Law School. He said he and the Commissioner had disagreed over how much the staff should contribute to agen-cy decisions and over how closely the gency should work with the Department of Correction, which has the responsibility of running the prison system on a day-to-day basis.

City Council Committee Studies Resolution for Aid to Women

By LESLIE MAITLAND

"Do we break up a marriage merely because a man beats his wife?" Council-man Leon A. Katz asked yesterday. "Are we talking about a man who playfully slaps his wife? Are we talking about a man who lovingly slaps his wife?"

Such questions, put to witnesses by Mr. Katz, peppered almost six hours of public hearings by the Public Safety Committee of the New York City Council on the problems of battered women. They were questions that sent ripples of surprise and disapproval through a restrained audience composed mainly of women.

"He didn't even understand that offense was taken by his use of such words," said Marjory D. Fields, a lawyer with Brooklyn Legal Services, who testified before the committee. "He was minimizing what we were talking about."

Appeals Court Decision Cited

In using the word "beat," Miss Fields tried to explain, she meant "repeated blows with the intent to inflict harm, and not just a playful slap on the back. And when Mr. Katz, who served as chairman of the hearings, kept asking whether a woman beaten just once by her husband should really walk out on her marriage, Miss Fields retorted that the State Court of Appeals had decided that she could— that one beating was in itself sufficient grounds for a divorce.

The hearings, which included testimony from social workers, lawyers, members of the Police Department and battered women who spoke of their personal or deals, explored many areas relating to the problem of violence in the family and what the city could do about it.

At hand was a Council resolution introduced by Councilwoman Miriam Friedlander in May 1975, asking city agencies to set up programs to offer aid to women who are beaten by their husbands.

Lawyers explained that wife-beating is not a crime and that Family Court has exclusive original jurisdiction, with only 2 percent of the 18,786 family offense petitions filed in New York State in the judicial year 1973-74 being transferred to Criminal Court for prosecution in extraordinarily severe cases.

Exclusive Original Jurisdiction Detective John Sullivan of the Police Academy testified that the police "consciously avoid arrests if at all possible," a statement that appeared to shock and anger Mr. Katz, who ultimately said that the committee would not vote on the resolution until it was amended to include concrete proposals for improving the

L.I.R.R. Orders Engines

Thirty-seven new locomotives have been ordered for the Long Island Rail Road at a cost of $16.1 million, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority announced yesterday. The money is coming from the state's 1974 railpreservation bond issue. When the 37 locomotives, to be built by General Motors, are in service next summer, the Long Island will have no locomotive more than nine years old.

Of the 37, six are to be used primarily in passenger service, 23 for either freight or passenger service, and eight for yard switching. Earlier this year the railroad added 22 new diesel locomotives to its fleet.

The M.T.A. also announced the start of "preliminary work" for the installation of new automatic safety gates at 29 Long Island Rail Road grade crossings—25 in Suffolk County, one in Nassau and three in New York City.

Aid to Elderly Lagging

A study of 1,182 elderly poor in the Supplemental Security Income program yesterday reported that 46 percent of those who had previously been on welfare rolls and 39 percent of those who enrolled after the Federal program began on Jan. I, 1974, considered themselves "worse off." The joint study by the Community Service Society and the city Department of Social Services said the chief reason for the situation expressed by the recipients was the in-ability of the flat grants to keep up with inflation and rent increases. Of those questioned, 8 percent said they could not afford to eat a single bal-anced meal a day and 18 percent said they had trouble managing food purchases by the end of each month.

Jail Suicide Study

Responding to the 10th suicide this year in New York City's jails, Mayor Beame ordered yesterday an immediate review of what is being done by the Department of Correction to prevent such deaths. Benjamin J. Malcolm, the Commissioner of Correction, said he felt that the review, which had been recommended by the Board of Correction, a watchdog agency, was an "ex-

Ex-L.I. Aide Goes on Trial

John McGrath, a former official of the Long Island State Park and Recreation Commission, went on trial in Federal Court in Brooklyn on charges of having extorted more than $30,000 from towing companies and having failed to report more than $70,000 in income on his tax returns. Mr. Mc-Grath, who served as park maintanance supervisor, was said to have asked for and received annual payments from five towing companies in return for granting them franchises. Immediately after opening statements, the trial was halted when Mr. Mc-Grath's lawyer argued that the indictment against his client was defective, with reference to the extortion charges, in that it did not carry the proper name of the commission. Judge Henry Bramwell said he would rule on the matter on Monday.

Kallinger Gets Life

Joseph Kallinger is led to a car outside Hackensack, N.J., court.

Judge Thomas F. Dalton of Superior Court in Hackensack. N.J., sentenced Joseph Kallinger to life in prison for the murder of Maria Fasching, a nurse, in Leoniz, N.J., in 1975, and ordered that the sentence be concurrent with 30-year term imposed on Mr. Kallinger for robbery in Pennsylvania. The effect could be to keep Mr. Kallinger in prison the rest of his life regardless any parole considerations.

Later, Mr. Kallinger was picked up at the Bergen County, N.J., jail and taken to the Camden County Jail to await trial in Camden in two burglaries

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ALBANY

CASE 27072-Proceeding on motion of the Commission as to proposed tariff revisions for Special Call-In Service-for radio broadcasters and othersfiled by New York Telephone Company.

September 28, 1976

NOTICE is hereby given that a prehearing conference will be held in the above matter before Administrative Law Judge Harold L. Colbeth, in Hearing Room No. 2, 24th Floor, Two World Trade Center, New York City, on Tuesday, October 26, 1976, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing from day to day thereafter as necessary.

Subjects to be considered at this conference will include: (1) taking the appearances of parties who wish to participate in the proceeding, (2) establishing a schedule of hearing dates for the receipt of testimony, cross-examination and unsworn oral statements, (3) the grouping and representation of parties having similar interests, (4) arrangements for stipulations, agreements and rulings concerning procedures and issues, and (5) other matters that may be pertinent to this proceeding.

Public hearing in this proceeding was ordered by the Public Service Commission under its authority to examine and conduct investigations of telephone service and rates as set forth in Sections 5, 91, 92, 94, 96, 97 and 98 of the Public Service Law. The Commission acted following the filing of proposed tariff revisions by New York Telephone Company, which revisions would provide for the introduction of Special Call-In Service in New York City. Such service would be available to those customers, primarily radio broadcasters, whose contests or promotional activities generate mass calling by the public to a particular telephone number.

Under the proposal of New York Telephone Company such a call which is not answered after a specified interval would be routed to automatic answering equipment which would terminate the call with a recorded message from the broadcaster. The caller would be charged with a completed call and the broadcaster would pay for the necessary lines and the recording equipment. Pending its decision, the Commission has suspended the proposed tariff revisions through January 12, 1977.

Inquiries and comments relative to this proceeding may be addressed to the undersigned at Empire State Plaza, Albany, New York 12223.

Carter, Focusing on Ford Record, Gains Among Independents in Poll

Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio—if he is to defeat Mr. Carter nationally. In Illinois, where the race had been considered close, The Chicago Sun Times straw poll, a continuing survey with a superb record for accuracy, showed Mr. Carter with a lead of almost 11 points on the basis of the first 783 responses.

Part of Mr. Carter's problem in the East, where the two nominees are now neck and neck, is that the Catholics who make up an important voting bloc there have not moved toward him as have those in the Middle West, Italian-Americans remain particularly cool, the survey indicates, with Mr. Carter able to attract no more than half.

In addition, Yankee Protestants, especially in New England, have been moving from Mr. Carter to Mr. Ford in recent days as their traditional partisanship reasserted itself

The Times/CBS findings in the West were borne out in a new survey by Mervin D. Field, operator of the California Poll. Surveying 1,659 voters in the Golden State, Mr. Field reported a dead heat, and said that Mr. Carter was doing less well than expected among union members. Catholics, Jews and Spanishspeaking voters.

Ford's Protestant Problem

But the dimensions of Mr. Carter's Catholic problem on a national basis should not be overdrawn. On the average in the last six Presidential elections, Democratic candidates have won 61 percent of the Catholic vote; Mr. Carter now has 59, according to the Times/CBS poll. In a sense, Mr. Ford has a Protestant problem because he is pulling only 48 percent of them, as against a long-term Republican average of 59 percent.

 One interesting means of evaluating the campaign to date is to study the timing the major events in the Presidential con-test. The pattern resembles a baseball pitcher's won-and-lost record.

Of those who said they decided after the second debate, two out of three went to Mr. Carter. Of those who said they decided after the first debate, which the President was generally conceded to have won, a majority went to Mr. Ford. Those who said they decided after the nominating conventions split and those who decided before the conventions, when Mr. Ford was involved in a bruising primary campaign, went heavily to Mr. Carter.

2 Verdicts in 2 Debates The debates tended to affirm the partisanship of Republicans and Democrats, but among the crucial independents, the first debate pushed waverers toward Mr. Ford and the second pushed them toward Mr. Carter.

A number of issues appear to have helped Mr. Carter regain the dominant position he held among independents at the outset of the campaign, then lost at its midpoint. Independents are considered crucial to Republican candidates, who have fewer partisans to work with; no Republican has been elected President in the post-World War II era without a substantial majority among that voting

One of the key issues is economic. The Times/CBS survey showed, for example, that Mr. Carter is winning overwhelmingly among those who cite un-employment as their dominant concern, as would be expected. But he is holding

į

The New York Times/Oct. 15, 1976 The chart shows, for example, that of the voters who have made a choice, 4 percent said they knew all along whom they would support. Of these, 56 percent said they supported Carter and 44 Ford. Of those who said they had made up their minds after the primaries, 64 per-

1.761 Interviewed In Times-CBS Poll

The New York Times-CBS News survey is based on telephone interviews conducted from last Friday through last Tuesday with 1,761 men and women, all registered voters, across the continental United States.

The sample of telephone exchanges called was selected by a computer from a complete list of exchanges in the country. The exchanges were chosen in such a way that each region of the country was represented in proportion to its number in the population.

The results have been weighted by selection probabilities related to household size and party affiliation and by race, sex, region, age and education. The weighting procedure is used as a safeguard against random variations for these factors in the sample.

In theory, one can say with 95 percent certainty that the overall results in a sample of this size differ by no more than 2.5 percentage points in either direction from what would have been obtained by interviewing all Americans of voting age. For Demo-crats, Republicans or independents alone, the theoretical error margin is about 5 percentage points, and the error for smaller subgroups is somewhat larger.

These theoretical errors do not take into account a small margin of any survey of public opinion.

Assisting The Times in its 1976 survey coverage is Prof. Gary Orren of Harvard University.

Mr. Ford even among those most worried about inflation-an issue on which the President has predicated much of his campaign.

Most Pessimistic on Economy

Even more significant, twice as many voters think the economy is getting worse as think it is getting better. That is a bleak statistic for Mr. Ford, because an overwhelming majority of those who see hard times coming are for Mr. Carter It does Mr. Ford little good that he wins those who see better tiPes, or that the two nominees split the voters who see little change ahead.

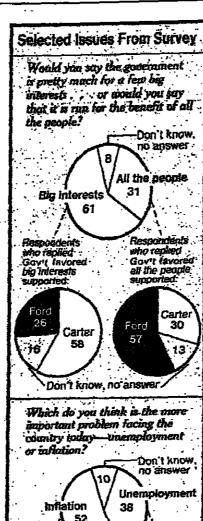

The voter's vision of Mr. Ford as an economic manager, in other words, has much to do with how he plans to cast his ballot. So does his view of Mr. Ford as a manager of foreign policy. For example, the President leads only among those who consider detente a success, and that group is only a third of the electorate. Mr. Carter leads among those who believe that the United States has made too few concessions to the Soviet Union and among those who think it has made too

On what might be called the "populism-Watergate" issue, the split is most

On Government Beneficiary

Six of every 10 respondents agreed with the statement that "the Government is run for a few big interests," and of those, better than two out of three back Mr. Carter. Three of 10 said it was "run for the benefit of all the people," and of those, the President won the backing of

Democrats Request Inquiry Some Democratic Congressmen have sked Mr. Ruff to investigate charges by John W. Dean 3d, a White House com in the Nixon Administration, that Mr. Ford used his influence as minority leader to halt an investigation by the late Repre-sentative Wright Patman's House Banking Committee in 1972 at the behest of the Nixon White House.

Mr. Dean said Mr. Ford had agreed to help block the Patman inquiry at the request of Richard K. Cook, at that time a Congressional aide at the White House. Mr. Cook has denied the allegations.

Mr. Ruff is expected tomorrow to advise the Democratic Congressmen whether he intends to open an investigation of the matter.

The statement by the Democratic Presidential nominee startled some of his closest advisers with its breadth and finality, but a campaign spokesman said Mr. Carter foresaw no reason to increase tax rates during the eight years that he hopes to occupy the White House.

Mr. Mondale scheduled this evening in his hotel suit to prepare for the debate. Mr. Dole, saying he was already prepared, scheduled a full evening of campaigning, including two downtown rallies.

Weekend of G.O.P. Activities

Texas Republican leaders, contending that they have closed the gap on Mr. Carter for the state's 26 electoral votes, crowded a weekend of festivities and celebrities around the Dole-Mondale debate, including an appearance by Ronald Reagan, the former Republican Governor of California.

In addition, George Bush, Director of Central Intelligence, and Peter Peterson, former Secretary of Commerce, planned to make "nonpolitical" speeches tomor-row before a Texas Mid-Continent Oil and

The Republicans sought to use Mr. Mondale's brief visit to Texas to remind been a thick sandwich of work, hours the conservative Democratic majority of high-level "tutoring" from staff memhere of the Senator's liberal voting

They also portrayed Mr. Carter's advisers as ultraliberals. For example, Ray Hutchision, the state Republican chairmann, told Texans on Tuesday that Law- with Zbgniew Brzezinski on foreign polirence Klein, Mr. Carter's chief economic adviser, was once a Communist Party member. Dr. Klein, who has also worked for the Ford Administration, was sched-uled to debate Alan Greenspan, President Ford's chief economist, tonight at the Houston Club.

'Not a Right-Wing Baiter'

Speaking at Abilene Christian Universi Mr. Carter said the Republicans had been hapless because they had secluded themselves in the White House and "when the people's voice cannot be heard, that's when our property makes in the Communist Party of this country."

TO DEBATE TONIGHT Mondale Sees Opponent Dole Plans Spare Use of In a Tough Position as Apologist for Ford

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14-Senator Waltomorrow night, sees Senator Robert J. Dole as going into the debate in "a very few bones about wishing it were not tough position" as apologist for the Ford Administration.

Mr. Mondale, in turn, while not discussing his own vulnerabilities, can be expected to have to fulfill a similar function for Jimmy Carter-explaining and resolvdential candidates. The two Senators have debated that he hoped in the debate to "press each other many times on the Senate" that he hoped in the debate to "press the issues that I think Americans are most interested in." On the basis of his campaign track record, these would include the economy, from unemployment to inflation to tax reform, and possibly a foreign affairs philosophy that he has charged does not reflect Americans' pro-fessed ideals.

Better Solutions' Offered

Mr. Mondale said that he would also like to demonstrate "that this ticket offers solutions that are better than the record and programs of the Republicans." The autumn afternoon was fading into evening as Mr. Mondale strolled toward his car with its waiting Secret Service chauffeur parked at the northwest Washineton tennis courts. This had been the Minnesota Senator's second round of tennis of the day—he had played before going up to his Capitol Hill office in the

That was pretty much the schedule for this week, until leaving for Houston this afternoon and since returning to Washington Monday afternoon from a two-day trip to Newark, Buffalo and New York City. It was a purposeful mix of intellec-tual and physical exercise.

Figures—to Rely More on Background Data

By DOUGLAS E. KNEELAND

HOUSTON, Oct. 14-After spending ter F. Mondale, who will debate his Republican counterpart on television tomorrow night, sees Senator Robert J. Dole, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, flew htre today for a debate he has made scheduled.

Tomorrow, at 9:30 P.M., Eastern daaylight time, in the Alley Theater here, Senator Dole and Senator Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, will square off in the third of a series of four nationally televised cam-paign debates sponsored by the League of Women Voters. The first two were between President Ford and Jimmy Carter, his Pernocratic challenger; as the fourth will also be.

Senator Dole has not questioned in public the wisdom of the Presidential debates, which Mr. Ford suggested. But in news conferences and speeches he has often made light of the Vice-Presidential Repeatedly, he has noted that Vice-Presidents, let alone Vice-Presidential candidates, do not make policy. And through the grueling campaign he has rejected almost every effort to pin him the property of th down on a policy question, pleading rea-sons from lack of familiarity with various subjects to national security to avoid an-

Interfering With Football

Over and over he has reminded audiences that the debate will be held on a Friday night when "every high school football team in the country will be playing." Suggesting that most Americans will be at those games rather than glued to their television sets, he has frequently added that he would not mind going to a game himself rather than debating.

Easily he has thrown in one of his many certain laugh lines for Republican groups that are his principal campaign fare. "Mondale has chosen his makeup man," he says straight-faced in his dry Kansas accent. "It's going to be George Meany." "Jimmy Carter is going to have two hot lines if he's elected," he adds most of the time, "one to Russia and one to eorge Meany."

Actually, Senator Dole and his political advisers, as some of them acknowledge in private conversations, do not think the idea of the Vice-Presidential debate is all

Not Entirely as It Seems

Nor do they think it is to be taken lightly, although Mr. Dole has also been telling his listeners this week that "we're only going to bore you for 75 minutes, not 90 minutes."

The Vice-Presidential debate will be 15 minutes shorter than the Presidential ones, a compromise in the long negotiations that led to agreement after the Dole forces tried to cut the time to one hour. Another demand of Senator Dole's repesentatives was that the debate be held n the South, where they felt Senator Mondale's liberal record might hurt the Carter ticket.

Members of the Dole camp conceded that they wanted whatever edge they cerild get because incy Presidential debate offered little but pitfalls. In other words, they do not see how this debate can have much positive meact for either Presidential candidate, but they are well aware of the problems that either Vice-Presidential nominee could cause by a major stumble.

Not Exactly as Planned

Only last week, Senator Dole received en object lesson in the dangers of de-

Press Conference By The National Liberation Movement of Western Togolan

On The Question of Liberation of Western Togoland And The Reunification Of Togo At The Headquarters of The UNO in New York

On October 12, 1978

The Purpose of The Delegation The chiefs and people of Western Togoland have once again sept a delegation to the United Nations General Assembly to inform international opinion of the latest developments in that territory the former Trust Territory of British Togoland-in her march towards reunification with the Republic of Togo.

We wish to express our thanks and gratitude to the Press for making it possible at the 31st Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations for the delegation of the National Liberation Movement of Western Togoland (NLMWT) sent by the Traditional Rulers and the youth, to inform the world of what has now become the TOGOLAND PROBLEM.

Systematic Efforts To Goad Us Into Violence

The Acheampong Government has been doing everything to drive us to the extreme.

Suppression of the Movement

You will recall that just before the 30th Session of the General Assembly of the U.N., opened in September 1975, the Government of Ghana, by a Decree banned the N L M W T, and made it illegal for anyone to advocate the reunification of Togo, the penalty of which was 5 years imprison-ment with hard labour or a fine of Five Thousand Cedis (C 5,000.00), or both.

Torture and Death in Detention In pursuance of this Decree. several persons, including entire families, were thrown into jail without trial. Some of these persons are still languishing in Ghanaian prisons. It is on record that 5 of such persons died in prison as the result of torture and other inhuman treatment they were subjected to, and 11 others were released at the point of death, and these died soon after in their homes.

Not satisfied with this Vorstertype brutality, the Government of Ghana has callously adopted the following measures: 1. Systematic dismissal or persecution of all persons of Western Togoland extraction in the Public Service, the Police and the Armed Forces, and other state-owned productive units in Ghana.

2. Discriminatory attitude towards private entrepreneurs from Western Togoland, like withdrawal of licences to operate.

3. Withdrawal of scholarships to students who sympathise with the cause or whose parents support the Liberation Movement. 4. Imprisonment without trial for students and teachers, and other activists of the Movement, some of whom have been in detention since Christmas 1975.

5. Closure of schools and health centers in towns and villages along the eastern-boundary line of Western Togoland.

Ghana's Memorandum The Government of Ghana anticipating a delegation of the N L MWT to the current Session to inform the General Assembly of our activities, published a Memorandum on the Togoland Question. The whole populationof Western Togoland welcome Ghana's Memorandum on the problem. The central theme of that Memorandum, Ghana's claim to sovereignty over Westem Togoland, is the Plebiscite of 1956. We wish here to state that the NLMWT will-soon publish a paper on the so-called Plebis-

Ghana's readiness to accept suggestions from Representatives to the U.N. for "peaceful media-

person who organic or promotes the se be guilty of an offence and suffer death by shooting by squad

Thus for a year, instead of a ing a peaceful solution to Togoland Problem, Ghan systematically goaded the d population of Western Togranto taking to violence. We not at this stage be moved violent action, not even into bal violence. We have faith it United Nations Organisation Appeal

The people of Western Togo and their Liberation Move hereby appeal to the work the President of the General sembly of the U.N. the President of the Sec Council the President of the Trustee Council the Secretary-General of U.N., as well as their Excellencies, the Hea State and Government, to cl study this basically human lem, and help find a lasting tion to it.

The chiefs and people of We Togoland hereby reaffirm faith in the U.N. and h request this august Organi to take appropriate measu normalize the situation.

Conclusion

The people of Western Tog and their Liberation wish to reiterate that they not be deterred by the vi and inhuman treatment people are being subjected t the Government of Ghana. we cherish the cleaner and conviction that DEAT preferable to a life dishor by personal slavery and humiliation of one's country therefore wish to warn the patience when it gets to its: ing point, we will not hesits take up arms to free our mo land from the clutches of colonialist and expansi Ghana.

The N L M W T wishes to gratulate all other Nat Liberation Movements for continuous struggle FREEDOM, JUSTICE PEACE. And we will like the extend to us their support encouragement as fel

Joffrey Ballet Takes an All-American Leap

By ANNA KISSELGOFF

UST when we were all about to put the Bicentennial year to rest, the Joffrey Ballet has come up with an all-American season at the City Center - 30 ballets by American choreographers.

This is not bad for an art form that was once considered exclusively a European import. The change is reflected in the remarks of Robert Joffrey, the company's founder, when he explains why the current season, through Nov. 7, does not include the usual works by European choreographers.

"These ballets may not give a complete view of the Joffrey," he said. "But many of them are important to dance in America and to the Joffrey company. This season is something I've always wanted to do. It's dedicated to American choreographers, without whom we wouldn't be where we are today." There is no question where the Joffrey Ballet -now celebrating its 20th anniversary and its 10th year at the City Center 55th Street Theater —is today. It is one of the country's three leading ballet companies and one of the world's major troupes. Many a newcomer to ballet has learned to love ballet through the Joffrey. With its accent on theater, entertainment and quality. the company is living proof that a no-star policy can attract a new public to ballet as much as the biggest superstar.

Today, the Joffrey has a clearly defined profile. It is, for instance, the company that pioneered the big mixed-media rock ballet and brought us "Astarte," Mr. Joffrey's own highly theatrical sex-cum-rock multimedia extravaganza. "Astarte," created in 1967, returns tomorrow night at 8 P.M. after three years away from the repertory. Created at the height of the psychedelic craze, "Astarte" was the company's greatest box-office success.

If this was the acid side of rock ballet, Gerald Arpino's fluid and exciting "Trinity," to a rock score by two classically trained composers (Alan Raph and Lee Holdridge), offered a more mellow flower-power flavor. "Trinity" was the hit of the company's Soviet tour two years ago, and it will be seen again this American season.

As the first major ballet company to reflect the counterculture's concerns, the Joffrey acquired a swinging image. It is undeniably trendy, and sometimes it is not only popular, but the very essence of pop. Among the choreographers, all represented this season, who have commented in different ways on pop culture for the Joffrey are Mr. Arpino, Margo Sappington (with "Weewis") and Twyla Tharp ("Deuce Coupe II"), who presents a new work Nov. 3.

There is, however, a different side to the Joffrey that complements its concern with the contemporary, and it is a very important one. Since 1967, the company has restaged rarely seen major works of the 20th-century international repertory, many of them from the Diaghilev Ballets Russes tradition.

POETRY SEASON

Poetry readings are to New York what bowling is to lesser communities. Not a week passes without them, and they attract a dedicated public. This is an aspect of New York living that anyone with a liking for letters should sample at least once, as much for atmosphere as for content. The Studio of Creative Movement, one flight up at 60 West 25th Street (CH 3-7758). has presented innovative dance and plays for 13 years, and for four years it has served as a forum for poetry readings. Tonight at 8, a new Fridayright season of poetry readings begins. The poets are Robert Herson, co-editor of the Hanging Loose Press and teacher, and Suzanne Zavrian, director of the distribution project for the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines. Admission: $2, which includes refreshments after the readings.

THEATER TO THE NORTH

The Westchester-Rockland Regional

Theater, which set up shop in May 1975 is back with a new season this weekend at the Emelin Theater for the Performing Arts, on Library Lane in Mamaroneck. The company, formed by four persons who live in the counties, is introducing a subscription series composed of three presentations at Emelin (it plans also to play in Rockland later in the season). The first performance consists of two Tom Stoppard plays, "After Magritte" and "The Real Inspector Hound." This bill runs through Oct. 24 and will be followed in February by "Bus Stop." In May, "Hedda Gabler." Subscription tickets: Fridays, $12 (individual ticket, $5); Saturdays, $16 (individual, $6); Sundays, $10.50 (individual, $4). Showtimes: 8:30 P.M. on Friday and Saturday and 7:30 on Sunday. Information: (914) 835-5252.

TENNIS, EVERYONE!

For those who are unable to resist a game of tennis—watching, not playing, that is—Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum, Eighth Avenue and 33d Street, is obviously the place to be Saturday and Sunday. The occasion is the two-day United Negro College Fund Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tourna-ment, where the action promises to be quicker than its name. The proceeds will go to set up a series of Arthur Ashe Scholarships at schools receiving the fund's support. Mr. Ashe and Al-thea Gibson will appear in exhibition matches during the two-day tournament against opponents as yet unnamed. Also among the swingers will be personalities from the worlds of sports and entertainment, but the action will be highlighted by the finals of a youth competition that has been leading up to this weekend. Saturday, from 6 to 10 P.M., Sunday from 2 to 6 P.M. Admission for both nights, $8.50, $15, $40; for one night, $5, $10, $25. Information: 644-9600.

BATTLE FOR THE BRONX

On Oct. 18, 1776, there was a battle at Pell's Point in what is today Pelham Bay Park in the East Bronx. A force commanded by Col. John Glover of Marblehead, Mass., held up a British advance until General Washington could get his troops to southern West-chester after the retreat from New. York City. It was such a major action that the Bronx County Historical Society, the Bronx Bicentennial Advisory Committee and the Crown and Conti-nental Line-64th Regiment of Foot are going to rerun it, bloodlessly, Saturday and Sunday. The re-creation of this Bronx action will take place near the original site, in Pelham Bay Park, near the Westchester Square subway station. Schedule will be the same each day: 11 A.M., soldiers demonstrate military and other crafts of the era. At 2 P.M., preparation for battle. At 3:30 P.M., the battle, with live loud-speaker narration and landing of boats by the British, who eventually get beaten. Admission is free. IRT No. 6 to last stop. At the park, walk across footbridge. Or No. 12 bus, across Fordham Road and Pelham Parkway to subway station at Westchester Avenue. Information: 881-8900.

SILVERMINE BY FOOT

The Silvermine region of Connecticut's Fairfield County is worlds away, but not very far, from New York. It includes parts of New Canaan, Norwalk and Wilton and has an enviable arts center called the Silvermine Guild. On Saturday, the Silvermine Community Association is staging a walking tour of the historic area (it's also prehistoric because nobody knows for sure whether there really was a silver mine here, but they'll tell you about that, too). Ten guides along the route will describe the sites, which include a 17th-century house and the place that inspired the "Raggedy Ann" stories. You'll also see the Silvermine Tavern, a one-time mill by a waterfall.

ERZL," by Dore Schary and Amos Elon, will go into rehearsal Oct. 25, start previews Nov. 19, and then open at the Palace on Nov. 30. "Raising the money was rough," Mr. Schary, who is also the producer of "Herzl" said, "a long, long battle, but now we have it. So naturally, I'm excited." Mr. Schary said that Paul Hecht would play Herzl, while Judith Light would play his wife, and that the production would be directed by J. Ranelli. (Mr. Ranelli disdains not ony a first name; he disdains a period, too.)

a period, too.)
Mr. Schary said that Columbia Pictures had given

Mr. Schary said that Columbia Pictures had given him some seed money for "Herzl," and asked him about doing it as a film. Better, he had said, that it be done first as a play. Mr. Schary said he had read Mr. Elon's biography of Theodor Herzl, the founder of modern Zionism, and then had talked to him about a script. He and Mr. Elon had worked on it togerther in Italy, and then had passed it back and forth. Mr. Schary said he finished the last refinement himself just the other day.

"Herzl was a man absolutely indifferent to anti-Semitism until the Dreyfus case," he said. "Then he actually heard a mob say, 'Death to the Jews.' It changed him. He had a tough personal life, with a strange young wife, who had been institutionalized at the age of 12. She made his life unhappy, but Herzl was a zealot. He let nothing stand in his way."

Mr. Schary said that a biography, whether it was done on screen or on a stage, had to have a climax, or what he called "a moment." Then he quoted something Herzl said at the age of 35: "Today I have founded the Jewish state. People will laugh when I say that. But perhaps in five years, certainly in 50 years, no one will laugh "Mr. Schare". when I say that. But perhaps in five years, certainly in 50 years, no one will laugh." Mr. Schary was suggesting that this was his moment.

Anthony Perkins was at Sardi's, sitting under the sketch of his father, the late Osgood Perkins, whose namesake was sitting on Anthony Perkin's lap. The namesake, who is 2, looked at the sketch and said, "Grandpa." Anthony Perkins said, "Yes, that's the guy who married gandma." He also said that the part of Dr. Martin Dysart, which he plays in "Equus," was the first part he had ever played that his father could have played, too. "There's not a vestige of adolescence in it," he said. He said there was something "creepy" about grown men playing alodescents, and that before "Equius" the creepiness had been growing on him year by year. Mr. Perkins said he was sick to death of adolescence. He is now 44.

After a long run at the Plymouth, "Equus" has reopened at the Helen Hayes, where, Mr. Perkins insists, it is almost a new play. "At the Plymouth it came at a steady flow," he said, "but at the Helen Hayes it comes in jabs. The first few nights

I played it at the Helen Hayes, it just didn't work. I was trying to recap the old performance, and it was like trying on someone else's shoes. Now I'm trying to mold it to the walls of a new theater."

Now, as Mr. Perkins says, the conventional picture of him as an actor has been rather like the one of David Fischlower as a person the conventional picture.

David Eisenhower as a person—boyish Consequently, he said, when it was announced that he would replace Anthony Hopkins as Dr. Dysart, the general reaction was, if not a yawn, at least a double take. (Later, Richard Burton would replace Mr. Perkins, who would then replace Mr. Burton.) Mr. Perkins said that to prepare for the role, he had gone to a vocal coach and, among other things, lowered his

Broadway Enjoying Black Talent Boom

By MEL GUSSOW

As weekend playgoers are discovering, Broadway is burgeoning with black theater. There is so much black talent working there-actors singers, writers, directors-and such a lively black audience that the theater district could al-most be retagged the Great Black Way. At the same time, white audiences are discovering black theater. This is not an insular variety of entertainment, but very much part of the mainstream.

This season's first dramatic and musical hits are both black: Ntozake Shange's "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow Is Enuf" at the Booth and George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" at the

They join such other popular shows as the black "Guys and Dolls," "Bub-bling Brown Sugar," "Me and Bessie" and the long-run "The Wiz." In for a limited run this season is "I Have a Dream," in which Billy Dee Williams plays the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

In addition, blacks are playing leading roles in "white shows." such as "Godspell" and "Pippin" (Northern J. Calloway now has the role created by Ben Vereen). The black wave is not expected to subside. Promised for this season are a musical about Josephine Baker and "A Broadway Musical," which is a musical about producing black musicals.

Broadway's big new stars are black: Clamma Dale and Donnie Ray Albert in "Porcy." Norma Donaldson and Robert Guillaume in "Guys and Dolls," Vivian Reed in "Bubbling Brown Sugar," Linda Hopkins in "Me and Bessie," Trazana Beverley in "Colored Girls." More black actors are working on Broadway than ever before, more than 60 in "Porgy" alone—and there are touring companies of "The Wiz," "Bubbling Brown" and "Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope."

Increase in Black Employment

"There's no question that there's been a great increase in black employsays Donald Grody, executive secretary of Actors Equity.

Black talent is not only on stage, but also behind the scenes: the directors Gilbert Moses, Oz Scott, Geoffrey Holder, Michael Schultz and Billy Wilson, the choreographers George Faison and Donald McKayle.

Concurrent with the expanded op-portunity for black talent is the rise of a black-theatergoing audience. For years, blacks in sizable numbers did not come to Broadway, Those who did would not find an identifiable image. Every season or two there might be one black show-"A Raisin in the Sun," "Purlie"—and in interracial plays blacks were generally relegated to minor roles. Norman Kean, a producer who thinks himself as the white "maven" of black theater, remembers when he was company manager of "Tiger Tiger Burning Bright" in 1962, a play with a powerhouse black cast: Claudia McNeil, the late Diana Sands, Cicely

Tyson, Robert Hooks, Roscoe Lee Browne, Al Freeman Jr. and Alvin

"I went to Harlem to sell that show." says Mr. Kean—and he couldn't give it away. "Blacks didn't think that going to the theater was something they did." The Van Peebles Effect

One turning point in terms of finding an audience was Melvin Van Peebles's "Aint Supposed to Die a Natural Death" in 1971. Mr. Van Peeble's efforts in audience development for his Breadway musical—he bused groups in from out of town—were so successful that he decided to stay in the black bnoking business, adding it to his other operations. There are now a number of prospering ticket agents who spe-cialize in black group sales.

First, black people discovered black theater; then white people followed. It is apparently a matter of condi-tioning. "The Wiz" almost closed right after it opened. Instead it took its message directly to blacks—on posters, radio and television—and built an enthusiastic audience. Now that it is in its second year, it has achieved credibility as the number of black theatergoers has increased.

Once initial resistance is overcome theatergoers realize the diversity of black theater. "Guys and Dolls" is a black reworking of a classic white musical, "Bubbling Brown" is a bubbling toast to the halcyon days of Harlem. "Me and Bessie" and "I Have a Dream" are testimonials to two towering black figures, Bessie Smith and Dr. King. "Porgy and Bess" is a white man's deeply empathetic picture of the black

The most consequential of the dramatic shows is probably "Colored Girls." It deals provocatively with a concern that is new to Broadway: the black woman's burden. A Mostly Musical Wave

Up to now, the black wave on Broad-way has been almost entirely musical. With few exceptions, black drama has not found a home there. Three of the finest black plays of recent years.
Charles Gordone's "No Place to Be Somebody," Joseph A. Walker's "The River Niger" and Leslie Lee's "The First Breeze of Summer," all of them successes Off Broadway, had only abbreviated runs on Broadway.

At the same time that black musicals have been winning admirers in the commercial theater, there has been a corresponding surge in the creation of black drama. There are theaters all over New York that train and nurture black talent; most of these groups belong to the Black Theater Alliance.

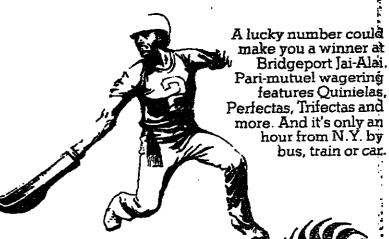

Ed Bullins, Ray Aranha, Phikip Hayes Dean and Richard Wesley are among our most talented playwrights. But they are not yet to be found on Broadway. They are Off Broadway (chiefly at the Negro Ensemble Company, the Public Theater and the American Place Theaters, Off Off Broadway (at such places as the Henry Street Settlement's New Federal Theater) and in regional work. What is there to say? Instead I will speak about the mother, my mother. The mother in Days is the Trees, and the one in The Sea Wall (novel) are one in the same. She is ours, yours and mine. The one I knew and loved was French. She was a woman from the North of France, the daughter of farmers from Flanders, those endless plains of wheat in northern Europe. ald be 100 years old now (she had her last child around age 40). A good stu-dent—on scholarships—as I was myself Jater on—she studied to be a teacher. At 25 she left for Indochina, that was between 1905 and 1910. There, in villages lost in the brush, she taught French and arithme-

At that time piracy was rampant in Indo-chine, as was leprosy, famine, and cholera. Nothing stopped our mother and she was to speak of her young years there as a very happy period of her life. Then she married and we arrived: three children. When I think of her now, it is her residen name think of her now, it is her maiden name that comes to mind: Marie Legrand. What could be more French? And yet a grandfather was Spanish, which is probably why
Marie had rich black hair along with the pale green eyes of a blond. Widowed when she was still young—she must have been 41—with only her modest job to support herself and her three children, poverty prentually became a way of life.

Another picture of her I can recall is her silhouette tramping across the rice planta-tions, looking like a Vietnamese peasant.

Stubborn, Passionately involved with her children. Martyr of her own love for us. Naturally she was determined we would all receive a proper education since being able matically reduce the hardships of life. I see her most of all as the luckiest break of our childhood. This woman who detested art in all its forms, who read nothing, who never went to the theatre, nor to the movies, was a kind of untarned, undarinted force of nature, it was that force which gave us life. No, I did not have a mother enthrailed with painting or art. Nothing stunning", nor "fascinating." Nothing other than the continuing adventure of

When I wrote the text of Days in the Trees. I thought, in fact I was convinced, that the subject was solely that of the love of a mother for her son—a passionate love, an oceanic current engulfing everything in its path. I think now that while this theme has remained a major one, another has claimed its own place in the play: that of the relationship between the two women, the mother and Marcelle, the son's mistress. Because what they know and feel about Jacques, the adored son and lover, about Jacques, the agorea son and jover, creates a bond that overcomes the class differences that separates them. Even though at first, the social gap between a 25-year-old whore and a 75-year-old mother of irreproachable morals, would appear insurmountable. During the revival of DAYs at the Theorem of Ocupy lest winder. This is the Theorem of Ocupy lest winder. the Theatre d'Orsay last winter, this un-expected aspect of the play gave it an equally unexpected freshness. It is strange how a text can conceal certain values which we curseive ignore because of our bindoess to a given as fundamental (demonstrated here) as the rapport between every day life: working, eating, sleeping and loving her three "gnos." (Victuamese Word meaning child). It is no wonder that was able to make of each day such a new,

such a vigorous experience.

Other aspects of the play which seemed shocking to me twenty years ago, i.e., the son who didn't work, but spent his time gambling, do not shock me any more. Even the fact that he steaks from his mother no longer seems to scandalous. Our notions of what is scandalous have changed. It is much more Jacques' brutality to Marcelle which shocks me, or rather the fact that she can say only at the end of the play, to put an end to this masquine habit of having the last word. The son now appears ich more alone, cut off, than the women. With the changes in our mores incredible changes during the last ten years-I have more sympathy for him than I did. He is alone. He is no longer young. Yet she, the mother, is still playing the same role that she was when she was twenty, placing him above everything and everyone. And he, innocent and unwilling subject of the fantastic fascination he holds for her, wishes and waits for her death so that he may at last be free of being needed and loved by anyone, and therefore free at last to abandon himself completely to the abysa, an orphan of the world.

When the book from which this play was adapted was first published, I went to see my mother in her last residence, a house on the banks of the Loire River where she lived alone. She received me lying on her bed, dressed all in black, as if for a recent mourning. She refused to embrace me or to make conversation. She merely said she could not understand how I could have invented a story of a son so unfounded as that of Days in the Trees. She added that she was satisfied that she had been fair with her children and that she had behaved with the same self-sacrificing de-votion toward all times. I tried to explain that a preference for one child is something that is translated by infinitessimal, barely perceptible, details. Furthermore even though a mother did nothing consciously, though a momer dan nothing consciously, the difference in the expression of her love was felt by the less-loved children as a kind of cruelty. My mother did not listen and insisted that she could not understand what I was saying, I left her on her martyred mother's bed after she had told me how much she deplored the fact that I was writing books rather than, for example, going into business or returning to cultivating the farms in the North. Her words concerning ess are repeated Verbatim in the play.

that last visit to her son on that last trip to Europe. She died much later at 80, forced out by war, far from the Indochina which had become her homeland. Her last words were to ask for my older brother. She desited one presence only, that of her son. I was in the room, I watched them embrac-ing each other as they sobbed, in despair at having to separate at last. They did not

y now, moviegoers know who the "Marathon Man" is. He's Dustin Hoffman, a panicked graduate student who is pursued through the streets of New York by secret agents, double agents and Nazi ogres. But who is the "Marathon" woman, the harried hero's enigmatic classmate whose extra-curricular activities include spying, skullduggery and sexual deceit?

Marthe Keller, a 30-year-old Swiss actress previously seen here in Claude Lelouch's relentlessly romantic "And Now My Love," is suddenly the most promising Hollywood personality of the season. In addition to "Marathon Man"—a runaway hit—she has already completed John Frankenheimer's "Black Sinday" a thriller in which the plants. has already completed John Frankenheimer's "Black Sunday," a thriller in which she plays an Arab terrorist bent on blowing up the Super Bowl, and Sydney Pollack's "Bobby Deerfield," in which she plays a dying French girl who perks up gloomy Al Pacino and gives him the will to live. Not that the film—her favorite to date—will conclude with a tearful, lushly orchestrated deathbed rip-off of "Love Story." "It is very simple," said Miss Keller in impeccable English. "I just die."

Miss Keller appears so poised that it is difficult to believe that a severe case of litters nearly short-circuited her shot at stardom, "On the night before I was to make my screen test in Hollywood, I couldn't get to sleep. Finally, at 6 in the morning, I called room service and ordered a bottle of red wine. Two hours later, my agent was pushing me under the shower and asking how I could possibly have gotten drunk on the day of my screen test. But by 9 o'clock, I was in front of the camera and everyone thought I was fine. A little funny, but fine."

In the beginning, she had mixed feelings about acting in "Marathon Man." "The girl was a typical Mata Hari, just a pretry decoration. But I am not a model," said Miss Keller, a trim and graceful girl with soft red hair and hazel eyes. "I have acted with the Berliner Ensemble and with the Schiller Theater and in Berliner Washed hast patential." Theater, and in Paris I was voted best actress in 'A Day in the Death of Joe Egg.' So I said to the director, John Schlesinger, Please give me a chance to show another color. Let me fall in love with Dustin. And he did; he even let me die for Dustin. That was my idea, to die."

She does not say whether she dies in "Black Sunday," but she does say that she at first spurned the role of the explosive Arab, partly because she is half-Jewish and partly because she did not wish to be slotted in villainous roles. "But I changed the mind when I took my four year old can Alaran. my mind when I took my four-year-old son, Alexan-der, to see 'Snow White' and he said, 'You know, Mommy, I prefer the bad lady. Snow White is so boring.

Miss Keller is bored by people who ask why she never married Alexander's father, director Philippe de Broca, "Perhaps I am heeper-sensitive," she sighed in a rare linguistic lapse, "but I feel very uncomfortable about this question. I am not married because I am old-fashioned. I do not choose to marry a man I don't love I did love Alexander's father once, but now I like him. This way, I know that until the

I am run-down and, like a car, I need new batteries. Perhaps I will move to New York, work on my English, study with Lee Strasberg and find a play to do, maybe some Strindberg or ibsen."

On the other hand, Hollywood may come courting with "The Son of Bobby Deerfield." "If something very special comes glong, I might say yes, But—for aure-not this month."

Film Festival: 'Harlan County'

By RICHARD EDER

OAL MINERS are, a permanent underground in more than the literal sense. They trouble any society they support: like feet, the more they are weighed down by their owners the more pain they give.

In East Germany and Poland the authorities treat them with a special deference. Even in its harsher times the Franco regime was never able to stop sembly were useless. A hammer would stop a mile below ground; the man in the next chamber would go to see what the matter was; the silence would spread and a line of stubborn, blackened men came to the surface and stayed until the Government could figure out some way of getting them back

Miners' strength, their assertiveness and solidarity are based largely on their economic power, and where coalmining becomes marginal to the economy of a region, they lose much of their ability to fight. There is another factor, though. Miners in their tunnels, vulnerable to explosions, cave-ins and destroyed lungs, weigh on a society's conscience as well as its economy. Their grievances command an instinc-

One of the reasons for the defeat of Prime Minister Edward Heath in Britain two years ago was a widespread feeling that in choosing the miners as the target for his austerity fight he Underground had picked just the wrong target.

"Harlan County, U.S.A.," to be shown tonight and tomorrow at the New York Film Festival in Alice Tuliy Hall, is a full-length documentary of the year-long strike carried on by the miners at the Brookside works in eastern Kentucky. It has flaws, some of them consider-able, but it is a fascinating and moving work. Its strength lies chiefly in its ability to illuminate the peculiar frightfulness and valor of coal-mining, and made it clear just why coal-miners can never be rightly treated as a less than a very special case.

Barbara Koppie and her photog raphers have got right inside the life of the miners and their families in their long struggle against the operators of the Brookside mine and its parent company, the Duke Power Company. It is a brilliantly detailed report from one side of a battle that caused one death, several shootings and a flood of violent bitterness; and that brought back to Harlan County memories of the much bloodier coal strikes of the early 1930's.

The strike began after the miners voted to join the United Mine Workers of America, which had lost its hold in eastern Kentucky—and the owners refused to sign a standard UNEW con-tract. It was not until more fluin a year later—after the violence had classified the life of one striker — that Pake Power, under strong pressure fruit Federal mediators, agreed to sign.

The film shows the picketing the use of state troopers to keep the road open for nonstrikers, the confrontations, a shooting the efforts of the strikers and their families to remain organized and united through the long year. It intercuts old footage from the 1931 strike, where five miners were killed. It also details the successful hattle of reformers to oust the old national leadership of the U.M.W.; and the support given to the Harlen County strike by the new leadership under Arnold R. Miller.

Some of the thematic interweaving is awkward, but this is more than made up for by the extraordinary intimacy Miss Kopole has achieved with the strikers and with the bitter life o fthe strike. There is an old miner lungs form by coal dust, who makes our chests hurt as h etalks. There are frightening scenes of tight-lipped strike-breakers, guns openly displayed rush-ing through the pickets. There is a terrifying right scene where shors are fired and we see the leader of the territying night scene where shors are fired and we see the leader of the strike-breakers brandishing a pistol in the cab of his pick-up truck. A Woman Film Maker In the Coal Fields

By JENNIFER DUNNING

In the 1930's the coal mines of Kentucky's Harlan County were the scene of some of the bloodiest battles in the history of American trade unionism. Forty years later, as history threatened to repeat itself, a soft-spoken young film maker named Barbara Kopple was there to record it, in the faces and words of officials of the Duke Power Company and the United Mine Workers, of armed strikebreakers and rankand-file organizers and, most of all, of the miners, their wives and the children of Harlan County.

Tonight at 9:30 and tomorrow at 6 P.M., Miss Kopple's first film, "Harlan County, USA," will be shown at the New York Film Festival at Alice Tully Hall. It is a testimony to courage and a document of change, both personal and historical, and marks one of the rare times that a first film by a fledgling director has been accepted for showing at the festival. Miss Kopple grew up in Shrub Oak, N.Y., and the only claim to previous film activity in her family is that of an uncle, Murray Bennett, who worked on the script for "Casablanca."

"I began to work on 'Harlan County a long time ago, when I was 26," Miss Kopple said in a recent interivew. "I'm now 30, unfortunately." She had worked for several years before as a "go-fer," sound technician and editor for the Maysles brothers and National Eductional Television.

Interest Began in College

Her introduction to film was through a clinical psychology project at Morris Harvey College in Charleston, W. Va., in which she filmed people who had had lobotomies and encouraged them to film one another and to help her edit the film. "I read a book," she said, "called 'Editing Room Technique' that said cameras were simple to operate, that you just pushed a button. So I went ahead, and I was caught."

"Harlan County, USA" cost $200,000, and financing it has been a long, in-volved process. "I had to scavenge as I went along, and it was painful, said. "But I wanted control of the film, so I had to turn down some offers." Miss Kopple received some money from foundations and church groups that had never been involved with independent film making.

But "Harlan County, USA" may be the first movie in which two months of filming was financed with a Master Charge card-Miss Kopple's. "I'm paying the penalty for that, however," she sighed, admitting that she was still in debt to the credit company.

Having decided that "if you're going to bleed, you might as well bleed for something of your own," Miss Kopple took to the coal fields of Onio and West Virginia in 1972, filming in blacklung clinics and recording internal union struggles as the Miners for Democracy, a movement within the United Mine Workers, wrested control from the entrenched leadership of W. A. Boyle.

Lived With Miners' Families

And then, in July 1973, miners struck in Brookside, in Harlan County, in an ultimately successful attempt at unionization, and Miss Kopple moved into the community with Hart Perry, a cameraman; Anne Lewis, her assistant director, and a fluctuating staff of any additional technicians she could afford to subsidize from week to week Miss Kopple lived with the miners' families and became an intimate spectator of the 13-month strike. As it grew violent and a young miner was killed, she herself began to carry a revolver as pro-

"Harlan County was the first test for the new union leadership," Miss Kopple said. "And there is such a sense of history there. The ritual of unionism has been handed down from grandfather to father to son. People who had been in the battles of the 1930's would take me to the spots where they'd fought. As they talked, I'd see it all, standing there and knowing that the next morning the same thing would be happening in a different spot.

"I can't describe what it was like being there. There were moonshiners and snakehandlers and it was 'shoot first, talk later.' After the strike, some of the strikebreakers joined the Ku Klux Klan, and a public school principal had the home economics class make their robes. Threats are still being made. In a society like ours, where we are so afraid to do anything, a people under the worst kind of oppression possible, living in a company town in poor conditions with no one on their side, were risking their necks to get basic human rights. They're incredible peo-

From Dawn Almost to Dawn

Her workdays ran from dawn, wh the picketers assembled, to 2:30 the next morning. Miss Kopple's camera seems to penetrate every cranny of that world, from courthouses and boardrooms to miners' kitchens and the bend in the road where the most vio-lent confrontations took place.

"I had thought being a woman would make things tougher," she said, "but actually people in the coal fields were less guarded with me. The thugs, the company people and some of the miners would call me 'honey' and 'sweetie,' but it didn't matter to me so long as we were relating.

"We were not allowed to film the coal mines at first, but I wrote letters telling people I had come from New York, where there is little industry, and

Barbara Kopple, director of "Harian County, USA" which will be shown tonight and tomorrow at the New York Film Festival. "I just shut my mouth and tried not to show how little I knew" that I had never seen anything like the mines. I didn't tell them exactly what we were doing, but it was pretty much the truth, and we got into mines no one else would have been taken to. I just shut my mouth and watched and listened and tried not to show how little I knew. "The union told me not to worry, that since there was one road about; going to Harlan County and one out I couldn't get lost. We drove in that first, loggy morning, and there were the state troopers with guns on one side and the miners on the other." Union officials introduced her to the miners. "They hugged me," she re-called. "They were so eager to tell their

The Screen: Fassbinder's 'Fear of Fear

By VINCENT CANBY

HE most terrifying fear is the fear that has no discernable cause. It simply exists, Like an air plant, it requires no soil to flourish and grow, only a host.

Margot (Margit Carstensen), the heroine in Rainer Werner Fassbinder's spare, spooky, always sunlit new film, "Fear of Fear" (Angstvor der Angst), knows that the anxieties she began to feel in the last months of her pregnancy, and that have become more and more frequent since the birth of her child, have no particular source.

Margot is beautiful, with the perfect features of a department-store mannequin. She has a husband and two small children she loves. They have a car, a comfortable apartment, an idealized middle-class existence. Her mother-inlaw and sister-in-law are continually prying into Margot's life and disapproving, but they can be dealt with.

Yet something is decidedly wrong. There are times Margot feels as if she were existing under water. Conmunication is dulled. Movements are

UA EASTSIDE CINEMA 12, 3:10,

Stage: Eve Merriam's 'Club'

HE DIFFERENCE between a notion and an idea, between cuteness and cleverness is illustrated by Eve Merriam's mu-'The Chub," which opened last night at the Circle in the Square

The club in the title is a stuffy, all-male private establishment, circa 1905. The members, who would be at home at a convention of male chauvinists or whatever they would have been called at at the turn of the century—sing songs of the period, such as "Pinky Panky Poo," and one with lyrics that go, "Oh what blissy when we kissy." The score, uncredited, treats women teasingly and scornfully as sex objects, playthings and gold-diggers.

Occasionally the music-one piano stops and the characters banter, as in this exchange: Question: "Do any of you chaps believe in clubs for women?".

dressed as men. That's the entire show. In tails, hats, carnations and canes, the actresses lower their voices and pre-tend to swagger. What might have been a novel 10-minute turn in a satirical revue is stretched to a very thin poet. Miss Merriam has clearly in-tended to make a political statement about the suppression of women by men, but instead of being incisive, "The Club" is as quaint and arch as the material that it is saturizing.

In the program, the actresses are copy identified by their first initial and last name—M. Dell and G. Hodes, although Miss Merriam retains her Eve.

The final "surprise" is the finale, when one of the male impersonators unplus the right blonde but on her head lets down her hair, and then, raising her youe to it natural level tells up that the in latting ural level, tells us that she is letting down her hair. So much for the difference between men and women!

One's disappointment with the show is deepened by the fact that many ta-lented hands and feet are at work. The ladies are all good singers and dancers, with particular mention for G. Hodes, who is forced to conceal her operation airs and striking looks behind silly songs and a starchy manner. At one point, in a joke within the joke, she puts on a long skirt and "pretends," with apparent discomfort, to be a

Opera: Met Is Steady in Season's First 'Meistersinger'

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG

HE first "Meistersinger" of the season, Wednesday night at the Metropolitan Opera, saw a cast liberally sprinkled with debuts in addition to the presence of two singers heard in their roles for the first time. This cast suggested a Metropoli-tan mini-raid on German opera houses. Gerd Breineis, the Walther, Peter Meven, the Pogner, and Dieter Weller, the Beckmasser, all are German-born and active in German houses. Each was making his debut. So was Ellen Shade, the American soprano. She sang the role of Eva. John Carpenter from New Orleans was another American making his debut, although he was heard as Vogelgesang, a role that is next to anonymous. Singing Kothner for the first time was Allan Monk; and Andrij Dobriansky sang his first Schwarz, another mini-role.

This was a good, steady "Meister-singer" performance. It also was one that reflected the current difficulties in Wagner casting. The great Hans Sachs baritones of a previous generation have virtually disappeared. There is no tenor around who can supply a thrilling Walther von Stolzing. Nor, curiously, are there many great Evas in circulation.

If one singer stole the show Wednes-day night, it was Mr. Weller as Beckmesser. He brought to the role a new conception, some of it the result of his own physical makeup. Unlike most Beckmessers of the past, he is tall, young-looking and has long, spindly legs. So he provided a Beckmesser more petulant than malevolent. He played the character as a studious-looking mama's boy, prissy, bespectacled, pe-dantic, often mincing in movement. It was an interesting departure, though Wagner himself, who was satirizing the Viennese critic Eduard Hanslick, probably would have insisted on more stupidity, stubborness and rattiness in the character. Wagner was a good hater. No matter, Mr. Weller was perfectly convincing without resorting to burlesque, and he sang the role with a good, clear voice. He obviously is a valuable complement to any company for character roles

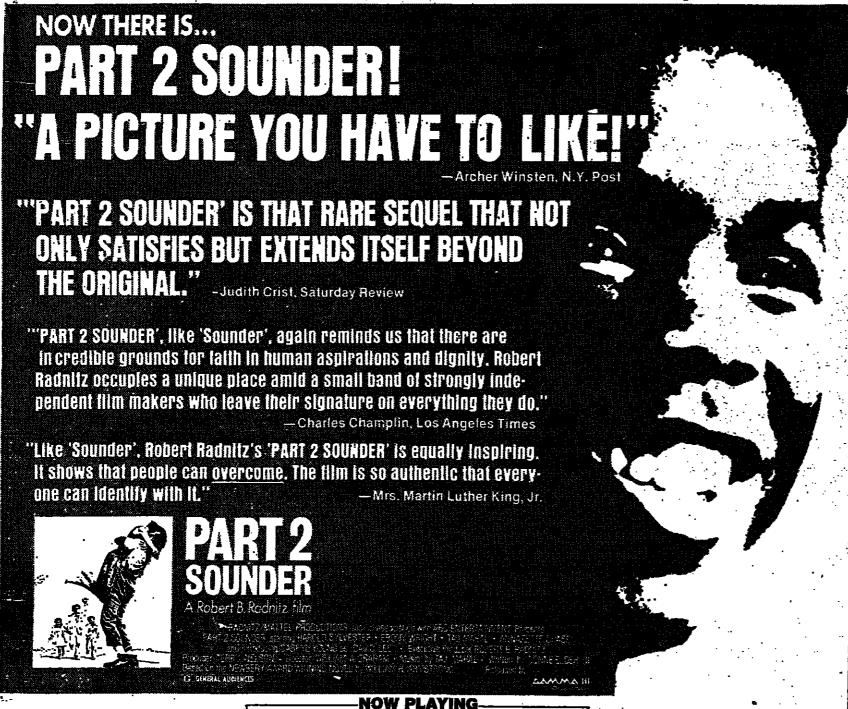

Mr. Brenneis provided a Walther that was dramatically traditional, and per-haps a shade clumsy in movement. He is a singer with the baritonal under-pinning that a heldentenor needs, and the voice has considerable heft. It is not one of the more freely emitted instruments of our time, but the voice does have authority, and considering the present state of "Meistersinger" tenors, Mr. Weller's projection of the role commanded attention.

A less firm impression was made by Miss Shade. She is attractive physically, and is a fine actress. She also showed that she could spin forth some lovely lyric singing. But when she put pressure on the voice, as at the beginning of the Quintet, a pronounced tremolo was

Nor did Mr. Meven fully take over the role of Pogner. He is an experienced singer, but the voice is dry and of Stewart, who had everything going is him except sheer voice. His was intelligent, musical, well-acted conception, handicapped by a voice that has minimum of color these days. Keeneth Riegel sang a splendid David Mr. Monk was equally good as Keetingel Mr. Monk was equally good as Kothne and Shirley Love did everything the had to be done as Magdalene. Phili-Booth sang the short role of the Watch man with plently of voice, but the direction at the end of the second as has him doing some fussy things to go a cheap laugh. Nor, really, should Sach make an appearance at this momen

Sixten Ehrling conducted. There are those who find his work pedantic. But surely there is something to be sale for his clear, logical work, his control and his feeling for tradition. Only ir, the third-act Predude was there a miscalculation. At such a slow termo calculation. At such a slow tempo

"One of the most visually beautiful films I've ever seen, an almost miraculous achievement in range of color and sensuous detail."

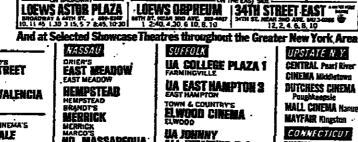

"If sin, like truth and beauty, is in the eye of the beholder, 'Story of Sin' is a delight to the eye. Eroticism, costuming, settings and photography are artistically detailed. Lovers engulfed in newly found ecstacy leave little to the imagination, and lust and murder are made equally specific in rich, red damask rooms. Mr. Borowczyk is just as careful in maintaining a fast, narrative pace. Eva is curvaceous, genuinely winning and realistic, both as the virgin introduced to aid swirling white petticoats or nude black corsets as the seemingly callous streetwalker."

"A hothouse tale of morality filmed with appropriate Victorian delicacy and an always-smoldering suggestion of sensuality."

For years people will be talking about the erotic rose scene.

These ratings are based on the reviewer's reaction to food and price in relation to comparable establishments.

Inspired by the enchanting Provence restaurant of the same name in St.-Paul-de-Vence, this version is also enchanting in appearance, with brick walls, natural wood, hanging plants and a beautiful blue French provincial print used on upholstery. There are a few really delicious things to eat here, too, including excellent, coarse, hard-crust bread, butter aromatic with herbs, excellent Brie and chevre cheese and pastry from Bonté. But those are the only features to be recommended, and outside of a fair fish soup, all prepared dishes bordered on the dreadful. But because of the charm of the decor and the publicity such a place is likely to come in for, a

The second disappointment was Akbar, a new Indian restaurant on Park Avenue in the Ritz Tow-ers, where the Spanish Pavilion and, later, Filoxenia formerly held sway. Not even the stunning stainedglass panels set in walls and skylight could make up for the heavy-handed greasy fried appetizers, the innocuous soups and the dried-out broiled tandoori specials that came so quickly it was hard to believe they were cooked from scratch when ordered. Some of the sauces were subtle and well-spiced, but the chicken, shrimp or lamb they covered were meager, tough and tasteless. Prices do not seem high here by current standards, but considering portion sizes, they turn out to be so. Dinner for three with one drink each and a modest bottle of wine came to about $60 before tipping.

Restaurants A Turkish Delight ***

Street, is still getting under way but already has a Ian club. Regarding fan clubs, let me suggest that when the membership decides to write letters to a restaurant reviewer urging him to try a place, it is a good idea to use different papers and different typewriters and different phraseology to give the impression that each letter is individually inspired. Formulas to avoid are: "I just happened to be passing by the other night and dropped into . . . " and "I hate to let the secret out, but . . .

A better ploy: "The neighborhood needs this restaurant, and it doesn't seem to be doing very well, so I hope you can give it a boost." Responding to such letters when they seemed genuine, we have discovered a couple of good little restaurants at the expense of wasting time at too many that were failing for a good reason—bad food. We finally visited Divan, in spite of the overstrenuous efforts of its fan club, when a genuine Turkish food buff recommended it.

Divan is serving excellent food and a lot of it in attractive quarters. It's a small place divided down the middle by a look-through partition separating the pleasant bar from the dining tables. The decor, sufficiently plushy to suggest a Turkish atmosphere, is nicely unified by a series of blowups of late 18th-century prints of views of Constantinople seen from the Golden Horn and the Bosporus. Pretty little oil lamps on the tables-along with flowers- are a nice touch. The waiters are attentive and personable, and go about their jobs with grace and style, although service is likely to be slow on a busy night. Never mind. You can listen to the Turkish music, which is kept at a proper level and is very agreeable

As prices for good food go in New York, Divan's are moderate. Full course dinners of appetizer, soup, entree, salad, pilaf, dessert and beverage run from $8, when the entree is turlu, a baked-vegetable dish, to $12.50 if you choose istakoz kuyrugu-boiled lobster tails. Shish kebab dinners

Ordering a la carte, we found that the combination appetizer platter, described as "enough for two or more" ($7.50), was indeed a great plenty, with generous samples of such familiar dishes as tarama (red mullet roe purée). humus (mashed chickpeas, sesame butter and herbs), borek (feta cheese and spinach pie), valance dolma (grape leaves stuffed with rice, pine nuts and herbs), a couple of eggplant variations and the infrequently encountered fried liver cubes 4 Copyright N Y Turned 1976 called arnavut cigen ly do better than to settle for the borek alone ($1.75). It is extraordinarily light and flaky as to crust and very fresh as to the spinach filling, with bits of onion hardly cooked. There is also a cucumber soup, served cold, that we found excellent ($1.25). On one occasion the soup du jour (also $1.25) was rice with yogurt and mint, served hot. If it's on the list when you make your visit, you're lucky. We followed it with hunkar begendi as the entree ($6.50 à la carte, $9.50 on the dinner) and felt we had wound up a beautiful Turkish evening. Hunkar begendi is cubes of heef (lamb if you prefer and ask for it) on a bed of eggplant puree, with rice and vegetables alongside, including baby okra.

From the several entrees we have tried it is apparent that you should be safe right down the line with your favorite Turkish items. Among the more offbeat ones, we very much liked karides oriental—jumbo shrimps dipped in eggs and flour, fried in deep fat and served with a thick, rich purée of ground walnuts ($7, or $9.75 on the dinner). The walnut puree may be offered elsewhere in New York, but this was our first encounter with it outside Turkey.

Looking for something light after too many appetizers. we were fairly successful with pilic billur, baby eggplant stuffed with boned chicken ($6.50 and $9.50) Salads that came with the entrees were exceptional-tomato, olives, cucumber, lettuce, carrot, red cabbage, parsley and onion, all very fresh Regarding stars, a funny thing happened at the Divan.

After two anonymous visits when we were quite happy to have discovered a potential three-starrer, we came back with friends under our own name and were not quite so well pleased. The kitchen went out of its way to present the dishes elaborately, and things got pretty slow. The verdict that night would have been three on effort, two on achievement. But three stars it is, if for no other reason than that this may be the only instance on record where anonymous guests came off better than an identified restaurant

WAVERLY INN_16 Bank St. 929-4377. It is easy to linger all evening over dinner in this enclosed countyard paved with Registores and vauled by lad, old trees. Everything on the manu is homemade and freshly prepared from the breads to the recertable.

Begin with a nich vegetable soup or a spicy chiled gazpacho, served with a baskel of treship baked roks. Then by a delicably broadel birst trout with laron or the memorable boneless chicken breast sauteed in lemon and gurlic. All entress are served with a crusp mored sabed and a chaice of two impercably fresh vegetables. For dessent, decide between the ruch Wielesly ludge color or a perfect place of packan pile—or spite both with your partner. JOE KIPNESS KIPPYS PLACE at GALAXY on the Palisades

Joe Kipness, famous theatrical producer and restaurateur is proud to announce that he has teamed with cousin Ted Kipnis, former owner of the Seville Hotel in Miami Beach, Florida, to now produce KIPPYS PLACE at GALAXY, which will soon be under construction at the spectacular GALAXY APARTMENT COMPLEX—three fantastic towers of incomparable beauty-a whole new world of luxury soaring high above the Hudson River atop the Palisades in Guttenberg, New Jersey. World renowned industrial designer, Fred Fox who designed all of Joe's restaurants and won several awards in the process, is designing the magnificent new KIPPYS PLACE. Joe Kipness brought such shows as "High Button Shoes," "La Flume De Ma Tante," "Seesaw" and "Applause" to Broadway and is presently casting his newest musical "Fourscore" and in the restaurant field, produced such hits as Hawaii Kai, Kippys Steak and Lobster House, Dinty Moore's and New York's current favorite, Joes Pier 52. Needless to say. Hippys will be THE showplace of both New York and New Jersey with the accent on wall-to-wall elegance, expert service, and the ultimate in Continental American cuisine. There'll be many delightful touches such as the "Love Mest" Cocktail Lounge and Bar featuring dancing and entertainment—a romantic, intimate haven for lovers, where Kippy assures us, "Even if you go in fightn", you'll come out lovin"."

Watch the papers for progress reports of KIPPYS PLACE AT GALAXY and the announcement of its gala opening date. In the meantime, when in New York, drop in to JOES PIER 52, 144 WEST 52nd St.

P.S.: Joe Kipness and cousin Ted Kipnis may spell their names differently, but one thing they do have in common is their expertise in the restaurant

The strong emotional motivation Miss Koner has always brought to her work can be expected to show up on tomorrow's program, with Koner choreography from 1953 to two recent pieces. These are "A Time of Crickets," a joyful work inspired in part by T. S. Eliot, and a hopeful but darker piece, "Solitary Songs," which contains a tribute to the late conductor Fritz Mahler, who was Miss Koner's husband and Gustav Mahler's second cousin. dance can still catch up with films that recorded her as Iago's wife in the origi-nal 1949 cast of "The Moor's Pavane," Jose Limon's celebrated retelling of "Othello." No young dancer today can match that passionate performance.

Miss Koner last performed here in 1972, when she danced her elegiac solo: tribute to Doris Humphrey, the moderndance pioneer with whom she worked after World War II, following a 15-year career as a concert solo dancer. The Dance Consort's debut marks the first time that Miss Koner is choreographer and director of a company with which she will not be performing.

A Question in Leningrad

But there is no doubt that the imprint of her personality will be felt, as the following tale may illustrate: In 1970, the Alvin Ailey Dance Theater became the first group of modern dancers to visit the Soviet Union since Miss Koner's own visit of nearly a year there in 1936 as a solo dancer. Now, 34 years later, a stranger in Leningrad asked Mr. Ailey if he knew of "Paulina"

Where One Man Hopes The Jazz Will Be Heavenly

By JOHN S. WILSON

Heavenly jazz, according to a man who has formed an organization called Heavenly Jazz Inc., is jazz that can be heard without the babble of people who aren't listening to the music.

Paul Weinstein, a printing and design executive and a jazz fan since child-hood, says that jazz clubs bother him because he cannot listen to the musi-cians he has gone to hear without getting vocal interference from other persons in the room. This, among other reasons has encouraged him to start a series of four Sunday jazz concerts this weekend in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue at 90th Street, a setting he hopes will encourage listening. The first concert, Sunday at 5 P.M., will feature three pianists - Dave McKenna Jimmy Rowles and Roland Hanna. Mr. Weinstein was introduced to jazz as a pre-teen-ager because his father was a close friend of Eddie Condon and Ernie Anderson when they were putting on a pioneering series of weekend afternoon jazz concerts at Town Hall in the early 1940's and young Paul was able to attend. He has been developing his interest for 30 years. He welcomed the opportunity to create an alternative atmosphere for jazz when the church and its neighbor the Day School were looking for fund-raising ideas. Mr. Weinstein, whose son, Paul Jr., attends the school, suggested jazz. The first jazz benefit for the school and the church was held in the spring of 1975. That first concert had Al Cohn and Zoot Sims playing saxophone, Roland Hanna, piano, Bucky Pizzarelli on:

Art: de Kooning's New Frontiers

By JOHN RUSSELL

OME OF THE MOST memorable marks ever made with paint on canvas have been made at one time or another by willen de Kooning. Those marks of his have a life of their own: wayward, full-fleshed, temerarious. Sometimes they connect with pictorial ambitions of a kind once nurtured by Rubens, Rembrandt, fordaens. Sometimes they seem to be there just for the hell of it. Either way, they suggest that Mr. de Kooning is still probing the frontiers of possibility in painting and that one day one of them painting and that one day one of them will give way again.

His new paintings at Mavier Fourcade
Inc. 36 East 75th Street, are there through Nov. 20. Their point of origin is in landscape, though here and there we can glimpse a head or make a happy landfall on what is unmistakably that same buttery female body which drove Mr. de Kooning to paint so many sumptuous nudes some 25 years ago. As for landscape, it would be difficult to pin any one location to it. Devotees of the Hamptons could count to a thinned-down green which might relate to those undemonstrative flatlands; but in reality Mr. de Kooning's landscapes are a portrait of nowhere and every-where, simultaneously.

They are also self-portraits. They stand, that is to say, for a settling of accounts with the self. Nothing in those accounts is faked. The omnidirectional accounts is faked. The omnidirectional thrust of the paint tends nowhere toward a foregone balancing. On the contrary every push and pull is charted Mr. de Kooning in his 70's is still inventing new ways of mixing the paint, new ways of getting it to do his will, new ways to accommodate the thursts of the revene the thrusts of the psyche.

And just when we begin to suspect that something in his success is owed that something in his success is owed to a format that is slightly taller than ourselves and slightly wider than the spread of our arms, Mr. de Kooning makes us think again by showing the relatively quite small painting (over the chimney piece, upstairs) which has quite as much energy as any of its larger cousins. They are giddy adventures, these paintings: impossibly and implausibly rich, and by no means to be exhausted at one visit.

Cleve Gray (Betty Parsons Gallery

Cleve Gray (Betty Parsons Gallery, 24 West 57th Street): "Trouble in Para-dise" was one of the best-ever titles for a movie that just about lived up to it. It could also serve as a generic title for Cleve Gray's new paintings, each one of which sets up a scraphic situa-tion and then goes on to thicken the

They start, that is to say, from a double rectangle which fills the whole of the canvas and comes in two related colors that stand for fullness and heart's ease. Mr. Gray floats, we float, the canvas floats. Care is a million miles away.

But then, somewhere near the bottom of the canvas, there breaks out a most ambiguous commotion. If there are tan-trums in paradise, this may be what they look like. We are faced with suggestions of book and tusk, intimations of tooth and claw. A vindictive energy sserts itself just for a mome the pleasure of the show lies in dering just what sort of a chry shoot om Mr. Gray will think ou Through Oct. 30.

Jan Borofsky (Paula Cooper G 155 Wooster Street): What if and bition had nothing to do with if canvases hung on the wall in street way as to "bring our the best them?

Through Oct. 30.

Ed Kerns (Rosa Esman Gallery, West 57th Street): Ed Kerns's paintings have the look of fragmen of a wall which has weathered the co turies, been painted over and over, b used as a blackboard for mathemati or geometrical demonstrations, generally lived a full life. Someti one, sometimes two, sometimes the such rectangular fragments constit the picture. A hooded light fights way through somewhere in back of canvas, and the final effect is that a roomful of people, each one of the locked in with his own though Through Oct. 23.

Edward Koren (Terry Dintent Gallery, 50 West 57th Street): I Koren's particular contribution to re-iconography of our city is that strain and barely human creature—a hedge. hog with a college education?—while crawls on its quite possibly weblar feet through the pages of the New Yorker magazine. But he can be very funny on other subjects, too: notal the short-order painter who can tue out whatever kind of canvas the cu tomer may ask for. "One lyrical lans scape, heavy on the Wyeth, light of the Expressionism" is the caption the week Through Oct. 30.

French 18th-Century Prints (Allian Française, 22 East 60th Street): Tr little show of prints from the Billiothèque Nationale in Paris on the theme of "America as seen from Franin the 18th Century." The B. N. h. not exactly stripped itself of its greatest treasures for the occasion, but there is a spirited engraving of Belliamin Franklin receiving Mirabeau the Elysian Fields, with Roussea: Voltaire and Montesquieu as witness and Cicero and Demosthenes some where in the bleachers. Music: Orchestre de Paris

RANCE has not been niggardly in its musical contributions to the celebration of our Bicentennial. First it sent the Opera de Paris to appear at the Metropolitan Opera House and at the John F. Kennedy Centar for the Performing Arts in Washington, and now it is the turn of the Orchestre de Paris, which is making an American tour. The Orchestre de Paris, founded by Charles Munch after he left the Boston Symphony, is the finest of the French orchestras. It has played here before, but not since Daniel Barenboim was appointed music director. Last year Mr. Barenbolin succeeded Sir Georg Solti, who had succeeded Herbert von Karajan. A distinguished lineage by anybody's calculations.

In the concert at Carnegie Hall on in the concert at Carnegie Hair on Wednesday night, the first of three to be given there, Mr. Barenboim proved himself a worthy successor to his predecessors. The orchestral playing was stylish, and the interpretations of Franck's Symphony in D minor and Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" Suite No. 2 were electrons.

2 were eloquent. Theoretically, it might have seemed audacious of Mr. Barenboim to devote audacious of Mr. Baremboim to devote his first concert here to standards of the French repertory—Debussy's "Prelude à l'Après-Midi d'un Faune" was also included. He is not French by background, training or one would have thought, by temperament.

Perhaps he succeeded in this repertory by ignoring or transcending nationalism. In any case, there were no mannerisms of any kind in the playing or interpretations. Instead, there was the firmness of line, clarity of texture and subtle rhythmic malleability that are characteristic of the music-making done but the firms. done by the finest of our young artists of today. Of bombast and empty rhetorical gesture, there was none.

As a result, the Franck symphony seemed more shapely than usual, more logical in construction and, what was respecially noteworthy.

especially noteworthy, more interest-ingly scored. Obviously, the instrumen-tation had not been aftered, but Mr. Barenboim's fine ear had demanded balances of sonorities that other conductors have apparently never sought.

Apart from the magnificent sold:
flute performance of Michael Debots
the "Daphtis and Chloe" Suite had no surprises to offer, but the work came off handsomely in all respects.

Mr. Debost did more gorgeous playing in Debussy's "Prelude à l'Aprèsimidi d'un Faune," but here Mr. Barenboim's conception was somewhat disappointing. There was nothing wrong with it, it merely seemed indifferent, as though none of the musicians, save Mr. Debost, was very interested in what was going on.

It was, nonetheless, a great evening for Francophiles that ended with a choice encore, the gentle minuet from choice encore, the gentle minuet from Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." This is the musical essence of French-ness, and the Orchestre de Paris and Mr. Barenboim projected it beautifully.

Music: Mozartatthe 'Y'

The New York Chamber Soloists inaugurated what promises to be a most worthy series called The Intimate Mozart Wednesday night at the 92nd Street "Y" But before one gets to the music, a gripe: It seems perverse, in a series devoted to "Mozart's less frequently heard chamber master works," in the words of the program, that there weren't any notes on the music. A whole page of artist biographies and another whole page of "credits," plus

But nothing about why Gerard Schwarz was playing the Mozart Horn quintet in E flat (K. 407) on the flugelhorn, or what the relation of the string-quintet version of "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" is to the more familiar string-orchestra version, or any basic information about the concluding Clarinet Quintet in A (K. 581) or indeed about any of the music.

The answer to the first question, Mr. Schwarz later reported, is that he felt like it—and that it gave him a chance to play Mozart on his instrument ("apart from com-pah-pahs in the orchestra"). The quintet was originally written for the horn, no doubt about that, and is occasionally (and rather unsatisfactorily) played with two cellos instead. But the horn it was written for was the Waldhorn, and Mr. Schwarz argues that the current valved French horn is no closer to that than the flugginorn is.

The result was generally pleasinggraceful and stylishly ornamented. Something about the flugelhorn or Mr. Schwarz's way of playing sounded a bit too aggressive at times, but that was perhaps due to a corresponding lack of tonal lushness from Helen Kwaiwasser and Eugene Drucker, the violinists, Ynez Lynch, the violist, and Fortunato Arico, the cellist.

That lack of sweetness and amplitude of sound was most notable in the "Eine kleine Nachmusic," for which the four string players were joined by Julius Levine, double-bass. Still, it was a tidy performance, and it was nice to a tidy performance, and it was nice to hear Mozart's original version again.

The finest playing of the night; however, came in the Clarinet Quintet. The string players were at their best here, and Charles Russo's clarinet work was as cultivated, elegant and joyful as one could hope for.

the Calder collection at the Whitney, start one of your own.

A whole world of magnificent art . . . in a book so beautiful and comprehensive that it has become the basis for one of the most exciting art shows of the year, opening this week at the Whitney Museum of American Art.

Calder's Universe is the first full survey of Alexander Calder's enormously varied production during half a century: drawings. jewelry, toys, household objects, mobiles. stabiles - all filled with the new life that Calder gives to everything he touches. An astonishing. important, and nearly perfect work of art in itself. There are 457 illustrations, 103 of them in color-among them a number of drawings produced expressly for the book's publication.

Met Opens Egyptian Galleries

By HILTON KRAMER

HE good news from the Metro-politan Museum of Art is that the new Egyptian galleries—or, to be precise, what is called Phase I in the reinstallation of the museum's permanent collection of Egyptian art and artifacts—are a great success. Though this phase of the installation is limited, for the moment, to the earliest and latest material in the collection-with the art of the middle periods scheduled to go on view at a later time, not yet specified-one feels no hesitation in saying that Egyptian galleries are a triumph of museological intelligence. They open to the public tomorrow, and remain on permanent

Their design — by the architectural firm of Kevin Roche, John Dinkeloo and Associates, with Rudolph de Harak Associates responsible for the graphic material—brings us one of the most appealing of the many physical changes that have come to the museum during the controversial and sometimes tempestuous directorship of Thomas Hov-

It is, for the most part, an unobtrusive design that serves both the public —which is certain to be large—and a which is certain to be large—and a great abundance of objects with equal care. Without calling special attention to itself and its many quiet feats of intelligent articulation and display, it is a design whose style might be likened to excellent prose. It tells the eye what it needs to become at every the what it needs to know at every turn, and does not distract us with "poetic" interventions. It will, I think, be a model for such installations in the fu-The task that confronted the designers was a formidable one, for the Met has undertaken to do something unusual in its Egyptian galleries—place the entire permanent collection, numbering almost 45,000 items, on public exhibition, with nothing reserved for storage. This meant, among much else, that the objects of great artistic interest had somehow to be distinguished, in the strategy of display, from those of a purely archeological, historical and documentary interests. documentary interest, and yet the relation of the artistic masterworks to the humbler historical survivals in each period had also to be made clear to the eye and the mind.

It is, in other words, the profile of a civilization that we are given in this installation, not an exhibition of unvarying esthetic excellence. To mount such a profile in a museum inevitably calls for the introduction of a certain quantity of explanatory words and pictures, and the danger to be avoided, of course, is that of having these visual and intellectual aids dominate what one sees, with the result that actual works of art become illustrations, so to speak, for the text that contains

It is the tact and intelligence that both the designers and Christine Lilyquist, the curator of the Department of Egyptian art at the Met, have observed in avoiding this danger that one most admires in the overall conception of the new galleries. The informational materials are plentiful, to be sure; the very first gallery contains a wall-size graphic composition placing Egyptian civilization in its world-historical context, and there are the expected maps no tables of information. Yet all of these aids remain just that aids that assist us, if we wish to be assisted, in viewing the objects. They do not take control of what we see, or wish

There is a similar tact in the placement of the study rooms containing objects of great interest to students and specialists but of lesser interest to museum visitors primarily concerned with artistic excellence. Likewise, the segregation of the museum's remark-able collection of color facsimiles of tomb and temple paintings effectively distinguishes these modern visual records from the accomplishments of the Egyptian artists and artisans them-

These accomplishments are completely absorbing in themselves, and do not need any, supplementary explanations to be enjoyed—though, as always with works of art that are so deeply attached to the customs and rituals of a distant and unfamiliar way of life, they gain something they once served and the values they once signified. But here it is left to the visitor to decide just how he wishes to take the course.

The two periods that are represented in this first phase of the Egyptian installation are very distant in time from each other. The first covers paleolithic Egypt through the 11th Dynasty (300,000 to 1991 B.C.); the second, the 13th Dynasty through the Coptic period (380 B.C. to A.D. 641.) In the one, we are witnessing the beginnings of recorded civilization; in the other, the last flowering and imminent decay of one of its most celebrated phases.

Both early and late, however, Egyptian art is characterized by both an obsession with death and funerary ritual, on the one hand, and a celebration of physical beauty and earthly grati-fications—gratifications that it was the task of the artist to provide for the next world as well as this one. Hence the extraordinary number of exquisite objects consigned to tombs that were themselves unseen museums of precious works of art. It is yet another virtue of the Met's

Egyptian installation that we are always made conscious of the role that the labors of archeology have played in the recovery of these objects-labors once sponsored by the museum itselfyet the objects stand free for our delec-tation. When we encounter the magnifi-cant stone figure of "The God Horus Protecting King Nectanebo," from 360-342 B.C., or look into the case containing the small bronze and gold Macedonian-Ptolemaic masterpieces from 322-330 B.C., we may be curious about their history, but it is as miracles of sculptural art that we instantly respond to

All credit, then, to Mr. Hoving, to Arthur Rosenblatt, his vice director for architecture and planning, and to Lila Acheson Wallace, who provided funds for this new installation, as well as to Miss Lilyquist and the designers and their colleagues, for bringing the first phase of this ambitious project to a triumphant realization. To the art life of New York and the world, it has added something of permanent pleasure and illumination.

Art People Grace Glueck

ARCIA TUCKER, curator of contemporary art at the Whitney Museum for the last eight years, has been dismissed by Tom Armstrong, the Whitney's director. Mr. Armstrong would not comment on the dismissal yesterday, but issued an epic state-ment: "Any changes in the staff of the museum are judgments by the director toward the attainment of objectives based upon priorities established at a particular time in the history of the tionship with the Whitney, fessionally supported and m this institution, and I'm deep sorry to leave it." What w after her departure, as of a serving that "one by one in cutting down on activity i potary art," she says that like to "create again the kin tion now missing in New Yo stitute of contemporary arti-nurture living artists."

But Miss Tucker, a somewhat controversial champion of the new and the far-out, (known in some circles as Joan of Art for her evangelism) holds that the Whitney's involvement with contemporary art has shifted. Mr. Armstrong told her, she says, that her "particular skills and talents could be better utilized elsewhere," and she believes that her involvement with very current art and artists doesn't jibe with the increasing emphasis that the director is placing on the Whitney's permanent collection of 20th-century American art.

Since Mr. Armstrong assumed his post as director in January, 1975, he has hired three new curators: Barbara-Haskell, Patterson Sims and Gail Levin. the latter two to deal specifically with the permanent collection, and has an-nounced that the Whitney's permanent collection would be "a central focus of its activities in the future."

Although art world reports have had it from time to time that under the new director her tenure was limited, and Whitney insiders complain of an atmosphere of "insecurity." Miss Tucker, the last of the painting/sculpture curators hired by Mr. Armstrong's predecessor, John I. H. Baur, says that her dismissal came as a surprise. "Last spring I told Tom I'd been offered another job and he very specifically asked me to stay," she says.

The 36-year-old art historian has staged a number of avant-warde shows new director her tenure was limited, staged a number of avant-garde shows at the museum; among them "Anti-Illision: Procedures/Materials," a 1969 exhibition of conceptual work that caused a stir on the local scene; last year's Performance: Four Evenings, Four Days," in which dancers and musicians as well as artists participated, and displays of work by such artists as Robert Morris, Bruce Nauman, and Al Held. One of her most recent exhibitions displayed the work of Richard Tuttle, a highly unconventional young sculptor whose "difficult" and epheneral art did not raise attendance figures, a fact known not to have pleased Mr. Armstrong.

"We don't see eye to eye on the museum's responsibility for and commitment to contemporary art," Miss Tucker said yesterday. "I agree we should do shows that draw attendance but we should also do the avant-garde and experimental, too. I feel that museums should not only reflect taste, but make it."

As evidence of the museum's retreat from an involvement with the current scene, Miss Tucker points out that the ground-floor gallery, initiated by her some time ago to show the work of living artists—both young and older— without commercial representation in New York, had been pre-empted for other displays, such as a section of the recent Bicentennial show, "200 Years of American Sculpture" and, currently, the work of a 19th-century artist, Theodore Wendell.

And she also says that she pushed for the Whitney's upcoming Biennial show, which this year will focus on the work of artists who have made their mark in the 1970's, to be "more adventurous, with a higher percentage of lesser-known to known artists."

Still, Miss Tucker says, of her rela-

T THE TURN of the century, the arts and crafts movement filled the offices and dens of America with robust furniture

-some of it was called mission styleas well as stained-glass lamps and weighty art pottery. Now it is back and booming. This week the revival of the style seemed headed for success with the opening in SoHo of the Jordan Volpe Gallery, 457 West Broadway.

This development marks the first time since Princeton University's pio-neer exhibition in 1972 that the arts and crafts style, which reigned between 1876 and 1976, has been surveyed comprehensively and can be viewed in a proper setting. The antiques establish-ment is headed by two serious-minded collectors turned dealers, who are offering only quality examples of the period. The hours are 11 A.M. to 7 P.M., Tuesday through Saturday.

The impact of the handcrafted pieces The impact of the handcrafted pieces of furniture here—rooted in William Morris's 19th-century arts and crafts movement in England—is heightened by the way they are arranged in the gallery. All are profiled starkly against the chalk-white walls, and punctuating the sprawling space are dramatic pools of warm light cast by lamps with bronze bases and glass shades.

Vance Jordan and Todd Volne who Vance Jordan and Todd Volpe, who share the responsibilities of this ven-ture, are not the only young merchants of the American arts and crafts style to emerge over the last five years. But, from the look of this gallery and the inventory stored in its back room, they are probably the biggest and unques-

The partners, who are cousins, explained that they made the decision to switch from collecting to dealing out of desperation. "Each of us had floor-to-ceiling stacks of chairs and other artistic piles, and they kept growing," Mr. Volpe said, producing photographs that showed that both of their apartments could have passed for apartments could have passed for homes of the Collier brothers.

Several months ago, Mr. Jordan, who runs a theatrical talent agency, and Mr. Volpe, who worked until recently on sets at the Metropolitan Opera, looked around at their antiques-choked homes and began sorting out the tangles of ledge-arm settees, Morris-style chairs with adjustable backs, sturdy and squarish umbrella stands, glass-door bookcases and boxy desks and chests.

They started counting and decided they had enough furniture to fill not only a gallery but a warehouse as well. Those furnishings designs that are for sale, at from about $100 to $1,500, were personally refinished by Mr. Volpe, who used sandpaper or steel wool and gallons of oil to restore luster to the richly grained oak and mahogany. He also refinished some nieces that ny. He also refinished some pieces that the partners are reluctant to sell—two desks and a corner cupboard. "We'll sell them when we find replacements," Mr. Jordan said.

"A lot of this furniture was destroyed by overuse or misuse," he observed.
"From what we've been able to find out, we assume that much of it started out in the living room or the den inside the house, and when it was no longer in fashion it was moved to the porch or the basement."

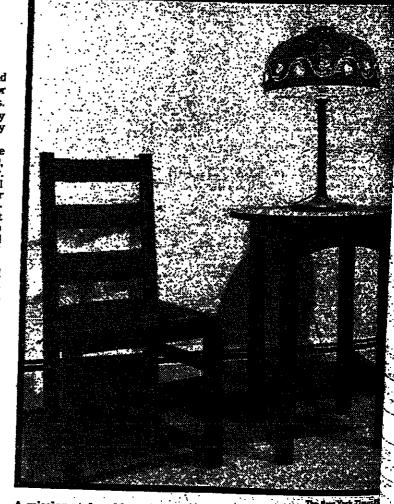

That explains, Mr. Jordan went on, why most of the chairs required new leather coverings and why the upholstery and springs were frequently worn out. Still to be explained, he said, is whether there ever were many arts and crafts pieces made for the bedroom. So few have been uncovered that some experts assert they never existed.

More than half of what is offered for sale at Jordan Volpe bears the original labels and was handcrafted in upstate New York or in Grand Rapids, Mich., by Gustave Stickley or his brothers (who had several companies), by Elbert Hubbard of Roycrofters or by the Lifetime Bookcase and Chair

The pottery is equally extensive and includes the work of George Ohr, who achieved some wonders in seemingly squashing the clay bodies into crushed shapes and twisting spaghettilike arms into contorted handles.

William Morris's influence on mostturn-of-the-century developments in the decerative arts is readily acknowledged these days-and has been for decades. But the British designer's actual work is rarely exhibited here. This

Stage: A 'Fiorello' With Bounce

There is an appropriateness to the Equity Theater Library's revival of "Fiorello!" that only history could devise. What with Watergate, the nursing home ripoffs and other plots against the citizenry, the Jerry Bock-Sheldon Harnick chronicle of a man of true blue integrity chasing the scoundrels out of New York City politics has the freshness and attractiveness of a newly cut bowl of flowers. The career of Fiorello La Guardia had built-in drama, and Jerome Weidman and George Abbott, who devised the book, had the mother wit to see it.

But "Piorello," which opened last night and will run to October 31, does not need any historical justification. The satirical bite of "Politics and Poker," "Little Tin Box," the romantic warmth of "When Did I Fall in Love," a beautiful song, and the snap of "I Love a Cop" among other riches add up to undluted pleasure at any time and place. and place.
William Koch, the director and choreographer, has provided an on-going, propulsive beat that left no soft spots, no dragging feet, even though at the Wednesday evening preview not everything was squared away. There was some scrappiness in the ensemble and a lack of crispness that a few more performances will surely take care of. The setting by Richard B. Williams with its exposed iron girder was more than serviceable and gave a hig city ambience to the proceedings.

The cast was a big one. Frank Kony's, Fiorello emphasized the bounce, the impulsiveness, the abrasive integrity of the character. A little repose here and there would add another dimension to the part. As Marie, his long-time secretary, long in love with her loss, Am Hodapp kept a perfect balance between sentiment and hard-boiled pragmatism. Christopher Wynkoop, in very good voice, seemed to have been poured into the role of the old politico, Ben Marino. He brought an oasis of calm to the sometimes frenetic hanner. caim to the sometimes frenetic happenings. As Dora, the girl who learned the economic and political facts of life, Alexandra Korey was both winsome and tough. And Michael McCarty's Morris was pattience made flesh. All we need now is a way to reincarnate the original Fiorello to run things for a while in this mixed-up

The Equity Library Theater is at Riverside Drive and 103d Street. Reservations can be made by phoning 663-2028.

Dance: Joffrey Marks 20th Year

The Joffrey Ballet opened a four-week season at the City Center Wednes-ay night with a few curtain speeches marking the company's 20th anniversary and tenth year of its residency in

For starters, Martin Segal, chairman of the New York City Commission for Cultural Affairs, revealed that he had studied ballet as a child. Then, turning to the most important matter at hand, he addressed "a salute" to Robert Joffrey, the company's founder, on behalf of Mayor Beame.

Noting that the City Center 55th Street Theater was now operated for the first time by a consortium of dance companies, including the Joffrey. Mr. Segal declared: "The house has a very special place iin the life of the city. The city will help in any way possible." Earlier, Howard Squadron, the consortium chairman, pledged to continue the present relatively low-priced ticket

Mr. Joffrey modestly suggested that the show begin, and it did. The current season is dedicated exclusively to American choreographers, and the first bill consisted of revivals from the lof-frey repertory: George Balanchine's "Square Dance." Alvia Alley's "Feast of Ashes" and Ruthanna Boris's "Cake-

It was a typical Joffrey mix but, above all, the program was marked by the seuperlative dancing of Francesca Corkle. She is absolutely one of the best classical dancers in the United States and her body placement is per fect. In theory and practice, the Jof-frey has no "stars," but in Miss Corkle, the company has a dancer of star

In "Square Dance," for instance, she performed the difficult leg beats with such precision and delicacy that they were astonishing. "Square Dance," in this original 1957 version, uses the concept of an American square dance superimposed on some Corelli and Vivaldi. But no one should be fooled: This is one of the most difficult ballets to dance; it is a compendium of classical steps (as Mr. Balanchine confirmed in a more "plotless" new version at the City Ballet this year) and the Joffrey ensemble, led by Miss Corkle and Paul Sutherland, handled its swiftness very nicely. Elisha C. Keeler made a welcome return as the caller.

One wishes one could say more about this performance of Mr. Ailey's version of Garcia-Lorca's "The House of Bernarda Alba." Called "Feast of Ashes."

"Cakewalk." as always, is a joy. There is method to its silliness from its stylized minstrelry to its highly entertaining parodies. Charthel Arthur, as the droopy sylphide, Miss Corkle as a high-starping. high-stepping filly and Gary Chryst as the m.c. were knockouts in a sparkling astonishingly successful revival of the 1917 "Parade," a Cubist collaboration by Léonid Massine, Picasso, Jean Coc-teau and Erik Satie. These European revivals will, of course, not be seen in the all-American season. But the American revivals include three rarely seen works, in which Jerome Robbins makes some savvy comments on American culture. These ballets are the 1945 "Interplay" and two from the 1950's, Mr. Robbins's

"West Side Story" period—"Moves" and "New York Export: Opus Jazz." Revival of de Mille's 'Rodeo'

Also among important revivals will be Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo," to be given by the company for the first time Oct. 28. The Joffrey Ballet is, above all, a director's company. It reflects Mr. Joffrey's taste: It produces the ballets Mr. Joffrey personally likes. "'Rodeo' was always one of my favorite ballets," he said the other day. "I even wanted to dance in it."

Sentiment, Mr. Joffrey reveals, has played a part in the way he selected the works for this season. In 1956, he recalled, he formed his first company with six dencers. In the 1962-64 period, a larger troupe was financially supported by Rebekah Harkness, who, after an artistic dispute, then formed a different company but kept most of the Joffrey dancers under contract. Mr. Joffrey had to build a new troupe on his

Alluding to that time and to those who stood by him, Mr. Joffrey ex-plained why he chose to stage a revival on Oct. 26 of "Opus '65," Anna Sokolow's sympathetic view of the Vietnam War generation.

"This work was very important to us," he said. "Anna was the first who offered to do a ballet for me after the break, when people were a little reluctant to help."

Another Loyal Choreographer

in the same way, Gerald Arpino's "Orpheus Times Light," which has its premiere Wednesday, and the revivals of "Sea Shadow" and "Olympics," two Arpino ballets that gave the Joffrey its signature in the early 1960's, can be construed as a tribute to Mr. Arpino's Gratitude is also expressed to George Balanchine, whose "Tchaikovsky Pas de Deux" has a company premiere Oct 30 and whose "Square Dance" is being given tonight and Sunday at 2 P.M. "Square Dance' is one of the first ballets Mr. Balanchine gave me, at no fee." Mr. Joffrey said, adding that the New York City Ballet's chief choreographer had supervised the rehearsals.

Mr. Joffrey is aware that his dancers are not known for a pure classical said.

are not known for a pure classical style. That is the price it pays for performing in such a variety of styles. But, he added, "It takes a very fine dancer to dance 'Moves' or Twyla Tharp's 'As Time Goes By.

"I look for a dancer who is very versatile. If you say someone is a Jof-frey dancer. I wouldn't take it as a compliment. Good dancers should not be set in a mold so that they can dance in only one particular way. That is right for certain companies. But not for uswhere we have many styles and must express what the choreographer wished."

Stagehands Reach Accord With Theaters

A tentative agreement has been reached by the League of New York Theaters and Producers and Theatrical Protective Union, Local I, representing stagehands, on a new three-year contract. Bernard Jacobs, chief negotiator for the theater owners and producers, said the dispute had been resolved with the assistance of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees union. Terms and conditions were not announced, pending ratification by league members and the stagebands'

INTRODUCING THE 1976 AUTO-TRAIN TO FLORIDA.

NOW IT'S MORE THAN A WAY TO SAVE 900 MILES OF DRIVING. JOW IT'S THE MOST GRACIOUS TRAIN SERVICE AMERICA HAS SEEN SINCE THE GOLDENAGE OF RAILROAD TRAVEL.

he idea of The Auto-Train is still = > good as the day we began serving nu in 1971: to provide you the most invenient, sensible and relaxing ay to take your car and family to orida. A trip on The Auto-Train" ves you almost 900 miles of drivg, 45 gallons of gasoline, two or ree nights on the road and immearable wear and tear on you and ur car. It's still all of that.

And now it's the most luxurious y as well. As luxurious as it was ck in the great days of railroad .vel.

Since you're probably too young remember it, we'd like to tell you ttle about what it was like in those Civys. Then we'll tell you what it's ing to be like these days on The ito-Train.

It was glorious. Everyone dressed for dinner on Simplon-Orient Express.

The food on America's Twentieth ntury Limited was so good people This wire in the habit of boarding the; in at one station, eating lunch, dillid getting off at the next station. will intragine getting on a train just to eat.

There were fresh flowers on ery table. There were regional hes on every menu: Lake ichigan Whitefish were a specialty the run west of Buffalo, Long and scallops on the run east of iffalo. The service was superb and ost of all, courteous. The owners the railroad advertised proudly they started "A School for surtesy" for their employees.

Dinner on The Twentieth Century mited was priced in 1902, at $1.50. nat's the equivalent of dinner at a ry expensive restaurant today. Lucius Beebe, America's foreost railroad historian, called The ventieth Century Limited "The eatest Train In The World."

And for more than half a century ople made reservations months in vance and willingly paid the extra e it cost to ride "The Greatest ain In The World."

BEGINNING NOVEMBER 1, 1976. THE VERY BEST OF EVERYTHING.

As you read this advertisement, we're working. We're changing what you'll be eating, where you'll be eating, how you'll be eating-our menus, our dining rooms, our service. With just one goal: to make absolutely certain your trip to Florida on The Auto-Train is as luxurious as possible.

When you sit down to dinner you're going to think you're in a fine restaurant.

As you enter the dining room, you'll be greeted and seated by a host or hostess. There's new carpeting and new wall coverings, in rich tones of blue and tweed and deep brown and silver. There are touches of mirrored glass and subdued lighting. It's all very lush.

On your table you'll find linen table cloths and napkins, English glass for your water and wine and Imagine candlelight dinner on a train in 1976.

You won't have to wait in long lines to serve yourself. You'll be served by Auto-Train staff dressed in sparkling new uniforms who have been trained in the art of courtesy and gracious service.

And unlike The Twentieth Century Limited, on the Auto-Train" your dinner, as well as your snack later on and your breakfast the next morning, are included in your fare. And you don't have to dress for meals.

One evening you'll be able to choose from the menu pictured here. Another evening it might be a choice of Veal Cordon Bleu, Filet de Truite Amandine or Meuniere and Boeuf Bourguignonne. On yet another evening it might be Filet of

Red Snapper with Shrimp Stuffing, Stuffed Boneless Breast of Chicken and Boneless Rib Eye Au Jus. There will be desserts of Key Lime Pie, Cherries Jubilee, Seasoned Fruits and a selection of cheeses one evening, Pears Helene, English Trifle or Peach Melba another and Cheese-cake, Chocolate Layer Cake or Rhum Baba on another evening. Again, all complimentary.

You'll be able to choose delightful French red wines at surprisingly modest prices. And California white wines that are equally delightful and equally mod-

Our complimentary continental breakfast will be truly continental: Florida fruit juice, French brioches and croissants, cheese and fruit Danish pastries.

There will be a new selection of truly classic movies. And a new and better way to watch them. We've installed a new system that provides you both a better picture and better sound. And we've doubled the number of screeens.

There will be live and lively entertainment in our Starlight Lounge Nightclub. Cocktails and late night snacks are available.

It's a superb new service. And we've even taken steps to make certain you have an incredibly smooth ride.

So from the moment you leave our Lorton, Virginia terminal to the moment you arrive at our Sanford, Florida terminal you can expect 17 of the most pleasant hours of travel you've ever experienced.

HOW MUCH DOES ALL THIS LUXURY COST?

Not very much. The fare is $175* for your car (which rides in a fully enclosed auto carrier on the same train) and $35 per person. Cars may not travel without at least one person.

If you reserve with us you may rest assured you will rest comfortably. Our reclining lounge chairs are the most comfortable on any form of transportation, bar none. They're thickly and softly padded. They have leg rests and there's so much room between chairs you can move yours back to a reclining position for a good night's sleep.

ABOUT RESERVATIONS.

In keeping with our new service, we have determined we can best serve you by carrying fewer cars and people than we have in the past. Therefore we suggest you reserve at your earliest convenience.

Weekend Gardening: Desert Flowers

By RICHARD W. LANGER

The indoor drought of winter will soon be upon us. And for all the warm comfort central heating offers, it reduces the relative humidity in the average home to slightly less than that of the Sahara. This can spell problems for house plants, unless one is growing succulents, such as cactus. Succulents in general and cactuses in particular, will tolerate conditions nothing short of these their plastic counterfeits can survive. In the great outdoors, they may be found growing from the Arctic to the Antarctic Circle -covering almost all the temperature and humidity ranges on the globe. hardy disposition makes many sculents ideal house plants, and if you've hesitated to grow cactus because you thought a pincushion collection would not be particularly interesting, wait until you've seen a fleeting cactus flower. Although most bloom for only a week or two-some spend but a single night dressed for the ball-cactuses in flower rival orchias for sheer beauty.

The shapes of cactus vary enormousiy, from flat to round to towering, even to semispiraled. And the variety, color and form of those fearsome spines provide in themselves enough patterns on which to base a highly intriguing collection. Also, should term and flower and ease of care not be sufficient to tempt you into growing these plants, consider cats. Cactuses are the one type of house plant our cat has not at least once tried to sample.

Those tough cactus tops, incidentally, hide tender bottoms. The Achilles heel of cactus growing is the tender roots. While the first couple of cac-tuses you buy will probably be potted up at your local plant store, if you decide to send away for the more exotic species available from cactus specialists, they will usually arrive bare root. It's the common way of shipping, and is not detrimental to the plants if you handle them right. Trim oif neatly any bruised or broken rocts, and when you pot up the plants don't give the soil a good drenching immediately afterward, us you may be used to doing with other plants. Let the newly potted cactus sit in the dry soil for a week before watering, This will give the cut ends a chance to form calluses, which prevents rect ret.

The soil in which cactus grows is not simply sand. Desert soils are much richer than one might think. The mineral-nutrien, conten, is often far higher than that of rich black potting soil. What desert soils lack is organic matter and moisture. The organic matter, in fact, is what helps hold the moisture, much in the manner of a sponge. What the cactus needs is soil that is nutrient rich but low in organic matter, so the potting mix will not retain too much moisture and rot the cactus's roots.

A sandy soil mix, one part topsoil or prepackaged potting soil and one part leaf mold or milled sphagnum moss to three parts sharp builder's sand, works well for caccuses. So do most of the commercial cactus mixes And unless you have a plants and like to prepare a soil for each one, the premixed bagged soils simplify the potting routine and save storage space.

The pots for cactus should be small. Yes, in the desert the plants send their roots out as far as they like, often several yards. But desert soil cannot be duplicated in a pot, lacking as it does animals, insects and micro-organisms. It is these inhabitants of the root world that keep the soil loose and manageable. If you use too large a pot, the soil will pack more tightly than is good for plants; after all, nothing will keep the soil from compressing, as you water time after time, except the growing roots themselves.

There exists a standard rule for pot size to provide the best conditions for blooming and the overall well-being of cactuses. For a round or barrel-shape coctus, the pot should be an inch wider all around than the plant itself. A tall plant usually grows best in a pot with a diameter half the height of the plant

Basic Cactuses

Warm growers (daytime tempera-tures above 75 degrees for at least half the year):

Aporocactus flagelliformis (rattail cactus). Despite its name, one of the few cactuses that make pleasing hanging plants. The thin hanging branches will grow four to five feet long, dangling toward the ground in search of some place for the tips to take root. Any piece that breaks off will root readily, forming a new plant. Small red flowers bloom in profusion during springtime.

Trichocereus spachianus (torch cactus). A really cactusy-looking cactus, reaching four feet or so in height. Columnar in form, with a closely ribbed trunk, the torch cactus is a fairly rapid indoor grower. But its white flowers are hard to coax out unless you can offer almost as much sun and heat as the plant would get in a greenhouse.

Slightly cooler growers (daytime temperatures in the mid-70's):
Chamaecareus siivestri (peanut cactus). Vivid scarlet flowers come in spring and last almost a month. The green branches grow from a common base and may be easily broken off and rooted for new plants.

Mammillaria hocasana (pincushion or powder-puff cactus). Among the easiest specimens to grow indoors, and about the best to try if you're patient enough to grow cactus from seed. It is round in form, covered with silky white hairs and brown fishhook spines. Creamy white flowers form an angelic halo around the plant's top in spring or summer, followed by even more decorative fruit, which looks like diminutive hot-pink snap beans.

Rebutia kupperiana (crown or red crown cactus). The open, brilliant red flower of this miniature cactus from the Andes is usually larger than the plant itself. The spectacular, if somewhat unbalanced, show of scarlet flowers develops from April to July. Keep young plants in two-inch pots for the first couple of years for best or less-almost a quarter the height once you get to specimens four feet and taller.

My personal preference is still for the traditional clay pot. However, many cactus growers have switched to plastic containers, with excellent results, If your cactuses arrive in plastic pots, it is probably best to keep them in those, since a cactus needs to be, and should be, transplanted only every third or fourth year. Remember though, if potted in plastic, it will need a little less water than in a clay container, whose sides

When it come to watering, a thorough drenching once or twice a week should make the plants comfortable. In fall and winter a twice-monthly soaking of the soil will suit most cactuses. Water heavily enough for the excess to run out the bottom of the pot, then uspose of the functi. The neavy water ing not only encourages roots to grow deep, but as the water percolates down it aerates the soil as well, further promoting growth.

Cactus is a slow grower. When you decide to get some for that sunny window or corner, select plants that are already approximately the size you would like. You'll have years of flowers with only inchlike increments in size.

Here are some sources of unusual

Records: Kalish First-Rate In Haydn Piano Music

HAYDN: Piano Music, Volume II. Sonata in D (Landon 30), Sonata in G minor (Landon 32), Sonata in D (Landon 50), Varia-tions in F minor, Gilbert Kalisa, piano. Nonesuch (H-71328).

Considering the amount of rubbish that the recording industry feels obliged to dump on the market each year, it is perhaps not surprising that an integral set of the Haydn piano sonatas performed by a first-rate artist has yet to appear in the Schwann catalogue. Gilbert Kalish's second record, however, seems to be heading us in the right direction. Mr. Kalish is not only a stylish and fluent planist but also one unusually alert to the scholarly problems associated with this reperto-'ry. Not the least of the virtues of this series of records (one must hope it will be a complete investigation of Haydo's more than 50 sonatas, at least) is Mr. Kalish's choice of editions.

The playing is invariably lucid and logical, but interpretations are emotionally varied enough to fit the music's shifts from Apollonian restraint to storm-and-stress outbursts. Some of 'Haydn's keyboard music is not so well suited to the piano as to the harpsichord, of course. The opening move-ment of the Sonata in D (Landon 50) is a pianists' favorite but retains a strong harpsichord flavor. The recording is exceptionally full in the low end, and while pleasingly rich in terms ci modern plano tone. benefits greatly from a turning down of the bass knob. The pianistic approach works beautifully in such an incipiently Romantic work as the Variations in F minor and here Mr. Kalish delivers a reading of almost Beethovenian intensity and scope. DONAL HENAHAN

LIVE AT THE HILLCREST CLUB 1958. Paul Bley, Inner City (1007).

Paul Bley, a pianist who has been playing advanced jazz for more than 20 years now, assembled his greatest quintet in 1958 for an engagement at the Hillcrest Club in Los Angeles. The four musicians he employed later be-came the original Ornette Coleman quartet, which introduced free improvisation into jazz and became the most influential jazz combo of the early

The four performances included in this album are apparently the Bley quintet's only legacy, and they consti-tute a Rosetta Stone of contemporary jazz, equal in importance to the Charlie Parker/Jay McShann radio broadcasts of 1940. In fact, Ornette Coleman's alto saxophone solos, which are the high points of the album, are more than slightly reminiscent of Mr. Parker's playing, especially the solo on Mr. Parker's composition "Klactoveedestene."

But Mr. Coleman was very definitely playing his own music by this time. He recorded his first album, "Something Else!" during the same period, but the Hillcrest Club performances of his compositions "Free" and "The Blessing" are much more intensely inspired than anything on that recording.

Mr. Bley recorded these performances himself, and the sound quality is not bad, considering the circumstances. The tapes became available on record in France in 1972, but the album was difficult to obtain and the Inner City release is most welcome.

ROBERT PALMER

The Pop Life John Rockwell

HE SOPHOMORE JINX is a phenomenon not limited to athletes. In popular music, it supposedly manifests itself in the second albums of performers who have attracted a lot of attention with their first albums. There are exceptions to the rule, of course—so many that there may be no rule at all. Still, the notion makes sense that a pop star might have beginner's luck with his or her debut album, pouring youthful, unself-conscious inspiration into it, and then stumble trying to imitate it the second time around.

These thoughts came to mind while trying to figure out Patti Smith's second record, "Radio Ethiopia." The problem is complicated by the fact that this observer has loved much of what Miss Smith has done, yet has worried about the direction in which she has pushed her career and been depressed by some of her performances.

"Radio Ethiopia" is a pretty good record, one should say right off. Quite likely it will be more successful than the first, "Horses," in commercial terms. And one sees clearly now that Miss Smith has done exactly what she wanted to do on both records. John Cale was the producer for the first, and Jack Douglas has taken over for the second, but the guiding spirit in both instances was the

When she first started calling attention to herself a few years back, Miss Smith was a particularly evocative, pop-oriented instance of a whole movement in Lower Manhattan avant-gardism. She was a performance artist before that became fashionable, a chanting poet who lifted her words beyond language with the power of music. From the first she used the idiom of rock, but she wasn't so much a rocker as a poet-shaman who used rock to make a statement. The art was raw, bizarrely theatrical, populist. But it was art, nontheless.

'Horses" was a remarkable fusion of her early artistry and her new rock-and-roll persona. But al-ready, as it was being made, Miss Smith had scented the excitement of a real rocker's life and was beginning to de-emphasize her art in the countless rockpress interviews she gave. At the same time she pretended to recoil from the attention paid to her and stressed instead her membership in the larger community of her band, which by this time had grown to include four men.

"Radio Ethiopia" makes all these trends manifest. The artist isn't Patti Smith; it's the Patti Smith Group. Miss Smith's voice is mixed slightly less forward than it was in "Horses." There are longer stretches where the music is given over to purely instrumental passages (in one long song, Miss Smith herself plays "lead guitar," although her work seems to consist mostly of feverish sound effects in the manner of Tom Verlaine).

There is, to be sure, much that is still reminiscent of the first record-so much, in fact, that she leaves herself open to the charge of repezting herself. There are the same themes (drugs, sex, the imminent arrival of extraterrestrials), the same little-girl insistence on naughty words and bodily functions, even another experiment with crisscrossing, overdubbed speech-song vocal lines. And most of those repetitions work almost as well here as they did the first time.

But the level of songs seems lower than on "Horses," and the shift away from declamation and minimal instrumental support to basic rock-and-rol! robs Miss Smith's art of some of its individuality. It also leaves what's left sounding slightly gimmicky. Fine and good, that her band is improving technically and that Miss Smith is evolving an act that will channel her eccentricity into a form that can be marketed to the millions. But recent journeyman rock is no substitute for what she is capable of Comparative sales figures are always difficult to document authoritatively, but Stevie Wonder's "Songs in the Key of Life" is apparently the fastestselling album in the history of popular music. In its first week on the charts, the album has supplanted Peter Frampton's "Frampton Comes Alive!" at the top, at a time when many pop albums are selling well. At least two million copies have already been sold. Stores are finding the Wonder difficult to keep in stock, and several record companies are reportedly delaying key releases until the boom begins to fade, in the hopes of more easily reaching the top position themselves. Quite apart from his considerable artistic gifts, Mr. Wonder seems to have lost none of his commercial potency during a 26-month layoff.

Two records by two of the greatest singers in rock: Red Stewart's "A Night on the Town" is his second American-made solo album since his formal departure from Faces, and it continues in the vein of his first, "Atlantic Crossing." The level is not uniformly high here, but at his frequent best Mr. Stewart's unusual high baritone, husky and imploring, is as suited for ballads as for old-fashioned rock-

The Stills-Young Band's "Long May You Run" is a studio album made before the pair's aborted joint tour this summer. But it is certainly more successful than the live performance at the Nassau Coliseum. Stephen Stills's songs and singing are never less than pleasant. And Neil Young puts aside the tortured despair and epic statements of his recent solo albums for a lighter, more contained style-and contributes some cutting guitar work, as well. One wouldn't wan; all Mr. Young's records to sound like this. But his quavering tenor is still about the most lonely and compelling sound in pop music, and it's nice to hear it applied to less agonized material for a Record companies are more and more taking to producing concerts and tours of their artists, in a direct effort to expose them to the public and, hence, sell more records. But the ECM jazz concert planned Wednesday in Avery Fisher Hall is worthy of note for two reasons. First, it will not only a nonclassical concert in the rebuilt half a first concert of any kind in which the par-can get in at normal prices. The shops represent, in many cases, attempts by area residents to expand hobbies or talents into thriving businesses. In some cases they fail, and for this reason there has been a turnover in the quaint stores, but the new tenant is likely to be just as interesting as

The stores have signs that read The Pottery Guild, The Berry Patch or simply The Antique Store, which give clues to what they offer. The Black Sheep sells handmade leather goods-for example, sandals for $20.

There are also shops specializing in clothing, cheese and foodstuffs for exotic menus.

There are several marinos along the riverfront that can be reached by turning off River Road. Pauel's Boats, at 8 Washington Avenue in Rumson, (201) 842-1194, will rent rowboats to those who want to leave their cars and strike out from the shore for a different view of the area. Visitors can rent rowboats for $9 a day or rowboats powered by a 4-horsepower motor for $20 a day. Rentals are available from 7 A.M. to 5.P.M. on Saturday and Sunday.

The drive through Rumson should cover River, Rumson and Ridge Roads, all of which converge near the eastern end of town. The Rumson area includes a number of large estates of the type that made "a drive in the country" a pleasant Sunday family diver-

Side Trips

After completing the riverfront drive, visitors should continue over the bridge between Rumson and Sea Bright and turn north for a one-mile trip to the Gateway National Park on the Sandy Hook peninsula.

Admission to the park is free and, although the bathing season is over, the miles of beach are popular with surf fishermen and for those who simply want to walk among the variety of flore, including the holly forest.

A quick frip across the Highlands

Bridge at the entrance to the park leads to the Twin Lights Museum Park and a breathtaking view of the river area. After crossing the bridge, visitors should turn right, drive down under the span and come up on Highland Avenue on the other side in order to reach the park.

The museum is closed until May, but the park has picnic tables, a parking area and a couple of local points of interest. One is a weatherbeaten wooden shack that once housed the first United States lifesaving station. It was built at Spermacetti Cove on Sandy Hook in 1848 and was moved a few years ago up to the Twin Lights, which were once functioning lighthouses.

The park also has a marker on the site of the first Marconi trans-Atlantic wireless telegraph tower, which was erected in 1907.

At Route 35 and Sycamore Avenue in New Shrewsbury, a mile south of Red Bank, stands the Allen House, one of four buildings around Monmouth County restored by the County His-torical Association. The building dates back to the Revolutionary era and contains furnishings and artifacts that reflect the period up to about 1790. The two rooms on the first floor resemble the tayern that occupied the building after the original owners moved out. The second floor contains exhibits of the Revolutionary War. The building is open from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M. Saturday and 1 and 4 P.M. Sunday. Admis-

One exhibit is by Charles Detwiller Jr. of Plainfield, who spe-cializes in historical restoration. The college is on Newman Springs Road, about two miles west of Red Bank, and is open over the weekend.

The museum's nature center, al-though housed in a 60-foot trailer while permanent quarters are being planned and constructed, contains a collection of live small animals in cages and exhibits of minerals, fossils and shells found in the area.

From the Allen House, a trip of a few miles west on Sycamore Avenue will lead to the horse farms along Freehold Road, heading for Freehold. From the road, the visitor will see the horses in large pastures or working out on practice tracks. A left turn at the traffic light on Route 34 will lead to the famous Delicious Orchards, (201) 542-0204. The orchard and the apple pies and fruit products sold in its store and restaurant already are familiar to many metropolitan area residents.

The Allison: Three. The half that's as good as the whole.

The Ailison:Three is a corner speaker system with performance characteristics identical to those of the widely acclaimed Allison: One. Its price is $100.00 less.

Intended for use standing on the floor in a corner, the Allison:Three delivers flat bass power output and extremely wide dispersion at all audible frequencies. This makes the Allison:Three ideal for a wide variety of applications, such as wide placement stereo, rooms with inadequate wall space or non-centralized histening areas, and also as rear speakers for all tour channel and ambience-synthesis systems. In a market where people are cutting corners, Allison is using them. The Allison:Three at Harvey Sound.

If you're looking for an 8-day London Theatre Tour, choose the one that gives you some choice. The Air-India 8-day London Theatre Tour.

We give you four theatre tickets. Three tickets to any plays 🔒 you want to see. If the play's running and if there are tickets available, you've got it. (Only exceptions: no opera, ballet or Royal Shakespeare Company.)

How about that fourth ticket? It's to a performance at the exciting new National Theatre. And, as a bonus, Air-India also gives you a guided tour of this incredible new theatre complex.

How does all this stack up to other airlines' theatre tours? Well, some of them don't give you as many tickets. And some of them don't give you as much choice. In fact, some of them don't give you any choice at all.

An Air-India 8-day London Theatre Tour also gives you a great flight round-trip, 7 nights in a good hotel with private bath, an Avis car for three days (that's right, three days), transportation to your hotel from the airport and to the airport from your noteland a bunch of extras.

We do all this for the same-or perhaps less-than the airlines that don't give you so much choice. Which makes the whole thing an easy choice, right?

Three Ways for Kids to Move in the City's Best Circle

By Bus: Double or Nothing

By JOHN LEONARD

Anything is possible.

Maybe Catfish will win the World Series, and the police will find some other place besides Yankee Stadium to behave exactly like 1960's antiwar demonstrators, Maybe Dr. J. will renegotiate his contract with the Nets, and more than 10 souls will show up to watch brilliant basketball at Nassau Coliseum. Maybe Mayor Beame will click his heels over a balanced budget; and Albert Shanker will chuckle; and Percy Sutton will explain exactly what it is he does; and Rodney Dangerfield will get some respect; and Con Ed won't punish us with a rate increase for having saved the watts it asked us to; and Diana Trilling and Lillian Hellman will embrace on the opening night of a new musical by Arthur Miller and Leonard Bernstein about Dalton Trumbo and J. Parnell Thomas and Leonard Lyons and Faye Dunaway; and Johnny Carson will return, with hair.

Anything, that is, seems possible, if on a fall weekend you are sitting up top on a double-decker bus coming back from the Cloisters with a motley of children. Any children will do. If you are temporarily short of children, borrow some from one of the hundreds of fathers who are using their weekends to introduce their children to the British-made double-decker buses in service in this city since Sept. 15.

By the time you hit Central Park South, frighten the hansom cabs, paralyze pickpockets and look down on a pond of guppy-faces, people whose eyes are mouths, holes of gape, you are a tall ship. If you can't for a moment be smug, then how do you know that you're a citizen of the capital of the free world, including Poland and

Scaling the Spiral Staircase

Of course, you are on the upper deck, having, with pick, stays and spurs, scaled the escarpment of the spiral staircase. Why else would you have impersonated a Popsicle for an hour and a half waiting for the proper bus to lumber by? And then played special teams for the Oakland Raiders merely to board it? Up top, there are 44 seats. and what sometimes seems at least twice as many standees, any one of whom over 5 feet 81/4 inches must hunch. are eight of them, at $99,900 each, loose on Broadway, Riverside Drive and Fifth Avenue, after the adjustment of 40 traffic lights and a lot of disme bered trees to accommodate a 14-foot 6-inch clearance, which is 2½ feet more clearance than Jimmy Stewart needed in his various movies about New York double-decker buses.

I think there is only one, and advise waiting for it at Penn Station, 32d Street, or 57th and Fifth, or advancing by pogo stick to the Cloisters with a bottle of scotch and mittens, to camp for the blight. No good at all is done by telephoning the Metropolitan Transit Authority for flight times. A monsoon might—and did, last week—make nonsense of what was only a guess-to begin with.

The Grandness of Lurching Along

Well, the program is experimental, and one's children and one's temper are the laboratory animals in the experiment. Achieving a seat on the upper deck, however, disarranges the sense of flummox. It is grand to lurch along, perched high enough to check out the hair on the chest of every pedestrian, pasha-like in one's imperial idleness. Those of us with seats were unindicted co-conspirators; our glee had credit cards and pincers; we were tourists in our own capital city.

And something more, mere nibbles on the rim of mind: Children will indulge you in your double-decking, as they do in so many other bizarre activities you have decided will amuse and instruct them. They don't know that the old double-deckers disappeared from this city in 1953; they only know that you feel bad about it. They don't know that if you tried to hijack a new one to Brooklyn or Queens, it wouldn't fit on a bridge; they just like being big enough to see the second stories of Manhattan buildings. They don't know that you are asking them to feel nos-talgic about your own nostalgia, and that you borrowed you nostalgia from the movies instead of earning it by living through a gritty truth; they are merely trying to figure you out — the prefab history is junk to them. Another Cause for Sentiment

Also: The open tops on double-decker buses disappeared, in the city, in 1946. So long as you're feeling bad, or sentimental, why not feel sentimental or bad about that? Perhaps you can't because you've been, as a laboratory animal, too well-trained, negatively reinforced. How different, after all, is the condi-tioned air of a double-decker bus from the sidewalk cafe that's glassed in? The mob outside impresses its thumbprints and its personality on your window. You are desirable, remote, curious, con-tained, as if in a singles bar partitioned off a sidewalk, a shop for spare people.

You might explain to your children that once upon a time you wanted to be Jimmy Stewart on an open-top bus on the way to Greenwich Village. But that was before you learned about what Julio Cortazar calls "the ordinary routine of buses and history." Maybe, if one is a tourist, history won't show up, as the new double-deckers tend not to while one waits for a chance to feel bigger and better than one really is.

Riding a double-decker bus down Fifth Avenue is a great weekend way to tour Mante

In the absence of mango-bearing maidens with hibiscus blossoms in their hair, in the absence of loincloth-wearing fishermen, cooking fresh-caught sea bass over criftwood fires, it is some-times difficult to remember that we are all island dwellers on this place known as Manhattan. Some of us are natives and some are explorers who came looking for a 20th-century ver-sion of the Indian spice route. Some of us are castaways—contentedly ship-wrecked or miserably marooned. None of us, at any rate, can be too much farther than a dozen miles from the ocean, though months may go by without our laying eyes on so much as a

The trip - which lasts three hours starts at pier 83, 43d Street and the Hudson River, where the Circle Line cruise boats are docked. It's a good idea to arrive at least 20 minutes hefore departure time to have one's pickof seats; these may be had in a walledin, heated enclosure with windows or outside on the upper or lower decks. There, one can lean on the railings and watch the wake of the boat, or look for and not find—one's reflection in the ludson's amazingly opaque waters. By Helicopter: Taking A Spin Around Town

"Papa, it is like being inside a soap bubble," said the little girl. With the thrum of rotors beating in our ears and a hazy Saturday morning sun gleaming through the clear canopy above, beside and ahead of us, we were fluttering across Manhattan on an Island Helicopter tour, very much like passengers in a soap bubble on a magic

cially for youngsters.
From 1,000 feet up, the vast mystery that is Manhattan to a child is reduced to coherent proportions. Down below, automobiles move like Corgi models along the streets and highways; ocean liners nestling the shoreline appear no bigger than a bathtub fleet; Central Park sits neatly, like a patch of colorful rug amid a metropolis of milk-carton skyscrapers stitched to the rest of the world by a network of Tinkertoy bridges.

- The World on a Rooftop

To eyes in the sky, rooftops yield up their secret gardens and swimming pools, their tar beaches, the squat urban reservoirs that are their water towers. Chimneys and smokestacks seen from the sky peer back like the muzzles of rifles, and the Statue of Liberty can appear to pirouette.

Down below on the North River, the cruise ships were clearly visible. They don't look so big from high up," said my daughter Sarah, who is, in her exactitude, 5½ years old. On my lap, facing me inside the seat belt we shared, my other daughter. Miranda, 21/2, clung to me as if to a fleshly security blanket, peering out the win-dows from time to time in her debut

They were not the only children spending a portion of their weekend in the sky over Manhattan. While we waited to be summoned for our flight, 3-year-old Alexander Fernandez, a visi-tor from Mexico, was zipping over the island in one of the four-passenger Jet Ranger helicopters in the company of his grandfather Morris Menachem, who lives at Second Avenue and 32d Street. A Case of Fascination

It was on walks from his grandfather's home during a visit six months ago, explained the boy's mother, the former Roberta Menachem, that Alex-ander had studied—and been fascinated by-the helicopters.

"Grandpa, please take me," she remembered his saying.

So, grandfather did. With their sometimes awesome disregard for the treasures and pleasures of the city, New Yorkers have largely left the thrill of helicopter touring to visitors from out of town and overseas. Island Heliconters operates its tours 9 A.M. to 6 P.M. every day but New Year's, except in severe rain, wind or freezing conditions.

Tour prices begin at $9 a person for the 6-minute river run up and down the East Side. Then there are the 12minute liberty flight, $18; the 17-minute skyscraper tour, $26; the 22-minute "photographer's delight," $36, and the 42-minute "all-around the town" tour at $72. All flights proceed in counterclockwise fashion out of the being summoned for boarding.

Outside, the blast of wind and the sudden noise from the Jet Ranger's whirling rotor startled Sarah. A few tears rolled down her cheeks, but she did not hold back when I took her hand and led her aboard.

For us, the skyscraper flight seemed just about right. Despite the haze, we could see fairly well toward the upper end of Manhattan as we skimmed across the top of Central Park, and nothing below us was obscured. We saw both rivers, the United Nations, the Empire State Building. We circled the Statue of Liberty and flew not quite so high as the top of the World Trade Center.

In a matter of minutes, Sarah's tears had vanished. When we landed, she cheered with pleasure,
"Have a good time?" I asked Miranda.

The New York Times/Paol Hosefres

She nodded affirmatively. "Let's do it again," Sarah said. Why not, I thought. That's the way it should be on a weekend—the sky's

Stages of Childhood Now Playing a Busy Fall Schedule

By PHYLLIS A. EHRLICH

The scene is as magical a garden as any child (or adult, for that matter) could want: trees, a pool, a stone bridge and glass towers rising beyond the wall. On every side are marvelous figures of metal and stone, such as a king might command for his backyard, the works of masters like Rodin, Henry Moore, Maillol and Giacometti. This is, of course, the Museum of Modern Art's Sculpture Garden, which will be presenting "Alice Through the Looking Glass," its first full-length outdoor play for children, this Sunday.

Parents and children who attend will see a large wooden wagon, painted all over with flowers, standing in the middle of the garden. Then as the strains of music fill the air, the wagon will come to life. The sides will drop to reveal a black-and-white checkerboard platform; Alice, a unicorn, Humpty Dumpty and other characters will peep forth from gaily patched curtains, and a cheerful hour of singing, dancing, running around the wagon and general carrying on will begin.

The play, performed by a repertory group, the Meri Mini Teen Company of the First All Children's Theater, heads a full list of children's theater available this weekend and during the fall season, "Alice" is part of the "Once Upon a Sunday" program, which the museum's junior council sponsors for parents and children, 6 to 12 years old. Like most children's plays these days, Like most children's plays these days, this one is set to music, which was written by Phillip Namanworth. A beguiling little song, "Tl! Believe in You." is shared by Alice and the Unicora in one scene. The book for the play was written by Susan Dias, who also wrote the lyrics, and Meridee Stein, the producer.

Ten energetic teen-agers appear in the group, two boys and eight girls. Sarah Lutes fits Alice's part nicely, Christopher James is the lovable Unicom, and Lyndie Callan plays a number of characters none better than her humorous Humpty Dumpty.

Playtime is 1 and 3 P.M. Tickets, ; museum admission is 75 cents for those under 16; others, $2. The Modern is at 11 West 53d Street, Information: 956-6100.

'Pandora's Box

Uptown, a visual fantasy is promised. and delivered, in "Pandora's Box," by the Pumpernickel Players, a repertory group in residence at the Theater of the Riverside Church.

The performance is a fanciful version of the myth of the curiosity-smitten Pandora and the evil-filled chest. It is done mostly in dance sequences, illustrated by brilliant, fluctuating ribbons and revolving designs of psyche-delic colors, bathed in black light. At times the white or black seemingly de-tached hands and vividly colored limbs that float across the stage may become a bit scary for a very young child. The recorded musical background is on the loud side, but that may have to do with the acoustics of the attractive vaulted ceiling in the theater on the 10th floor of the church.

Norman Ader is the artistic director and choreographer. "Pandora's Box" is presented at 2 P.M. on Saturdays in the theater, 490 Riverside Drive at 120th Street. Admission, $2, 864-2929.

'Why Lily W'ont Spin'

Spinning flax or wool isn't exactlya nasty household chore for today's child, but youngsters in the audience recently related to the heroine in "Why Lily Wont Spin" and her problem with the task, downtown at the Greenwich Mews Theater. The play with music, presented by Alan A. Gabor in association with the theater, features 13-yearold Abigail Farris as Lily. She does a commendable job as a resistant, but likable teen-ager, in an update version of an old tale. The setting is spare, but effective. Written by N. Noble Barrett, who also wrote the lyrics, the play tries to carry a message about growth and relationships, child versus parent, and sometimes hits the mark. It also is sometimes humorous, as it is supposed to be, but the uneven performance is also at times slow moving. The theater is at 141 West 13th Street, between the Avenue of the Americas and Seventh Avenue. Admission, $2. 243-

'Red Riding Hood'

"Little Red Riding Bood" and the big bad wolf played to a packed house on a recent Saturday afternoon at the Courtyard Playhouse, 39 Grove Street, off Sheridan Square.

The old classic continues to charm. This bouncy version, by the Little People's Theater Company, with noisy chases up and down the aisles, might unnerve parents, but youngsters squealed with delight. The wholesome Performances of "Little Red Riding Hood" are at 1:30 P.M. on Saturday and Sunday, and "The Three Little Pigs" is at 3 P.M. on Saturday and Sunday. They're suitable for 3-to-7year-olds. Admission $2. 765-9540,

THE BROWNSTONE BUS

Brownstones have been a way of life for almost a century in New York, in Manhattan and Brooklyn. In recent years the once-gracious residences have been making a comeback, and you can see for yourself this Sunday and next how far they have come. The Brownstone Revival Committee of New York City is staging an all-day bus tour each day that will motor through 10 brownstone neighborhoods with stops at seven homes. The buses leave from Columbus Circle at 9 each Sunday morning and should be back at about 6 PM on a bit later You'll at about 6 P.M., or a bit later. You'll see an 1884 Upper West Side brown stone kept almost as it was. You'll ride through Chelsea, Greenwich Village, SoHo, Park Slope (lunch at the Montauk Club), Bedford-Stuyvesant. Reservations needed: admission, $30, which includes lunch. Information: 766-1337, 358-8851.

SCREENING NEW JERSEY

New Jersey played an early and crucial role in the making of moving pictures-Edison devised his film thines and early studios made films here—and the Newark Museum, 49 Washington Street, is not disposed to let this past glory go unsung. The mu-seum has had "Making Movies in New Jersey's as its Bicentennial exhibition, but on Sunday from I to 5 P.M. in will go all out on the theme with its annual open house festivities, Instant replay will show you as you would look on television or in film. You can make paper versions of early movie-viewing gadgets. Or you can "come as a star," costumed a la Chaplin, Keystone Kop, Buck Rogers, etc., and submit yourself to the creativity of on-the-spot makeup artists. Singalongs, showings of old movies and, in the plane-tarium, excerpts from Orson Welles's radio version of the Martian invasion as part of the show. Admission to everything is free. Information: (201) 733-6600.

NEW CANAAN FAIR

The New Canaan Nature Center in Connecticut is holding its 10th annua fall fair Sunday from noon to 4 P.M. and there should be much besides the foliage to feast your eyes on. This is a country fair with hayrides, oxen rides, demonstrations of dyed-in-thewool wool, beekeeping, cider making, weaving and basketry. Sales of pumpkins, squash, houseplants. Edibles. Live hawks and owls serving as models for talks on their habits. Plant-identification walks. Bluegrass music. Admission is free. The center is at 144 Ocnoke Ridge, New Canaan. Merritt Parkway to Exit 37, into Route 124; follow through to other side of town, it becomes Oenoke Ridge. Information: (203) 966-9577.

UKRAINIAN PARADE

It has been a busy Bicentennial year for Ukrainian-Americans in our neighborhood. There was a street fair on Seventh Street in the spring, the open-ing this month of a Ukrainian museum on Second Avenue and more festivities upstate and in New Jersey, But that's not all. Sunday, Ukrainian New Yorkers will parade down Fifth Avenue, starting at 1 P.M. at 58th Street and ending up at 41st Street several hours later with speeches and that sort of thing in Bryant Park, from 3 to 5 P.M. In the parade, you'll see floats, bands, bandura-strummers, folk dancer and units representing community groups. Rain or shine. RICHARD F. SHEPARD

IN A CLASS BY HERSELF. By Linda Crawford. 243 pages. Scribner's, $7.95.

To read, in the same week, a novel about a woman whomakes love to a bear, followed by a novel about a woman who makes love to a gun, followed by this novel about a woman who is a blocked writer and a lesbian ond a drunk ond a pillhead, is to stretch the elastic in one's synapses to a breaking point. The brainpan rattles.

Yet the care and feeding of first novelists is at least as much a re-viewer's job as it is a publisher's, and Linda Crawford is a first novelist with talent, end one goes on turning the pages of "In a Class by Herself" hoping she will somenow stitch up the literary ambition, the sexual choice, the Scotch and the amphetamines into a pattern. She doesn't really. Ligature is missing. Which is sad, because scene by scene her novel is funny, scery and moving. Evelyn Girard, a 27-year-old journalist who, when she isn't falling down or throwing up, spends altogether too much time sitting around being fiercely honest with herself, is clearly on a selfdestructive binge. Her father is a drunk, she is a drunk, her lover, Regina, is a drunk. Most of the people she meets are either drunks or reformed drunks. And when she isn't consorting with them, she is picking up cab drivers and traveling salesmen who confirm her low opinion of the male sex and of herself by heaping indignities and leaving bruises on her. (The heterosexual sex scenes are invarably, brutally detailed; a prim Victorian shade is drawn to black out the homosexual splicings.)

where inside her isn't being born. What is it about? She tells us: "Suspension of life in the midst of life-patching oneself with chemical glue-insulation -disintegration." It is, naturally, the book we are reading. And throughout she imagines a rave review—"her lan-guage is dazzling," "absolute mastery of stylistic nuance," "intimate ac-quaintance with the void," etc.—whose mindless gush is intended as an ironic comment on the situations to which she submits, and her own ambition to transfigure them.

But who or what is to blame for Evelyn's impasse? An alcoholic father? A moronic mother? The hypocritical middle class? Unspecified weaknesses of character? Newspaper work? Men? The military-industrial complex? Surely the problem isn't lesbianism. As countless novels and countless lives have testified, an affair doesn't have to be homosexual to be destructive. Perhaps literary ambition itself is the culorit.

Evelyn Girard crouches inside Linda Crawford's novel, her intelligence clicking like a geiger counter, measur-ing the fallout of her self-disgust. It may be, as is often the case with first novels, that "in a Class by Herself" is therapeutic, a desperate assertion, its own excuse. Or it may be, less excusably, that Linda Crawford is so uncertain about Evelyn Girard that she can't decide whether she wants us. to identify with or to ridicule the character she has created. More evidence, more novels, are needed.

The American Contract Bridge League, after a decade of static membersship figures, recently enrolled its 200,000th member. In New York tournament attendance is slightly down, but the bigger clubs are flourishing, especially in the suburbs.

In Nassau County, for example, the Vanderbilt Club, now firmly established in beautiful quarters at 1362 Northern Boulevard, Manhasset, LI., has a daily attendance of more than 150 players. Nearly all these are duplicate enthusiasts, but there are facilities also for rubber bridge games, in one of which the diagramed deal was played.

After a three-spade response to an opening two no-trump bid, one would expect South to raise to four spades with three-card support. This would have led to a game contract that would have been difficult but not impossible: East would probably lead a major suit and in doing so give the declarer a useful clue to the position of a key

But with no ruffing prospects in his hand, the South player, Joel Silver, chose to persevere in no-trump, reaching a game that would have been quickly defeated by an opening club lead. Even with an opening heart lead. doing him no harm at all, South had to consider the danger of a club shift at a later stage.

With the club menace in mind, South now made two most unusual plays. At the first trick, he won the heart nine

West covered with the spade king, and when he was allowed to win he had no hesitation in persevering with hearts. That was the end of the de-fense, for South was able to win and duck a spade. With a successful dia-mond finesse to come eventually, he now had three tricks in spades, hearts and diamonds, without any possibility that the defenders could take more

Publishing: Chagall Biographer

By THOMAS LASK

IDNEY ALEXANDER, novelessayist and translator, was saying the other day: "I came up too fast from the 16th century to the 20th. There was a block for a while, but the dam finally broke, and now the book is virtually done." He was talking about his new biography of Marc Chagall, one of the best-known painters of the school of Paris, which G. P. Putnam's Sons will be publishing at a date not yet announced.

Mr. Alexander, an American writer, has made his home in Florence for the last 23 years. In that time he has devoted his energies largely to the Renaissance. He has published two volumes of a three-part novel based on the life of Michelangelo; translated, part of Guicciardini's "History of Italy." for which he received the translation prize of the international writers' organization PEN, and last year published "The Lion and the Fox," essays on life and art in the Renaissance. The switch from the early period to modern times was evidently not accomplished without distress, but all that remains to be done is a little buffing and polishing of the manuscript.

The new biography is unauthorized, a situation that has advantages and drawbacks, Mr. Alexander has been restricted in his access to certain materials (Chagall will be 90 next year), but there are compensations even there.

"Chagali is a mixture of seeming naivete and extreme canniness," Mr. Alexander said. "He is a maker of his own myth and has continued to do this. In an unauthorized biography I am

"I've always been fascinated by the twilight zone between fiction-the invention of reality-and history, the

"His work looks tremendously free," Mr. Alexander explained, "bis it was always meticulously made."

Unless you look carefully, you are not likely to notice that the designer of Edwin Way Teale's "The American Seasons" (Dodd, Mead) is Avery Fisher. The book is made up of selections taken from Mr. Teale's four-volume journey through the American year for which he received the Pulitzer

Mr. Fisher, it turns out, is the same Avery Fisher who designed hi-fi equipment donated a huge sum to Lincoln Center and for whom Avery Fisher Hall, formerly Philharmonic Hall, is

He has appended a note to the design of the book, and a very learned note it is too. "Trajanus is a calligraphic Roman type face in the style of the scrittura umanistica of the late 14th century and early 15th century," he writes at one point.

Mr. Fisher is not looking for more worlds to conquer. He is simply return-ing, he said the other day, to "my first love." (His fee goes to charity.) Mr. Fisher worked for Dodd, Mead before turning to the manufacture of sound equipment, and over the years he has managed to keep his hand in. Sixteen years ago he designed Winston Churchill's "A History of the English-Speaking. Peoples" for that publisher.

When Dodd. Mead asked him whether he would care to design the Teale book? (he had worked on an earlier book by the same author many years ago), he said. "It was like an old girlfriend calling up and asking whether we could."

"Looking at a beautiful type page is like listening to min Fisher added

had gone to college in America and Europe, ending up as something of a dropout in Spain where he had lived with his wife's parents. Returning to America, he found himself broke, with a wife and himself broke, with America, he found himself broke, with a wife and two children and another on the way. He institutely gravitated toward the small Pennsylvania mining town where he grew up as the son of the town's doctor. There was no other way to make $12,000 a year, so the upper doctor into the miner with he went down into the mines, "just until he got back on his feet." In most cases, these were famous last words. One has to admire Mr. Arble's re-straint as he describes the trailer camp where he and his wife and three children lived. Their trailer was one of about 100 in the park. There was a bedroom at either end and the kitchen and livingroom were in the middle. The children's bedroom had no heat and the trailer was uninsulated. The baby's crib was wedged into the bathroom, which made washing rather difficult. Mr. Arble's evocation of the landscape is casual, but enough to fill one with horror; piles of "boney," which is waste from the mines, everywhere; a foggy, sulphurous haze; acad trees killed by sulphur fumes. Perhaps only an ex hippy, as the author describes himself. could look at this landscape with anything resembling equanimity.

Mr. Arble's wife, Grada, liked to play bridge. He did not, so their social life was largely separate. He went to the miners' bars, danced and drank. He too, found himself lesing all desire for his young, attractive wife, but he could not tell whether it was because of the mysterious effects of "walking in the low" in the mine or because his wife always seemed to be wearing hair curl-

While a mine with a 42-inch ceiling is not an ideal theater for the Hourishing of personality, the author gives sharp thumbnail sketches of his fellowworkers, especially Zurko, a former football star in school who sees himself as a philosopher, poet and revolutionary, but who may be only a drunk with delusions of grandeur. Mr. Arble is especially good, too, on the old miners who are just a year or two away from their pensions and trying gamely to hang in there when every part of their body hurts.

Every time the author managed to pay his bills and get a few dollars the union would call a strike, or the company would shut down the mine because the lift or somothing else was broken. It began to look as if he would spend the rest of his life in "the long tunnel, crawling all the way," but as soon as he finally managed to draw even, he and his family loaded their life in his temperamental old car and took off. Among the things he had dug out down in the mine with a pick and shovel was a sense of who and what he was. With his hard-earned knowledge as his resume, he intends to try his calloused hand at writing. If "The Long Tunnel" is any indication, he will not have to stash the baby in the bath-

The book captures some of what it takes to get to the top—the dedication, the drive, the cold ambition. If the authentic portrayal of the characters seems uncanny, it is, at least in part, because Mr. Demers is a tennis umpire in Britain and he has clearly drawn from firsthand observation. The scenes he creates are completely believable. So the four concrete palm-tree columns that supported the downstairs club, where Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, Sid Caesar, Mort Sahl and Tom Jones entertained, have not been removed. They've been painted in a white enamel and will be the focus of a multicolor light show to go with the $100,000 sound system that was installed just in time for tonight's opening.

The Copa Girls will not be dancingnot that anybody really went to the club to see them dance; guests were there simply to be seen—and in the space where the girls danced, two huge loudspeakers have been placed so that couples dancing can hear the Hustle.

A few of the old girls came to see the new Copa earlier this week. One of them was Emily Jewell, who came, not as the "wide-eyed kid from Kansas City" that she had once been but, as she said, "a wide-eyed kid from Atlan-tic City." She became the Copa's symbol. It is her face, turbaned, that appeared on the awnings and in the liter-ature, and she symbolized other aspects of the Copa Girls as well.

Al Joison, she recalled, bought her a $10,000 compact and begged, on both knees, to marry her, but she said "My mother thought he was too old for me.

There are some other changes as well. What was once known as "the Burma Road" in the old club, a line of remote seats against the back wall, has been partitioned off to create a white-andpink backgammon room. The parqueted dance floor, which was a tiny 24-feet square for the entire three-decade life of the old Copa, has been enlarged so that it takes up about a third of the downstairs club floor space.

But the basic Copacabana that Monte Proser concocted after a visit to Rio de Janeiro remains-slightly seedy, slightly the worse for wear, but very much the essence of a 1940's nightclub.

The Copacabana was one of the clubs, along with the Latin Quarter and the International, that perhaps symbolized the dinner-show, big-name type of club operation that was for years synonymous with New York by night.

When it opened in 1940, there were reports, that long persisted, that one of its owners was the underworld figure Frank Costello. Nevertheless it became one of the city's outposts of glamour. Jimmy Durante performed at the Copa regularly, and so did Ray Charles, Jerry Vale, Chubby Checker and Petula Clark. Rich Little was asked to leave when he parodied President Lyndon B. Johnson, and other entertainers complained that it was hard for newcomers to get a break there. And the Copa Girls kept rotating, new ones replacing the old ones who married millionaires, who got breaks in show business, and who became, it is true, housewives. But people went there, Proms partied there. Smith College students commuted there to be Copa Girls at night. A former Yankee, Hank Bauer, was arrested for fighting there. Policemen were beaten up there, and whisky-induced violence was commonplace. Yet the Copa endured when other clubs faded, and even when it was about to die in 1973, it was still the home of big-time show business acts like George

Large amounts of money have been spent on new plumbing and wiring, and a spate of new ductwork has been in-stalled. Eventually, Mr. Dorn says, the kitchen will be subdivided into two kitchens-kosher and nonkosher-for the catering that he hopes the Copa will attract.

When it opens tonight-after a week of preview parties that saw the crea-tion of an Association of Former Copa Girls, and the arrival last night of Andy Warhol and an entourage of greetersthe Copa will consist of two contiguous operations. The downstairs discotheque will be open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 P.M. to 4 A.M., with a $15 minimum that will include three "And we're only serving top-shelf booze," says Mr. Dorn. "No bar scotch or anything."

The upstairs cabaret will be open Mondays through Saturdays from 9 P.M. until 4 A.M., and there will be a $5 minimum and a $5 cover charge, or 'show charge," as Mr. Dorn prefers

There were anxious moments, Mr. Dorn reports, when the idea of reopen-ing the Copa as the Copa was proposed about a year ago. "Then we found that the name had never been registered. so there was no problem with that."
So the name is the same, and the awnings, although new, carry the painted images of the high-cheeked turbaned Copa Girl that for 30 years was the nightclub's symbol.

The palm-pattern carpeting has been retained, and even the old chairs, which were hastily being reupholstered through Wednesday. The old lower-level dressing room for the Copa Girls will remain a dressing room for the

"Whether we have a line of dancing girls will depend on the future," Mr. Dorn says. Initially, any entertainment will be of the low-profile dinner-club variety. For example, tonight the Life U.S.A. group will be there, but in the future the owners hope to have enough money to offer big star packages.

With the stars may come the Copa

Some of the old Copacabana girls who returned earlier this week for a reunion at the newly refurbished discotheque

Jazz: David Murray on Savobo

David Murray, a young tenor-saxophonist who has emerged as one of the more fluent and promising players on his instrument since he arrived in New York more than a year ago, went a long way toward fulfilling his promise Wednesday at New York University's Eisner and Lubin Auditorium.

Unlike many younger saxophonists who feel called upon to express themseives in lengthy, multinoted solos, Mr. Murray is a team player, and on Wednesdays he shared his performing time. with the rugged individualists in hisquintet. But he did not shortchinge, his own powers of expression in the

Saturday

Back in TV land, the first game of baseball's World Series will begin at 12:45 on NBC's Channel 4. Saturday night, at 10 o'clock, the last of this fall's new weekly series straggles in on ABC. It is called "Most Wanted" and deals with what the network calls "an elite task force of the police department that deals with perpetrators of crimes of such magnitude as to make the mayor's 'most wanted' Obviously, this particular story road has already been heavily trav-eled.

The star this time is Robert Stack, who is given surprisingly little to do. The plot concerns an escaped convict who hijacks a plane, and releases all but 12 passengers in exchange for a young Congressman who earlier had been the prosecutor in his case. The convict wants his case retried on the plane to prove that he was framed by overzealous law enforcers. Harris 'ulin's performance as the convict is better than anyone has a right to expect under the circumstances, but the plot disintegrates into silly tactics and muddled resolutions. "Most Wanted" is perhaps the least commanding product of the news season but, then, this too will undoubtedly pass quickly from the schedules.

Sunday

Sunday's World Series game will be played at 8:15 P.M., thanks to an NBC network anxious to boost its primetime ratings by any means possible, and to a curiously compliant baseball commission, which allowed the switch from traditional daytime hours.

Public TV's "Woman" series, pro-duced by Sandra Elkin for WNED in Buffalo, reaches its most effective levels this weekend with the first of two half-hour interviews with Belty Williams and Mairead Corrigan, leaders of the new People's Peace Movement in Northern Ireland. While Miss Elkin as interviewer recedes to the back-ground, the two Catholic women (Mrs. Williams's husband is Protestant) are sometimes bitter, but usually gentle, in their articulate condemnation of all violence and their warning to Irish-Americans about contributions that may be used for more arms and more

The two women have been threatened for their peace efforts. In fact, after recording these interviews (in New Orleans, for security reasons). they were attacked and beaten in Northern Ireland at a public meeting-They have vowed to continue, A peace march is scheduled in London next month. Their organization has been put in contention for the Nobel Peace Prize. They could prevail. Their first half-hour on "Woman" can be seen on

Channel 13 this afternoon at 1:30 and will be repeated on Channel 21 at 6

At 7 on CBS, "60 Minutes," which has become one of the network's biggest audience grabbers, has one of those startling essays that makes the series one of the best news productions on television. Grace Diekhaus, the producer, and Mike Wallace, correspondent, visit the Montonari School in Flor-ida to examine one small corner of a billion-dollar interstate commerce in

These are youngsters-orphans, truants, the emotionally disturbed—who are shipped to out-of-state "treatment centers," usually at public expense. The Montonari School, founded by Adelio Montonari, has been in business for 25 years. The blustering Mr. Montonari is expertly squeezed between the promises of the school catalog and the reality of his operation, including the fact that at least half the youngsters in his school are controlled by the 'chemical restraints" of drugs. The research of "60 Minutes" is verified in conversations with several of the school's low-paid teachers. The spec-tacle of Mr. Montonari conceding his school's deficiencies while defending his right to operate a very lucrative business provides an astonishing exam-ple of how TV can generate destructive

Competing Stock Specialists: Polite, Distant

By LEONARD SLOANE

Bill Boye and Bert McCooey stand side by side every day as the first competing specialists on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange in about a decade. They don't talk much to each other, but each is very much concerned with the other's actions as they fight for business-and perhaps "The first day, people were standing around waiting for us to put on the gloves," said Mr. Boye. "But we didn't. "I came over here with the idea that if it's going to be tough, I can be as tough as anybody," said Mr. McCooey. "But I wouldn't say it's McCooey. unfriendly." That's the way the two chief partici-

of the exchange described their relationship yesterday as they stood side by side eyeing the ticker tape.

The rivals were polite but distant in talking about each other and about their new roles as the nation's leading securities exchange entered a new phase of competition.

As specialists, Mr. Boye and Mr. McCooey handle orders to buy and sell stocks from brokerage firms and purchase and sell securities for their own

York exchange specialists who were responsible for aparticular stock were assured that no other specialist could make a market in that stock-even though there was competition with specialis,s on other exchanges and with dealers in the over-the-counter market. Intra-exchange competition returned Monday, and the first specialist firm selected to face it was Kingsley, Boye & Southwood Inc., wich handles 17 common and preferred stocks and one

Kingsley Boye, along with some others on the floor, thinks that this is no coincidence, because this summer it instituted a discount brokerage business dealing with the public in addition to its specialist activities.

To back up its assertion that it was singled out for competitive treatment, Kingsley Boye points to the appearance of three independent, or "$2." brokers at its post on June 2, as soon as its first discount brokerage ad was published. These brokers—Peter J. Bergen,

Assessing the situation, Carol Stone, vice president of Merrill Lynch Economcs Inc., said yesterday:

"The economy is not moving up rapidly, if indeed the Fed really moved, and I think they did, they did it right after money supply weakness in the last quarter, a relatively weak set of unemploy-ment figures and also immediately after retail sales data which indicated they were flat from August to September.

"Those last two things in particular added to the general feeling that the economy is not very strong. A number of prominent economists have lowered their third and fourth-quarter estimates for the economy. So the Fed had those arguments for moving down with the funds rate just a little.

"On the other side, of course, M-2 continues to hover at the upper limit of its target range, which would indicate that this move is probably going to be very modest and there will probably be no dramatic changes in the Fed's basic strategy of moderate growth."

FEAR CALLED 'MAJOR ELEMENT'

Investors Apparently Are Uncertain on Lagging Economic Recovery -Foreign Instability Cited

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 12.38 points yesterday to close at 935.92, resuming its lengthy decline and nearly erasing Wednesday's single-day rally of 15.95 points.

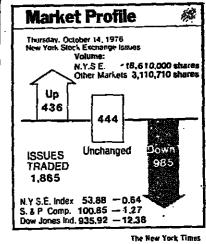

Market analysts again stressed investors' apparent uncertainty over the lagkepticism and apprehension over the economic course of a Jimmy Carter Administration. In some quarters, uncertain-ty verged on gloom and fear.

"Fear is a major element here." said Leonard Siegel, research director at Philips, Appel & Walden Inc., who considered Wall Street unduly worried about a Carter Administration's being antibusi-

Another analyst saw nervousness over financial instability in Britain, Italy and elsewhere in Europe and over the third world economy, which might be severely squeezed by rising oil prices and falling commodities prices.

Kennecott Will Sell Peabody Coal for $1.2 Billion To Holding Company Headed by Newmont Mining

By HERBERT KOSHETZ The Kennecott Copper Company an-nounced yesterday that it had agreed to sell its Peabody Coal Company subsidiary to a holding company headed by the Newmont Mining Corporation for $1.2 billion in cash and notes.

Kennecott has been under a 1971 order by the Federal Trade Commission to divest itself of Peabody. Besides Newmont, the other concerns involved in the purchase are the Williams Companies, the Bechtel Corporation, the Fluor Corporation and the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. If consummated, the sale will be one of the largest on record. Bu its will be subsequently below the proposed transaction involving an exchange of securities valued at $1.9 billion in the General Electric Company's acquisition of Utah International Inc. announced last December. The Kennecott transaction is subject to the approval of the F.T.C.

Kennecott also announced that as part of the same deal Peabody's Australian operations would be sold to a wholly owned subsidiary of the Broken Hill proprietary Company of Australia.

Rate for Marketability Kennecott said it would receive for Peabody $600 million in cash and shortterm notes and $200 million in 20-year guaranteed notes of the holding company with interest at a rate to make them mar-ketable at face value and $400 million of 30-year, 5 percent subordinated income

Reaction on Teledyne Called Too Severe

By ROBERT METZ

When Teledyne Inc., a conglomerate assembled in the go-go years of the late 1960's, posted earnings in 1975 more then quadruple those of 1974, investors sat up and noticed.

Wall Street also expected that Teledyne would earn $10.50 a share in 1976, again a major advance from 1975's $5.91.

The shares, which traded as low as 18 in the winter of 1975, began a move that took them to 80 1/2 by mid-1976, one of the best gains of any stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

But since that time the shares have been drifting lower and the drift became a drop this week. In a class-action suit brought in a Federal court in Los Angeles, shareholders charged that Teledyne had fraudulently withheld facts about the company's glowing prospects when it accepted 204,000 tendered shares of the $6 convertible preferred last April.

Analysts said that the reaction to the news of the suit—which the company insists is without merit—was far too severe. The stock, which closed last week at 74½, was off 2 points yesterday to close at 63½.

Robert Hanisee, Teledyne analyst for Crowell, Weedon & Company, a Los Angeles-based brokerage firm, said in a telephone interview that the reaction on Teledyne this week reflected the "generally lousy market."

The stock market is off over 10 percent now. Teledyne, which has been a superior performer, has never had a correction. The class action suit has brought on this technical correction."

Teledyne is a collection of roughly 120 companies that were melded into a single operating company by the present management, led by Dr. Henry E. Singleton, chairman and chief executive officer, and Dr. G. A. Roberts, in the last few years, the company has been consolidated and unprofitable businesses have been eliminated, For example, when the company began losing money on malpractice insurance in its Argonaut division, it discontinued the biggest part of that business in

Of Teledyne's $102 million in after-tax profits last year, about $85 million were from operations and the remainder from the insurance company. Of the operating companies' revenues about 35 to 40 percent is industrial, notably plastic and metal products for the automotive industry as well as metal-working products for the machine tool industry and supplies for seismic exploration for oil and gas.

The company is the premier producer of zirconium and titanium metals, which account for perhaps 20 to 25

co, said that the company's acquisitions of the late 1960's constituted a "well thought out and orchestrated development program."

He noted that the company was not only doing well with its far-flung operations and insurance interests, but also that Teledyne had been reducing the number of its shares outstanding steadily over the last two to three

"At the peak, Teledyne had 30 million shares, but through repurchase in the open market, tender offers and repurchase of convertible debt securities, the company has reduced that total to 12.5 million," he added.

Mr. Rogers said that his firm began recommending the stock late last fall, when the shares were at 19.

"Our position throughout this summer has been that at 80 the stock reached our initial investment objec-tive," Mr. Rogers said. "We thus ad-vised our clients to take some profits

"We anticipate that there will be fur-ther price appreciation from current levels," he added, "but we haven't come out with a strong recommendation beause of current unsettled market

The two analysts agreed that the suit, whatever its merits, could hardly hamstring the company. On the other hand, Teledyne, like other conglomerates, is difficult to analyze and this may explain why only a handful of analysts follow it. It is also notoriously difficult to keep so many irons at the glowing Addressograph, which said subsidiaries had two off-books bank accounts, also said normal commissions to foreign agents may have been made in a way designed to help them avoid taxes or currency regulations.

The investigation, covering 1972 to date, was begun after review last February of payments made by one subsidiary. Management ordered the practice halted, but agreed to pay $5,400 to fulfill a previ-ous commitment and to avoid possible danger to employees.

The Belco Petroleum Corporation reported several questionable payments during the 1971-75 period, including $2 million in reimbursements for customerdirected overbillings. The managing director of the customer also received commissions of up to $30,000 a year, and a merchandise inspector received payments of up to $2,500 a year.

Presence of U.S. Business Looms Large in Hong Kong

HONG KONG, Oct. 14 — Early retirement in Florida began to pale several months ago for Stanley Young, a veteran Asian hand. He missed the attractions of the control of the an Asian name rie missen ine stirric-tions of this part of the world after a four-year absence, and so he decided to accept an invitation to come here as the executive director of the American Chamber of Commerce in this exciting, teeming, sophisticated colony.

Now he has his hand full, directing theactivities of one of the most energetic American business-promotion and linises of control of the most energetic American business-promotion and linises. liaison organizations in Southeast Asia.

The last few weeks have been particularly hectic for the former oil-company executive and his staff of 11. They have been welcoming a number of top American corporate officials from home and arranging discussions on pertinent local issues for many of the leading bankers and other executives coming through this city after the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank in Manila.

Mr. Young, a busy, widely known and articulate trade official, has had his finger on the pulse of business acthe world for almost three decades. His career with Esso foreign oil operations took him successively to Japan, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Saigon and finally as general manager of Esso's refinery in Pakistan.

In 1972, family problems prompted him to request an early retirement and him to request an early retirement, and he returned to his home in St. Petersburg, Fla., where be became a bank branch manager and a local tity com-missioner. After he had resolved the personal situation, Mr. Young became restive for a new challenge in this region that he missed so much.

This is where the real action is these days," he said in his office this week. "We have a growing, dynamic economy here and a most attractive climate for business.

The American business presence the American business presence looms very large here — especially in banking—but also in the securities business, petroleum, electronics and other industries. Roughly half of this colony's $326 million total foreign investment in various manufacturing cilities is represented directly by United States companies, Mr. Young noted, but there is an even greater American investment commitment through joint ventures with Hong Kong manufactur-ers, to say nothing about the unavailable figures on the scope of American banking operations.

New York's Citibank is the largest American banking enterprise here by far, and the fourth largest bank in the colony. Only five American banks have been fully licensed here (the others are Chase, the Bank of America, American Express and the Rainier National Bank of Washington), but Continental Illinois has ilist made a ioint-venture deal with a holder of one of the scarce banking licenses and will be in business within six months. Though unable to conduct a full banking operation, many other American banks are on the scene as partici-pants in local banks and in their own finance companies. "Name any major United States bank in any part of the country, and you can be sure it is represented here in some fashion," a New York banker said the other day. Because of the huge sums of money that are either resident here or flow through the colony on account of its highly comfortable tax and regulatory climate, American and other foreign bankers, as well as securities firms have been flocking here for some years. The prestigious New York investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers cpened its first Asian facility here last week, when Henry Kaufman, a partner. came from the I.M.F. meeting to conwell as more American plant invest-ment, according to Mr. Young.

He said that E.J. du Pont de Nemours turer, would be officially opening a distribution operation this week and that at least a half-dozen new regional business offices would be set up by American companies in the next six months, including one by Continental Can.

At present, the five largest American investments here, according to Mr. Young, are Mobil Oil's huge privatehousing project; Esso's power-genera-tion facility, a joint venture with a local utility; Dow Chemical's big polystyrene operation; an outboard marine plant, and General Electric's radioproduction complex that employs 2,000 workers and turns out some 3 million radios a year for the United States and other markets.

All of those projects are fascinating examples of American industry's ability to capitalize on investment opportunity here, but the most unusual is Mobil's $120 million investment in one of the world's largest privately financed residential developments. A 10 percent interest is held by the Galbreath-Ruffin Corporation and the Turner Construction. tion Company, both of New York.

It is a self-contained city within a city for some 55,000 present residents, and it is still growing. Almost 100 highrise apartment buildings make up the major part of the development on a 40-acre site in Laichikok, New Kowloon, storage terminal.

One of the major lures for American and other foreign investment is the comfortable tax climate, with a maximum rate of 17 percent on corporate profits and 15 percent on personal in-

Foreign investment will continue to expand in this colony, an American official said, because the Covernment understands the value of business incentives and because Hong Kong still needs to upgrade some production operations. The colony has been losing ground to Korea and Taiwan in some business areas because of their more favorable labor and land situations.

The American Chamber of Commerce here hopes to help in that objective. It is working as well on plans for expanding American trade with China and eventually with Vietnam.

It is all business here all the time-or almost. The only inappropriate time to try to see a businessman, William M. Coulter, manager of the Orion Pacific Banking Organization, told a visitor, is between 3 and 6 o'clock in the mornThis announcement is neither an offer to sell nor a solicitation of an offer to buy any of these Scentilies.

A Chicago businessman yesterday asserted that "capitalists have helped cripple capitalism." Brooks McCormick, president of International Harvester, speaking at a business roundtable seminar in Chicago, declared: "The continuous encreachment by government into the private sector of the economy would not have been possible if corporate shareholders—as voters— had not given support to the trend or at least passively withheld opposition Describing shareholders as "the original capitalists" and characterizing them as America's most exploited minority group, Mr. McCormick contended that stockholders "have been blinded to their own interests in the antibusiness climate of today, and failed to use their political power to protect the interest of the corporations they themselves own,

Ports Reopened to Foreign Beef After National Quotas Were Set

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (UPI)-A United States Customs official said yesterday that all ports of entry were temporarily closed Wednesday night to shipments of foreign beef, but that they had been reopened.

Helen Rohrbaugh, the official responsible for administering the beef quotas imposed by President Ford last week, said the ports were put into a temporary "holding pattern" until each country's share of the imports were worked out

She explained that Customs was required by law to delay foreign beef shipments to the United States until individual allocations could be determined by the Agriculture Department and then submitted to the Treasury Secretary for certification.

On Oct. 9, President Ford set the total national import quota on beef at 1.22 billion pounds, but left it to the Agriculture Department to set the country-

Electric System Revenue

Refunding Bonds, Series of 1976

Principal and semi-annual interest (January 1 and July 1; first courson July 1, 1977) payable at National Bank of Commerce, Memphis, Tennessee, Trustee, or at Chemical Bank, New York, N. Y. The Revenue Refunding Bends are initially issuable as coupon Bonds of $5,000 denomination registrable as to principal only, and are exchangeable for fully registered Bonds without coupons in the denomination of $5,000 or any multiple thereof.

The Revenue Refunding Bonds are subject to redemption prior to maturity as described in the Official Statement. The Revenue Refunding Bonds are being issued to provide a portion of the amount needed to refund $103,190,000 principal amount of the City's outstanding Electric Distribution System Revenue Bonds. The Revenue Recunding Bonds will be issued pursuant to and secured by a Bond Resolution of the City and will be payable solely from the net revenues of the Electric System of the City.

A portion of the additional moneys needed to effect the refunding will be provided from the proceeds of the City's $77,690,000 Electric System Special Obligation Refunding Bonds, Series of 1976, which are a separate issue being offered simultaneously with the Revenue Refunding Bonds. The Special Bonds will be separately secured from the Revenue Refunding Bonds.

City of Memphis, Tennessee

Electric System Special Obligation Refunding Bonds, Series of 1976

Dated October 1, 1976

Principal and interest payable on January 1, 1977, and semi-annually thereafter on each July 1 and January 1 at National Bank of Commerce, Memphis, Tennessee, Trustee, or at Chemical Bank, New York, N. Y. The Special Bonds are initially issuable as coupon Bonds of $5,000 denomination registrable as to principal only, and are exchangeable for fully registered Bonds without coupons in the denomination of $5,000 or any multiple thereof.

The Special Bonds are not subject to redemption prior to maturity. The Special Boods are being issued to provide a portion of the amount needed to refund $103,190,000 principal amount of the City's outstanding Electric Distribution System Revenue Bands. The Special Bonds will be issued pursuant to and secured by a Special Bond Resolution of the City, and will be payable solely from moneys received thereunder representing the interest income on direct and general obligations of the United States of America.

A portion of the additional moneys needed to effect the refunding will be provided from proceeds of the City's $77,175,000 Electric System Revenue Refunding Bonds, Series of 1976, which are a separate issue being simultaneously offered with the Special Bonds. The Revenue Refunding Bonds will be separately secured from the Special Bonds.

Pursuant to a ruling of the Comptroller of the Currency dated October 8, 1976, the Special Bonds are eligible for puchase, dealing in, underwriting and unlimited holding by national banks.

Auto Output to Rise 2.3% This Week

DETROIT, Oct. 14—New-car production is expected to be up 2.3 percent this week from last as a result of the reopening of some Ford Motor Company plants closed by the United Automobile Workers strike, according to industry analysts.

They estimated today that Ford's car production would total only about 4,000 week was estimated at 45,487, up 6.7 this week but that this would raise total American auto output to 151,143, up 13,332 from last week's 147,811. However, output will still be 18,048, or 10.7 percent from last week's a year ago.

The four-week U.A.W. strike against the four-week U.A.W. strike against to plans to run six plants on overtime

The one compensation problem Mr. Korn saw was other changes in the tax laws. He thinks they have probably "dealt a death blow" to stock options as an important form of executive com-

On Being Assertive

Many managers have to learn the hard way that the thin line between assertiveness and aggressiveness is diplomacy—and sometimes even forbear-ance. The American Management Association hopes to make the line easier to negotiate with three new courses in assertiveness training.

News Coverage of Business Criticized

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY Special to The New York Times

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.,Oct. 14 -The head of a company that places more than $200 million worth of advertising a year in the media soundly criticized print and broadcast journalism's coverage of business before an audience of other major national advertisers here today.

At no point, however, did James L. Ferguson, chairman and chief executive of General Foods, suggest an advertising boycott. Instead he called on the leaders of the communications industry "to establish a greater degree of selfcontrol."

He is not by any means the first business executive in recent years to attack the press for what is termed unfair, sloppy or biased coverage of business. But he also warned that press freedom could be endangered.

Having discussed the move toward "new journalism," in which he saw some positive things, Mr. Ferguson said that there was not much doubt "that the swing has gone too far, and that there is need for correction. In fact the issue now is not whether correction is coming but whether the reaction will be so strong that the freedom of the press, and with it the freedom of all of us will be curtailed."

A bit later Mr. Ferguson added: "The rejection of established institutions as the definers of events and the primary sources of news overlooks the fact that most of the work of the world is carried on by established institutions and that those institutions cannot carry on their work unless the news media fulfill their central function, which is simply to report what has happened.

The executive, who is on the board of several other corporations, made his remarks during the opening session of the three-day 67th annual meeting of the Association for National Advertis-ers at the Broadmoor Hotel. The event has attracted the largest turnout of members in seven years.

However, many from the media and ad agencies are missing this year because the board of the A.N.A., concerned by the increase in numbers at the annual meetings, decided to limit guest attendance to those affiliated with trade associations and the three Elected chairman of the association today was William M. Claggett, vice president of the Consumer products group of Ralston Purina. Chester R. Green, senior vice president for corporate development and marketing research of Kraft Inc., was elected vice chairman.

The morning session ended with the J. Waker Thompson Company's wellpublicized presentation on violence in America and the media, which was fol-lowed by a report on the public atti-tudes toward it by Don Johnston, president of the agency.

The results of "a comprehensive survey of the nation's television viewers," he said, brought in results similar to those of a pilot study done earlier. It showed that 35 percent of the respond-ents avoided violent programs and at one point 4 percent of them don't buy products advertised on them. An additional 4.5 percent said they thought of taking similarly drastic actions. For the more affluent and better educated, these percentages doubled.

Earlier, Herbert S. Schlosser, president of the National Broadcasting Company, addressed the same question. The networks are just as concerned about violence, he said, "but we believe it has been clouded by misunderstanding and misinformation and then it has been distorted by a tendency to make television an easy scapegoat for per-sistent and historic social and economic

Mr. Schlosser spoke of many things— technical developments, cable and pay television and future advertising in-vestments—and he also touched on the topic of major concern to most of the people attending the meeting, the soar-ing cost of commercial television time. For whatever consolation his audience got out of it, the network execu-tive assured it that "in constant dollars, network television's costs-perthousand have declined steadily" and that the prices are actually lower this year than in the base year of 1965. This probably didn't make the people who pay their media bills with noncon

stant dollars feel any better.

The first speaker of the morning making her major industry convention debut, was Mary Wells Lawrence chairman of Wells, Rich, Greene, one of Ralston Purina's agencies.

Since her homes include one in Dalias, she could speak with authority on the burgeoning of the nation's sun-belt and its implications for marketers. Part of the growth in those states, she said, comes from a growing yearn-ing of Americans for a new freedom

—a freedom to enjoy themselves. One of the implications of the population swing to the South and the West where more sensual attitudes prevail, she said, is that perhaps advertisers should begin thinking about commer-cials with more emotional appeal rather than the purely rational ones that currently do so well in the testing sys-

When the morning session ended her audience dispersed to enjoy this section of the sunbelt and the sensual pleasures of golf and tennis.

Advertising Challenges

During September the National Advertising Division of the Council of Better Business Bureaus resolved 13 challenges, with seven advertisers agreeing on modification or discontinuance, which of their claims on products included cameras a cake mix, presidential ingots, a massage device, a rub, a consumer publication and a televi-sion antenna.

Print advertising for the line of Ko-dak Instant cameras stated "full three-year warranty." The N.A.D. thought it would be appropriate to include more information regarding warranty under Federal Trade Commission guides on warranty advertising. The Betty Crock-er division of General Foods found its television claim for Devil's Food Cake Mix, as tasting "better than any other leading devil's food cake mix," under question. The N.A.D. felt there was not enough substantiating support and was concerned that the claim implied there may be a number of other leading devil's food mixes, while at this time there is really only one other leading brand.

Sharing the Marketing Dollar

Last year overall marketing expenditures for the lodging industry showed a slight gain over 1974, according to the 44th annual industry study done by Laventhol & Horwatti, an international accounting firm.

The study shows that while growth was slight—up two-tenths of 1 percent—there were significant changes in the distribution of the marketing dollar. Radio and television increased their share 31 percent, outdoor rose 5.1 percent, while newspapers and magazines remained unchanged but still held the largest share of the marketing dollar. Direct mail showed a decline of 16.2

Competing Stock Specialists: Polite

Kevin Reilly and Richard Timothy— then began handling orders for a number of obviously angry major brokerage concerns that had previously been dealing with Kingsley Boye.

The group chosen by the New York exchange to compete against Kingsley Boye is a joint account consisting of the three former "$2" brokers and the specialist firm of Robb, Peck, McCooey & Company. And for the last four days, representatives of both groups have worked alongside one another-led by William E. Boye Jr., president of Kingsley Boye, and Herbert J. McCooey, executive vice president of Robb Peck in the 'blue room" annex to the main floor of the exchange at 11 Wall Street.

As they wait for business, commission brokers approach them for quotes on their stocks-such as the Warner-Lambert Company or the Aveo Corporation—and for the execution of orders. "Got anything on ACF?" asked one broker, who walked away after hearing the bid-and-offer prices from both specialists. both specialists.

Commission brokers said that the spreads—or range between the buy and sell prices established by the specialists had been narrow and virtually identical since competition started.
"Competition is something that had to come," said George Rose, senior floor broker of Lazard Frères & Company and a floor governor of the exchange, "and I'd like to see more."

Some brokerage firms have decided to give all their business in the 18 securities to one or the other of the two competitors, while others make individuals are the securities. 'ual determinations when they have orders to fill.

According to sources on the floor, two concerns-Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith and Dean Witter & Company - are funnelling all of their orders in the appropriate stocks through Kingsley Boye.

A larger group of brokers are apparently using the Robb Peck group exclusively. Among them are Bache & Company, E. F. Hutton & Company, Drexel, Burnham & Company, Blyth Eastman Dillon & Company and Shearson Hayden Stone den Stone.

The uncommitted are keeping their options open, asserting that they seek only the best execution for their customers. For example, Richard H. Holecek of the First Boston Corporation said, "We are going to see which one is going to give us the better service."

And Peter J. Coleman of Loeb,

Rhoades & Company added, "We have tried to keep an even order flow with both firms. We're constantly making an evaluation of the way both specialists function.

Officials of the New York exchange are monitoring this situation quite closely, aware that the Securities and Exchange Commission — which has been seeking greater competition in all areas of the securities business—is looking over its shoulder. As it does in special instances when there is unusual activity in certain securities, the Big Board ordered both specialists to file Form 81 at the end of the week to file Form 81 at the end of the week in the securities they handle.

Congratulations, Dr. Friedman Nobel Winner, 1976

Yesterday in Stockholm, The Royal Academy of Sciences named Dr. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago as the recipient of its 1976 Alfred B. Nobel Prize for Economics for his critical work in consumption analysis, monetary history and stabilization policy.

Only twelve men have ever received the Nobel Prize in Economics. Two of them write for Newsweek. Dr. Friedman joins Paul A. Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who became a Nobel Laureate in 1970.

For the past ten years, Paul Samuelson and Milton Friedman have appeared on alternate weeks as Newsweek columnists.

Fed Curbs Marine Midland Banks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1: The Federal Reserve Board issued a cease-and-de-sist order against Marine Midland Banks Inc. and three subsidiaries last month, alleging an illegal intra-company loan, according to a document made available today at the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The large Buffalo-based bank holding company consented to issuance of the order without admitting the allegation.

The Fed charged that Marine Middland International Corporation "willfully" violated the law and Fed regulations in making a loan to acquire stock in Intermarine Australia Ltd., and Australian merchant banking aftiliate.

Under the order, the bank agreed not to violate the law in the future, to establish procedures to prevent violations, to file various reports with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, to obtain approval before permitting its Australian unit to pay dividends and to com-ply with a previous Fed ruling to allow additional investment in Intermarine

Superscope Reports Getting Illegal Rebates

Special to The New York Times WASHINGTON, Oct. 14-Superscope Inc. illegally received $130,910 in rebates from ocean carriers with the knowledge of two directors, the California electronics company reported in a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission that became available today.

Superscope, the fourth company to make such disclosures, said the pay-ments consisted of $121,536 between June 1972 and August 1973, and $9,374 between June 1974 and August 1976. All income tax due on the money was properly reported and paid, the compa-

This was the first time that individual officials were named as knowing about rebates, but the company said they did not know the payments were illegal. The men involved were Nathan Tusbinsky, an officer and director who knew of rebates from one unidentified carrier, and Bernard Brawerman, a director who knew that rebates were received in Europe from a carrier based

M-G-M Awards Otis Hotel Elevator Order

The Otis Elevator Company announced it had received a multi-million contract to install stage lifts, elevators and escalators in a second Mertro-Goldwyn-Mayer Grand Hotel, which will be built in Reco.

The three main stage lifts, largest in the world, will be similar to those that Otis, a subsidiary of the United Technologies Corporation, installed in 1973 in the first M-G-M hotel in Las Vegas, Nev. The new 26-story notel in Reno will have 1,015 guest rooms.

F.M.C. Takes Over Ship Built for Standard Oil

The F.M.C. Corporation announced that it had purchased a 35,000-ton oil tanker it was building for use by the Standard Oil Company of California. A spokesman for F.M.C. said the action resulted from the sile company's refusal. resulted from the oil company's refusal to allow F.M.C. time to make certain structural changes required by new Coast Guard regulations.

The action in effect reduces to five from six the number of ships F.M.C. was building for use by California Standard under contracts agreed to in 1972 and 1973. The original contract price of the six ships was $97 million, according to F.M.C.'s 1975 annual re-

The F.M.C. spokesman said F.M.C. reimbursed undisclosed third parties, which had financed construction of the ship it was building for use by California Standard and which would have chartered it to the oil company. He declined to give the amount of the reimbursement and said it was impossible to determine the possible financial im-pact on F.M.C. He added. "It's now in the hands of the lawyers."

A spokesman for the troubled chain of retail stores said a hearing would begin Monday before United States Benkruptcy Judge James E. Moriarty in Los Angeles to conclude Chapter XI

The spokesman noted that "so far there hasn't been any significant oppo-sition to the plan' and added that the hearing should be concluded in a "day or two.

The company's repayment plan remains substantially the same as pre-viously announced. About $99.3 million will be paid to settle $160 million in unsecured claims. To finance the settlement, Daylin will issue $63 million in 8 percent subordinated sinking-fund debentures due 1999 and $15 million of

New Orders for Harris Set Record in Quarter.

Richard B. Tullis, chairman of the Harris Corporation, announced that new orders for the first quarter ended-Sept. 30 were the highest for any quarter and that backlogs were at record

Mr. Tullis noted that although the earnings gain for fiscal 1977 earling June 30 probably would not match the approximately 33 percent gain hased on preliminary results for the first quarter, "we are confident of a very strong year.'

He also said that directors probably would consider a dividend increase around the end of the second Bacal quarter. The company pays 35 cents quarterly. The company makes commications equipment.

Brown & Root Contract

The Louisiana Department of Highways has awarded a contract for nearly $22 million to Brown & Root Marine Operators Inc., sponsor of a joint ven-ture of Brown & Root Inc., Raymond International Inc., both of Houston, and T. L. James & Company to construct a twin-trestle concrete bridge in Tangipahoa Parish, northwest of New Orleans. Construction of the threemile, four-lane bridge, which is a por-tion of United States Interstate 55, is scheduled to begin in October and to be completed in mid-1978.

New B.P. Engine Oil

The British Petroleum Company announced in London that it would market today a new engine lubricant that would result in gas consumption savings of around 6.8 percent for motor-ists making short trips and 2 percent for long fast trips. The new oil is lighter than normal engine oil but has the same lubricating properties and life, B.P. said It said the new oil cost less than 15 percent more than standard oils and tests had show a 25 percent reduction in oil pollution, along with improved cooling and easier starting.

Shell Expects Gain

John S. Bookout, president of the Shell Oil Company, told security analysts in San Francisco that he expected third-quarter earnings to exceed last year $2.36 a share and that 1976 full year's net would top the record $9.21 share earned in 1974.

The Scene for Doing Business

"Good food and drink," he said recently, "are a necessity in international business-for the trader coming in from Hong Kong and perhaps leaving tomorrow for Paris, the easy comfort of a fine restaurant is important. And whether it is in Moscow or Tokyo, the dining room is the scene for doing business."

Despite their recent rapid growth, some questions have been raised on whether the new trade centers are mainly real estate promotions and whether they suit all world trade companies.

Although not conceding that the centers may not be much more than deluxe office buildings, Richard C. King, head of the Los Angeles center. said, "If they are, they are a fine balance of a good use of real estate and trade services, but what they really do is cut down on the time needed to do business.

Mr. Tozzoli conceded that "the giant multinational corporations that run all their own services and communications don't need us," but he added that the centers "certainly are helping the smaller and medium-sized companies that are growing up—and they are also increasing world trade."

GRANT OIL TOOL CO. Stock to Cost $42 Million in Cash and Notes-Resale of Part of Private Company Is Planned:

PETRO-LEWIS BUYING

The Petro-Lewis Corporation of Denver. an oil and gas producing and exploration company, announced yesterday that it would purchase the outstanding stock of the Grant Oil Tool Company, a privately held company in Los Angeles, for $42

Petro-Lewis said that the purchase price would be payable $10.5 million in cash at the closing and $31.5 million in notes due in 1977, 1978 and 1979.

The purchaser said that a definitive agreement had been signed with controling shareholders of Grant. It also signed a letter of intent with a large manufacturing company to reself it Grant's oil tool business. It did not identify the manutacturing company and also declined to specify the resale price.

Petro-Lewis said that Grant's whelly owned subsidiary, H. S. Petroleum, owned substantial interests in producing oil and gas properties in the Jennings town site field in the Jefferson Davis parish of Louisiana and, within the framework of The left wing of the Labor Party de- The Government did manage to avert, of $27 million for these properties.

Joanne could wait no more. Leaving her dog in the apartment, she descended the six flights once again, went to the same pay phone and called a gypsy taxi.

About an hour and a half after she was admitted to Bellevue, Joanne's baby, Cara, was born. In the next three days, Joanne unchar acteristically called her family in Ohio three times. She called the house she had not seen since January of 1972 and all she could talk about was her baby. When Joanne entered the hospital, had $130 in cash with her. She gave $120 to Bellevue for safe-keeping and kept $10 for herself. She used some of the $10 is not uncommon to the newborn.

Still, Joanne, in one of her telephone calls home, complained that she did not like the way the hospital was treating her baby. She indicated that she thought the treatment was too casual, too rough At the same time, Joanne told her mother that she planned to remain in the hospital until Tuesday, Sept. 7. Her reported desire to remain is but one issue that has provoked criticism of Bellevue's handling of the case. A spokesman for the hospital gives an

fice was called by the police at about A.M. and told of the baby's deat 'Someone Should Hang'

Dr. Michael Baden, deputy chief medicaexaminer, and Dr. Jeffrey Rothman from the Medical Examiner's office, went to 319 East 105th Street. As they entered the apartment a policeman muttered. "Someone should hang for this." They took their first look at Joanne's apartment. The pregnancy diet given het by Bellevue Hospital was taped to the door of the refrigerator, which contained a withered head of red cabbage, a bottle of water, a can of Enfamil, a baby food baby oil and some skin ointment.

There was no means of sustaining as t kind of life in that apartment-humas. or animal." Dr. Baden said. Joanne was arrested, and the baby.

body was removed to the Medical Examiner's office, where Joanne's search ful identity was summed up in 17 words: "Multiple contusions and lacerations of baby with henorrhage and shock inflicted by pet dog at residence. Necrophagia."

"This was not a pattern of attack its

the purposes of killing," said Dr. Baden "It was the pattern for eating for the purposes of obtaining food." The dog was put to sleep. After it death, its stomach was opened to cozfirm the contents. The baby's death touched off a public response. Letters, most of them suppo, tive, came to Joanne's parents, the Legal office.

Aid Society and the Medical Examiner's $2,000 in Donations

The woman who could never ask people she knew for help has now received around $2,000 in donations from people she does not know, plus offers from family lies who want her to share their homes Still other letters have come, protesting the death of the dog. One writer offered to pay for the dog's funeral.

Another letter advocated "the condem nation of that slut, Joanne Bashold, who is the real murderess of her child." Other letters were more compassionate.

A Paramus, N. J., woman, offered is contribute $100 a month for at least 1 year "toward private competent sup-portive psychiatric help for Joanna" I am hopeful that she will not be let alone after all the hysteria dies down. I feel she is a kind—very worthwhil. numan being."
The baby's body lay in the Medica numan

Examiner's office unclaimed for mon than two weeks. In her anguish, Joann was confused about whether the bod was really hers to claim. The baby was finally buried in a Roman Catholic service at an undisclosed cemetery on Sept. 25 with funeral costs paid for by the Social Services Department and a private donor.

Joanne's parents could not afford 1. contribute to those costs. Despite th middle-class surroundings, some bad bus." ness deals have hurt Jack Bashold em as his wife put it. "We just don't have the money." Their weekly net incommit both working, is about $240. After the death of the baby they spent a weekly net incommit the death of the baby they spent a weekly they spent a weekly to be a second with the second with end with Joanne in New York, but be cause of their finances they could no
